The Vienna Exposition Building Injured by Storm.

Loss of Life by Inundation in Bosnia.

Prince Edward Island to Join the Canadian Confederation.

Report of Another Victory Gained by the Spanish Carlists.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, May 15.—The stormy weather which has prevailed here for a week past culminated yesterday in a gale of extraordinary violence. In the afternoon a gust of wind broke in the glass of the western front of the exhibition building. Some visitors were struck by falling fragments and injured. Torrents of rain poured through the openings, and a large quantity of goods was damaged. The Prater is saturated with water, and the grounds around the exhibition are a morass of mud. The number of visitors for the past few days has been small, and is decreasing. Those that come are mostly from foreign countries. Few Viennese are seen.

The protracted panic on the Bourse disheartens citizens.

VIENNA, May 15.—Edward Pellew was married to-day to a sister of Mr. Jay, Minister from the United States. The ceremony took place at the American Embassy, in the presence of the German Ambassador and lady, and other distinguished guests.

SPAIN.

MADRID, May 15.—A dispatch from Barcelona, at midnight, says the city was in a state of great excitement, owing to information that the Carlists, under Saballs, had captured Mataro, fifteen miles distant, and seized the Custom-House, and were levying contributions. Troops were hurrying to Mataro.

PARIS, May 15.—The Carlist General, Dorregaray, in his official report of the battle at Brual, May 7, claims a decisive victory for his forces. He states that the Republicans lost 113 killed and 300 wounded, and 36 taken prisoners, and the Carlists had 13 killed and 37 wounded.

FRANCE.

PARIS, May 15.—It is rumored that the Legitimists and Orleanists have combined in a movement for the overthrow of President Thiers, and that they have sent Rochefoncould to Vienna to ask Count de Chambord to authorize the Legitimists to nominate the Duke d'Aumale for President in place of Thiers.

BRITISH INDIA.

LONDON, May 15.—The cable between Madrid and Penang is interrupted. Telegraphic communication with Penang, Singapore, and Australia must for the present be made via Japan and China, through the Russian and Siberian route.

RUSSIA.

ST. PETERSBURG, May 15.—Reports from Khiva represent that the Khan is greatly alarmed at the approach of the Russian columns, and has ordered a levy en masse of the able-bodied male population to resist the invasion.

ODESSA, May 15.—A panic has extended to the bourse here. All business is stopped, and discounts have risen to 9 per cent.

AUSTRIA.

VIENNA, May 15.—An inundation of the Turkish Province of Bosnia has caused the loss of many lives and a great destruction of property.

ITALY.

ROME, May 15.—The Pope is much better to-day.

CANADA.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

OTTAWA, May 15.—The salaries of members of the Government have been placed at $7,000, with the exception of the Premier, who will receive $8,000. This remains to be ratified by Parliament.

Last night the Government was defeated by a majority of thirty-six votes, on their policy on the New Brunswick School bill. This is larger than any majority obtained this session by the Government.

Coffin, M. P. of Shilborne, N. S., is to succeed Mr. Howe in the Cabinet, the latter having been sworn in as Lieutenant-Governor of Nova Scotia.

A. J. Smith, of Westmoreland, will succeed to the Lieutenant-Governorship of New Brunswick.

TORONTO, May 15.—A large number of German immigrants passed through here, last night, en route to the United States.

TORONTO, May 15.—The Dominion Government has finally arranged the terms of union with Prince Edward's Island. The delegates and Parliament will be asked to ratify them before prorogation.

OTTAWA, May 15.—Correspondence has been brought to the attention of the House of Commons, implicating Sir Hugh Allan in the charges in connection with the Canada Pacific Railroad. It is represented that letters were discovered which passed between Sir Hugh Allan and his associates, and which show that the former secured the Pacific Railroad contract from the Government by expending various sums of money, amounting in the aggregate to $360,000, in carrying elections. The House to-day ordered the immediate reassembling of the Special Committee of Investigation into the affairs of the Pacific Railroad, to receive and consider the correspondence.

THE INDIANS.

Present Position of the Modoc Band —Gen. Davis' Programme.

NEW YORK, May 15.—A Ivra-bed dispatch of the 13th says Gens. Davis and Gillem, in crossing Tule Lake on the previous evening, during a heavy gale, had a narrow escape from drowning, their boat becoming unmanageable.

The present force at the command of Gen. Davis is not considered sufficient to make a successful attack upon the Modocs in their new stronghold, but the General will endeavor to hold them where they now are and await reinforcements with mortars that are hurrying forward, and are expected in two days.

The troops are suffering from want of water. Willow Creek is the nearest stream, but the Modocs are between it and the troops.

The Modocs have their families with them, and it is thought they will not seek to leave their present position until they have made provision for the safety of their women and children. Their loss in the fight of Saturday was two braves killed, a large part of their horses, ammunition, and clothing captured, and about two tons of provisions destroyed. The Modocs scattered the fight stripped to their breech-cloats, but could not resist the Warm Springs Indians, who trotted into the fight and ran the Modocs past their plunder, retaking it all.

Commission to the Sioux Indians.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—A commission has been appointed to meet the Sioux Indians and obtain a reversion to the Government of certain portions of their reservations in Nebraska, in order that the lands may be made accessible to homestead pre-emption.

The Indian Bureau to-day received a letter from the Agent of the Cheyennes at the North Fork, Canadian River, Indian Territory, reporting that it has been definitely ascertained that the murder of the four surveyors of Darling's party was perpetrated by a small party of young Cheyennes belonging to Bull Bear's faction, who are regarded as outlaws even by their own tribe. The three young men who fired the shots, one of whom was a son-in-law of Bull Bear, have been identified, and the Commissioner of Indian Affairs has to-day taken the proper steps to secure their arrest and bring them to punishment.

Pastoral Installation.

CINCINNATI, May 15.—Interesting and unusual services took place to-night at the First Presbyterian Church, on the occasion of the installation of the Rev. George B. Beecher as pastor. This is the pioneer church of Cincinnati, organized in 1790, and the first rude church in Cincinnati was built partly on the ground occupied by the present edifice, on the north side of Fourth, near Main street. The congregation has had ten pastors, including the one installed to-night. The Rev. Joshua L. Wilson held the position of pastor the longest time, and upon the arrival of Dr. Lyman Beecher, grandfather of the present pastor, preferred charges of heresy against Beecher; also opposed on the same ground the ordination of George Beecher, father of the present pastor installed to-night. Henry Ward Beecher, who resided at Walnut Hills during these times, preached the installation sermon to-night. The crowd commenced gathering at 5, and at 7, half an hour before the service, the house was filled to repletion, and the crowd from the door to the street was so dense that ingress and egress were utterly impossible. Outsiders were so importunate, and pushed and swayed about the door, breaking glass, murmuring, and creating such confusion, that, after announcing his subject, Mr. Beecher sat down and waited about ten minutes for the confusion to be quieted. His text was from I. Corinthians, i., 23 and 24, commencing: "I preach Christ crucified." It was expected by many persons that he would allude to the early relations of the Church, and the movements in which his father participated here, but the 50 minutes devoted to his discourse contained not the barest allusion to either. The larger part of the evangelical ministers of the city were present.

WALL STREET.

Review of the Money, Stock, Gold, and Produce Markets.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The failure of the Bank of England to advance its rates of discount, which had been anticipated, had its influence on Wall street early in the day, gold becoming weaker, and stocks firmer. The announcement in the afternoon, that the Bank of England had lost bullion, caused an advance in gold and a general reaction in stocks from the highest quotations of the morning. Dullness characterized the market late in the afternoon, and general indifference was felt in financial circles during the morning.

MONEY.

easy at 6@7, with a decline to 4 in the afternoon, late dealings being at 5@6 per cent. To leading bankers offerings were very large.

THE FOREIGN EXCHANGES

were strong on moderate transactions. Actual business at 108¾ less ¼ for prime bankers' sixty days' sterling; 108¾ less 1-16 for good bankers; 109⅝@110 for good to prime sight bills, and 110⅝ for cable transfers.

GOLD

was lower in the morning, and higher in the afternoon from 117⅝ to 117¾. Carrying rates were 6, 5, 7, and 4 per cent.

GOVERNMENT BONDS

were firm at the close. Dealings were largest in 1881s, which sold at 121¼@121⅝ for coupon, and 119@119¼ for registered. The German bankers were buyers of 1881s, 1867s, and old 1865s, those issues being very strong at full prices.

STOCKS.

There was quite a change in the temper of stock speculation during the early part of the day as compared with yesterday, the course of prices having been steadily upward until some time after the conclusion of the first Board. At the commencement of business the market was weak, but then the decline was speedily recovered. The advance from the lowest prices of the morning ranged from ¼ to 2¾ per cent. Towards midday the market fell off a little, but before 1 o'clock became strong, and went up to the best prices made. After 2 o'clock a general weakness set in, while latter it steadier feeling prevailed again. The widest changes were in Pacific Mail and Harlem, the volume of business in the former though large, having been less important than yesterday. Erie occupied a less prominent position, partially owing to the narrow fluctuations in London.

Following were the closing sales.

Sales at the Stock Exchange have declined again. A little while ago, on the adoption of the fire insurance system, giving the widow or heirs of the deceased broker $10,000 cash, the money being raised by pro rata assessment, the price of seats ran up to $8,500, but so many members have died in the past month, making the assessments so frequent on the surviving members, and business has become so dull, that the quotation has fallen to $6,000, at which seats are now offered.

BREADSTUFFS.

Shipping brands of flour stronger. Low grades and family brands are firm, with a fair inquiry at the opening. At the close the market for all grades is fairly active and firmer. The sales are 20,000 brls at $6.15@6.50 for superfine State and Western; $7.20@7.50 for extra State; $7.15@7.35 for Western shipping extra; $7.25@7.50 for extra round-hoop Ohio shipping; $7.70@8.40 for trade and family brands; $8.50@12.00 for common to choice extra St. Louis.

PROVISIONS.

The market for all descriptions of pork is extremely dull. Stock is freely offered at $18.00 without buyers, and we could not learn of a single transaction either for future delivery or spot. Prime mess is nominal at $17.00@17.50, and extra mess at $14.50. Lard—Western steam is more active and quiet; a number of transactions are reported which are largely for June delivery at 9 5-16@9½; spot is moderate at 9½; city held at 9, and very little doing. Cut meats are inactive, and all descriptions are dull. Dry salted shoulders are held at 6¾@7½, boxed; city pickled shoulders sold at 7¼. Bellies are without demand, and held at 8¾@10¼ in bulk and boxed, according to weight. Hams are dull, and without decided change in price. Smoked meats are placed in small lots at 8¾@9c for shoulders, and 13½@15c for hams. Bacon is held at 9¾@9¾c for long clear. A small lot of city sold at 10c. Short is held at 9¾c. Dressed hogs are unchanged and held at 7@7½c for heavy and light weights. Beef is without decided change, and very dull for all descriptions.

PROBABILITIES.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—For the Gulf and South Atlantic States, and Tennessee, northwesterly and southwesterly winds. Slowly increasing pressure, partly cloudy weather, and rain in South Atlantic States will prevail. For the Northwest and upper lakes and thence to Ohio and the Lower Missouri Valley, northeasterly and northerly winds, increasing cloudiness, with occasional rain. For the lower lakes and Middle States northeasterly and southeasterly winds, higher temperature, increasing cloudiness, and occasional rain in Virginia. For New England and Canada, northerly and southwesterly winds, warmer, partly cloudy and clear weather.

The Homeopaths.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

DES MOINES, Ia., May 15.—The State Homeopathic Society, in session to-day, appointed a committee on securing recognition of homeopathy in the State University. Reports were read from various committees, which are of an interesting character. Speeches were made by the retiring officers, after which the new officers were appointed, and the business of the session was closed up, to meet at Fairfield in May next. The session has been unusually interesting and the attendance large.

Reported Capture of the Bender Family.

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—A report was brought to Kansas City, yesterday, by a citizen of Cherokee County, that the Bender family, the Kansas assassins, were captured yesterday, thirteen miles north of Dallas, Texas.

THE MINE DISASTER.

Facts Brought Out by the Coroner's Jury.

The Calamity Attributed to the Use of Gunpowder in Blasting.

HALIFAX, N. S., May 15.—A gentleman returned from the burning colliery says relays of men have been at work since yesterday filling up the slopes and air-shafts with clay. The fire still burns as fiercely as ever. He went within a few feet of the mouth of the shaft, from which blue sulphurous flames were ascending twenty or thirty feet. The roar from the burning mine was something terrific. Dense volumes of smoke continue to come from the several air-shafts. No adequate idea can be formed of the terrible disaster. The computed loss of property is enormous, but is nothing in comparison with the loss of life. All the wood-work in the mine is burned, and experienced miners say it is one mass of burning ruins below.

The causes that led to the disaster are not, as stated, owing to the strike of the miners, but to powder having been permitted to be used in one of the beds worked by a miner named Robert McLeod, who insisted upon using it unless he received higher rates for cutting without it.

At the inquest, yesterday, several important facts came out in evidence, which show recklessness or carelessness in the work of supervision in dangerous parts of the mine. The first witness, Thomas Lowthier, testified that the mine was carefully attended during the time the miners were out on a strike, so that there could have been no accumulation of gas when the miners returned to the works on Tuesday. The second witness, James Dunston, who was in the mine when the fire occurred, testified that he found nothing unusual in the mine when he descended. When the word was passed that the mine was on fire, all hands were requested to go and put it out. Those who refused to assist were ordered to leave, as by remaining they would only impede the progress of the others. Had the men obeyed the order when it was found possible to stop the fire, there would have been plenty of time to get it out. The same level had been on fire before. A man was always stationed in the cabin to give the miners information as to the condition of their places, and to warn them of danger. These regulations were attended to, as were also the furnaces for ventilating the same levels.

Alexander Larimer was next called. The gist of his evidence was in the statement that if the powder had not been used by the McLeod pit it would have been all right to-day. When he heard the alarm given he went to the pumping pit, having heard cries for help, and assisted John Bonnell to the surface.

Adam Lorimer said that he was in the mine when the fire took place. When the explosion occurred he made his way out as fast as possible. When he got to the slope he found it obstructed with boxes and rubbish. There were over thirty men lying down at this point, all evidently injured, as they were groaning. Some were as if they could neither move nor speak. Lorimer was obliged to stop and crawl over their bodies, in order to make his way out of the slope. On the way up he found several men who were lying down, crying and groaning, but unable to help themselves. He was the last man alive out of the pit, and was helped out by his brother. Passed a man dead on the top landing.

Andrew McLeod, brother of Robert McLeod, testified that he was in the ford cutting coal where the fire took place. They always worked their place with sulphur. Can't say he found much gas in the ford. Always used powder. Fired two shots, and was preparing to fire a third when he discovered that the ford was on fire. Endeavored to put it out by ordinary means, with wet bags, but after working for over fifteen minutes, and the fire gaining on them, called for assistance, and two men came. Was exhausted, and made for the slope. All of them went out to the landing, shutting out water behind them. Joe Richardson then came down and directed the men to get at the fire, but he soon returned and gave directions for all the men and horses to come out. Witness then started for the opening, and had scarcely reached the mouth of the slope when the mine exploded, throwing him out on the bank. There were some men behind him and one before him.

The Inspector of Mines, Pool, said witness' testimony relating to firing of shots had the most important bearing on the cause of the disaster. It was evident that the first and second shots had a decided effect, and blew down the coal there. The third shot, however, was only blown out-shot. It opened a crack in the coal, which then became a reservoir of accumulating gas. The latter immediately ignited, and set fire to the coal which burned with great rapidity, engendering intense heat and smoke, making it almost impossible for the men to put out the flames.

At 8 o'clock the inquest was adjourned to meet to-day at 12 o'clock.

Robert McLeod, who fired the shot which evidently caused the disaster, is too ill to attend the inquiry.

The miners appear to attribute the direct cause of the calamity to the refusal of the manager to give an extra price to McLeod for getting coal in his ward, thereby enabling him to dispense with the use of powder. If the use of powder, as stated, was prohibited in that ward, then it was the duty of some one to see that the regulations were strictly enforced. To give some idea of the extent of the explosion from the several air-shafts, it may be stated of an old one close to the miner's residence, and distant from the mines some 600 or 700 yards, that huge pieces of timber were driven through it up into the air, some falling on the roofs of houses and crashing through them.

It was truly heartrending to pass through the square of buildings where the families of the lost miners reside. The window-blinds are drawn, and the poor widows of men whose charred remains are far down in the burning sepulchre mourn incessantly and piteously the loss of those who have been so suddenly taken from them. As you pass close to the saddened homes of these families, you can hear them sobbing and crying.

4 p. m.—Two or three witnesses were examined at the inquest this afternoon, whose evidence went to show that most of the men were in the slope, endeavoring to get out when the explosion took place. This fact was further corroborated by a number of powder cannons which the miners carry coming out of the mouth of the slope with the second explosion.

John Lorimer, who formerly worked in the mine on the level above the one worked by McLeod, testifies as to the dangerous character of the room, from the constant accumulation of gas, and was obliged to quit work because the powder could not be used in it. This ended the testimony.

LATER.—The jury has returned the following verdict: "We find that the miners came to their death on the 15th inst. by an explosion of gas in the Drummond colliery, caused by derangement of the ventilation of the mine, arising from fire in Robert McLeod's ward." They say considerable care was exhibited in the management of the men, but express their regret that powder was permitted to be used in the ward worked by Robert McLeod.

A fund for the relief of the distressed widows and orphans will be raised. Relief meetings will be held this evening in New Glasgow and Westville.

HALIFAX, May 15.—Evening.—Considerable fire is still issuing from the slopes, although two workmen are laboring strenuously to smother it. During the forenoon immense columns of black smoke issued from the air-shaft at intervals according as the slopes became choked up. The mine is rapidly filling up with water, which leads to the hope that the conflagration has spent its fury.

The remains of Dunn and Burns were interred this afternoon in the village cemetery. Both being Odd Fellows, there was a large turn-out of brethren.

Interesting Insurance Case.

DES MOINES, May 15.—In the United States Circuit Court to-day, in the case of Hattie B. Tisdale vs. The Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Company, the jury returned for plaintiff. The Company insured the life of plaintiff's husband's life was insured in the Mutual Benefit when he disappeared mysteriously in Chicago, in 1867. Suit was brought to recover the amount of the policy, defendant claiming that Tisdale's disappearance was an proof of death. Letters of administration had been taken out, and the Court to-day decided that such letters were evidences of Tisdale's death, and so instructed the jury. Defense could not prove that he was not dead. The case has excited great interest and been long contested.

THE SCAFFOLD.

Nixon, the New York Murderer, to Be Hanged—The Murderer O'Neil to Be Executed at Mount Carroll To-Day—Execution at Morristown, N. J.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The General Term of the Supreme Court in the case of Nixon, the murderer, has denied him a new trial or stay of proceedings. This action destroys Nixon's last chance, and he will hang on Friday.

Nixon seemed to be unaffected by the intelligence that the Supreme Court refused the motion of his counsel. He expressed a wish to see his children, and when they were brought he was completely overcome, and the scene at the meeting is described as one of the most painful the keepers ever witnessed. Nixon's wife and sister will remain with him until a late hour to-night.

MT. CARROLL, Carroll County, Ill., May 15.—The gallows in Carroll County Jail here for the hanging of Joseph O'Neil, the murderer of Bexford, in Whiteside County, is now ready for its victim. He will be strung up at noon to-morrow, Sheriff Sutton presiding. He and his brother attempted to dig their way out of jail a few nights ago, but failed. He will probably make a confession of his crime, his guilt being beyond doubt or question, but will try to exculpate his brother Tom, who has been sentenced to the Penitentiary as an accomplice.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The details of the execution of Lusignani, to-day, at Morristown, are as follows: Lusignani was singing joyfully when the Sheriff entered, and said, "Kill me quick." His arms were pinioned, and the noose laid round his neck. Very soon after the death procession left the corridor and passed into the vestibule. Here the instrument of death was first seen by the convict, but not a muscle in his face quivered, though his gait was rather unsteady. Still the priests, who were in full vestment, held him up. He was dressed in a black alpaca suit, and held a book in his hands a crucifix and rosary. The priest repeated the Litany of the Saints to the convict, and he answered in a loud voice. It was now 16 minutes past 11 o'clock. The procession descended the steps, leading to the yard, and it stood under the gallows. Father Vassallo led Lusignani under the rope, while he told him to repeat certain forms of prayer. The prisoner, however, became restless, and paid little attention to the priest's admonitions, for he must have beheld in the 200 people gathered in the yard, somebody whom he knew. His head kept moving from side to side, but finally the priest's advice prevailed, and he became more quiet. The hangman's rope was found to be too short, and the noose could not be hooked to the rope. At 20 minutes past 11 Sheriff Sutton cut the rope, and up sprang Lusignani, if he was about to perform some acrobatic feat. The noose could now be fastened to the rope. Father Vassallo gave the convict the absolution, and left him, but the Sheriff's assistants were still working at the noose to bring it into proper position, while the convict kept on repeating his "Ou Christ in Italian. Suddenly he exclaimed: "Me no afraid to die. My wife go ahead; I after;" and, calling for the Sheriff, bade him good-bye. The black cap was drawn over his face, and, at precisely nineteen minutes past 11, the lever was touched. An officer knocked the scap-box from under the convict, the body sprang into the air, and came down like a lump of lead. At first there was no perceptible motion, but soon the legs began to work up and down, and the arms made a motion as if to grasp the rope. For 7½ minutes did the wretch suffer the agonies of asphyxia, for the knot had slipped under the chin, and the neck of the man was not broken. Two minutes after the opening of the lever the pulse beat 160. At 4½ minutes it beat 120; at 5 minutes, 108, while at 7½ minutes it ceased altogether, and New Jersey justice was satisfied. Among the spectators was a well-dressed man, with a boy 7 years old, for whom he secured a front place, so that the child might not lose anything of the repulsive sight.

MORRISTOWN, N. J., May 15.—Lusignani was hanged at 12:32. He died quite easily. Lusignani was hanged for the murder of his alleged wife, whom he found cohabiting with another Italian. Last night was passed in a somewhat restless manner. In the morning he ate heartily, was in full health. He ate a healthy breakfast and conversed freely with visitors, expressing himself not afraid to die.

As soon as the body had been cut down the priest of Morristown asked to have possession of it, but was told that the doctors must first certify the cause of death. Father Vassallo strenuously objected, and told the jail physician that he would prosecute him if he touched the body. This having no effect, he declared that the priests would not receive the body if cut or mutilated, and that it could not be buried in the Catholic Cemetery. The body now lies in the cell awaiting burial, and, if not claimed, will be buried by the county authorities.

The body was taken in the afternoon in a hearse to the receiving-vault of

A Day of Injunctions---Interesting Real Estate Cases.

Troubles of Compromising Insolvents.

A Pawnbroker's Emblem Causes A Lawsuit.

Bankruptcy Matters---Criminal Court Items---New Suits.

John Fitch files a bill in the Circuit Court against E. W. Willard, in which he asks for an injunction restraining action upon a writ of ejectment and enforcement of specific performance of contract. Complainant avers that in 1867 he agreed to purchase from defendant, for $200 an acre, a tract of land, purporting to contain eighty-three acres, in the vicinity of South Park, paying therefor the sum of $16,600, and making a cash payment at the drawing out of the contract of $500. This land Willard held by virtue of a trust deed from James and George Boggs. According to the agreement, Willard was to furnish an abstract showing a good title to the land, which was furnished to complainant, who submitted it for examination to his attorney, who made objections thereto on account of the foreclosure made by Willard under the Boggs mortgage, which he had purchased. Willard and Fitch then undertook to remove the difficulty. A result of their inquiries was a suit brought by George Boggs to set aside the sale made by Willard, and to redeem. This suit was interesting, inasmuch as it involved the question of the rights of parties who stayed, during the war, within the rebel lines, Boggs' claim for an annulment of the sale being based on the fact that, at the time of the foreclosure of the mortgage, in 1862, he was at New Orleans. The case went against Boggs, who took it to the Supreme Court, the judgment of which Court was that Willard's title was a valid one. The case then came back to the Circuit Court, with directions to make a decree, when Boggs made efforts to try and have the case transferred to the United States Courts, in which he failed. Later, he took a new writ of error to the Supreme Court of the State, on which a decision is pending. In the fall of 1872, Willard undertook to get control of the property, and brought an action in ejectment, on the ground that payments has not been made by complainant, who avers that his reason for not making the payments was the pendency of Boggs' suit. It is in order to enjoin the carrying out of the suit that complainant has obtained his injunction, and the success of his application to have the contract specifically performed will appear when next the case comes up. The bill shows Fitch to be in possession of it, as perfectly wild and uncultivated, and his interest in it is naturally increased by the fact that he has dammed out the encroaching waters of the lake by building a concrete wall, has raised a fine house thereon, and made it worthy of becoming the site of a suburban village.

TROUBLES OF COMPROMISING BANKRUPTS.

In the Superior Court, Chauncey Hearth, Wayland W. Wait, and Frederick A. Brayner file a bill for an injunction restraining the Mechanics' National Bank from suing on certain judgment notes made in favor of the bank by complainants. In their bill they recite that subsequently to the fire they became bankrupt, and compromised with all their creditors at 40 cents on the dollar. Among these were the defendant and the firm of Harris, Beebe & Co., both of whom, after agreeing to the composition, declined to receive the pro rata payment; but Ward and complainants, Harris, Beebe & Co. also declining to carry out an agreement they entered into to advance complainants, on the security of all their assets, the money wherewith to pay the other creditors the composition. The total amount of complainants' indebtedness to the bank was $7,000, and to Harris, Beebe & Co. $20,000. In order to effect a composition, complainants applied to the bank for a loan of $9,000, in consideration of which they undertook to pay the bank's claim in full, giving judgment notes therefor, stipulating that if the time was declined the bank would take the money and surrender the note, and would do in future occasions, if requested, great the advances. The lender was declined by Harris, Beebe & Co., and complainants paid the $9,000 back to the bank, who surrendered the note as agreed, but retained the judgment notes. Subsequently they declined to refund the $9,000 as agreed, and complainants, in order to pay Harris, Beebe & Co., who had expressed willingness to accept the composition, were obliged, at great expense, to raise the money elsewhere. Now the bank, notwithstanding that complainants have partly paid up the composition due them, threaten to enter up judgment on complainants' property by virtue of the power of attorney attached to said judgment notes. Wherefore complainants file their bill for injunction restraining them from so doing.

INSOLVENT PAWNBROKER AND A MERE PAWNBROKER.

Niels P. Hansen, a storekeeper, pawnbroker, files his complaint against John A. Phillips and Nathan M. Buffington, against whom he obtains an injunction from Judge Williams restraining them from pulling down the sign he had erected to indicate the nature of his business. Complainant leased from defendant Phillips No. 18 Clark street, the corner of Clark and Monroe streets, to carry on pawnbroking, that he did. On the 18th of May he had over the door of the building the usual three-ball sign, gloriously gilt; but its artistic beauty failed to arouse any but the most angry feelings in the breasts of the defendants, who bore it down. Complainant, with the passive courage of his race, put it up again, and once more the defendants tore it down, threatening him with violence if he again attempted to flaunt the obnoxious emblem. Wherefore he prayed for and got an injunction to restrain defendants from repeating such violent demonstrations.

A REAL ESTATE CASE.

Catherine E. Whisler obtained a writ of injunction yesterday against Darwin S. Ingraham and Charles Nichols restraining them from disposing in any manner of a certain trust deed and promissory note. Complainant avers that Darwin S. Ingraham, who had been her agent in certain real estate transactions by which she got into possession of certain real estate on Hurlbut street, near Sullivan, induced her to enter into a contract with Charles E. Nichols by which he undertook to build her a house on her newly acquired city property for $1,200, for which she gave her note, secured by a trust-deed on Lots 19 to 26 inclusive, in her subdivision of Tr. 95/4 acres of southeast ¼ of southeast ¼ of Sec. 17, T. 38 N., R. 14 east of 3 p. m., of which deed Ingraham was to be Trustee, with the onus of seeing that the proceeds of the note should be used in paying the expenses, as they occurred, of raising the house. Defendants, however, never so much as laid the foundation of the house, but are alleged to have fraudulently connived to swindle complainant of her money, to which she objects, and prays for the injunction accordingly, by which defendants are hindered from negotiating the note and doing anything with the trust deed.

BILL TO ESTABLISH A WILL.

John Martin Brunton files a bill in the Circuit Court by which he hopes to establish the will of his father, Martin Brunton, made on the 1st of July, 1871, by which he bequeaths complainant all his personal effects, consisting of promissory notes amounting to $3,885, signed by one Patrick McMahon and John Martin Brunton, in payment of certain real estate. The will was burned in the Great Fire, and complainant avers that his married sister's husband, James Kavanagh by name, is incredulous with regard to the existence of the will, and seeks to have his children come in for their share of the estate. This complainant opposes, and calls in the aid of a Court of Equity to enable him to enjoy a sole proprietorship. Complainant also files a bill for the partition of certain real estate left by Martin Brunton, viz.: Lots 13, 14, 15, Town of Bowmanville, being Subdivision of ¼ ¼ of ¼ of Sec. 19, in T. 40, N., R. 13, e of 3 p. m.

BANKRUPTCY MATTERS.

Henry R. Kibbee, E. J. Chaffee, George H. Shreve, and Henry S. Stokes, co-partners under firm name of Kebbee, Chaffee, Shreve & Co., file a petition in bankruptcy against J. Phillips and S. Sumpscott, trading under the name of Phillips & Co., of whom they are creditors to the amount of $1,786.92. Petitioners charge that Phillips & Co., on the 14th of May, not being insolvent, suffered their property to be taken on legal process in favor of Oakley, Trout & Co., of Philadelphia, with the intent to give them a preference over other creditors, and that they being insolvent on the 1st of May inst. made other payments to various parties with like intent.

In the matter of Munn, Norton & Scott, bankrupts, the Union National Bank yesterday filed a petition, setting forth that on March 20, 1872, bankrupts left with the bank, as security for their indebtedness, two notes amounting to $15,000, which the bank surrendered, at bankrupts' request, on Oct. 2, 1872, substituting therefor two notes of C. B. Bryce of $2,000 each, and three notes of $4,000 each signed by Stephen Roney and J. L. Briggs, together with an agreement by which Lot 5 in Leonard's Addition to Pekin, Tazewell County, Ill., Warren Norton's individual property, was agreed to be conveyed to petitioners upon payment of Roney's three notes, that the indebtedness on which said notes were left as collateral amounts to $25,000, which has been long since overdue, and that the collaterals were deposited long prior to commencement of proceedings in bankruptcy; that petitioners are anxious to realize from the collaterals, and fearing that the bankruptcy proceedings may cast a cloud on their title to said land, ask that a rule issue to the Assignees to show cause why they should not join in a deed of said premises to petitioners. Petitioners also show that they have realized $8,200 from said collaterals, and propose to convert the balance into cash and apply it towards the extinguishment of Messrs. Norton & Scott's indebtedness to them.

CRIMINAL COURT ITEMS.

H. Beach, a stout young fellow of 25, was tried on a charge of burglary. The principal witness against him was W. Bedford, who testified that about a month since he was awakened in the middle of the night by a noise in the room adjacent to that in which he and Mrs. B. were sleeping. Looking through a glass door which separated the two apartments, he beheld the prisoner making a careful selection among a quantity of household effects, which he had gathered together. Summoning his wife as an auxiliary, Bedford captured the burglar and held him until the police arrived. The jury found him guilty, and recommended a year's penitentiary as a suitable penalty. Philip H. Brown, the prime motor in the saucepan tragedy, was brought up to plead on a charge of murdering John Jones. He pleaded not guilty, and his trial was fixed for next Thursday, the 22d inst.

Hamilton F. Taylor, the unsuccessful forger, has at last succeeded in obtaining bail. After two desperate attempts at obtaining his release on bail of the corn-stalk description, he yesterday handed over to the State's Attorney $4,000 as security for the fulfillment of a $5,000 bond by himself and one John Flynn, for his appearance to stand his trial on the 16th of June next.

The Grand Jury returned forty-two true bills, and, having transacted all business brought before them, were discharged by the Court.

JUDGE PORTER'S COURT.

In the case of Rand, McNally & Co. v. the University Publishing Company, the evidence in which case was published yesterday, the jury returned a verdict for the plaintiffs with $352.90 damages.

In the case of Judd v. Dove, leave to file a new declaration in lieu of the original which was lost, was allowed, by agreement.

In the case of William Powell et al. v. Gustav Fleckler, a suit in assumpsit, judgment was rendered for plaintiff for $826.95 damages.

In the case of Joseph Gould et al. v. Thomas Caldwell, a suit in assumpsit, plaintiff's motion for a speedy trial was sustained, and after a hearing thereof a verdict was rendered for plaintiff for $272.60 damages.

The case of Peter Munro v. John Shirra was tried, in which plaintiff, who was suing to eject defendant from certain premises alleged to be plaintiff's, took a non-suit, and the case was dismissed accordingly.

W. H. Kane files a precipe in the Circuit Court, in an action of trespass against J. H. Loring, whom he charges with having, on the 19th of May inst., assaulted him, striking him, and pounding him in the face and fracturing his nose with a kick. The plaintiff, for the mental and bodily agony which he is still suffering, and for the disfigurement which inevitably arises from a fracture of the nasal organ, seeks to recover $5,000 damages, and asks for a capias by which Kane may be held to answer his misdeed.

George Lee has obtained in the Circuit Court an injunction restraining Samuel Glickauf from making away with any of his goods and chattels until after complainant has received payment of $899.90 which Glickauf owes him.

THE COUNTY COURT.

In the case of Dole, administrator, v. Divine et al., particulars of which were published yesterday, the jury returned a verdict finding defendants not guilty.

In Judge Booth's Court the case of Wright Bros. v. the City of Chicago was commenced. This is an action brought to recover $1,500 damages for the loss sustained by plaintiffs on 3d October, 1869, of a wagon and two horses, which, on the night of that day, by reason of the alleged lack of light in the vicinity of the Wells street draw-bridge, walked into the river, the bridge being open, and were [illegible]. The case went to the jury at a late hour.

In Judge Rogers' Court the case of Ostman v. Hall was tried. This was an action brought by plaintiff to recover $200. The circumstances of the case are as follows: A short time before the fire Hardy had been sent for by plaintiff to conduct a case for the partition of real estate. The case had originally been in the hands of Col. Bragg, and plaintiff gave defendant the sum of $200 where with to pay that gentleman for services rendered in the case. The fire occurred shortly afterwards, and defendant claimed that the amount which he had put in his safe was destroyed. Plaintiff, however, urged that, inasmuch as Hardy kept an account current at a bank, it was more than probable that he had deposited the money, and brought suit to recover the amount.

In Judge Farwell's Court, the case of T. Holihan v. Henry Fuller, Thomas Courtney, et al., was commenced. This is the sequel to an action of plaintiff to redeem certain property in Calumet, and to settle up the affairs of an old partnership, in 1867, between Fuller and Holihan, and also a mechanics' lien case brought by Courtney against the Calumet avenue property, originally in the Superior Court. All this business has been consolidated in the present case, which will be tried fair or die during the day or two yet. Messrs. Grant and Swift, and Story and King for Fuller, Mr. Dow for Holihan, and — W. Fuller for Courtney.

The case of Shepard v. Cutler was dismissed by Judge Gary yesterday. The most remarkable feature in this court was a strange lack of divorce cases, not a single divorce having been granted.

Robert K. Jenkins, Assignee of Commercial Insurance Company, yesterday filed bills against the following parties, who are alleged to be liable for the amounts of stock mentioned after their names: Edward F. Lawrence, $5,000; Josiah W. Preston, $4,000; Charles J. Gilbert, $4,000; John H. Foster, $3,000; D. H. Denton, $4,000; David S. Smith, $2,000; John C. Haines, $7,500.

Chillenden L. Burton et al. brings suit in the Superior Court, in assumpsit, against Louis Duck and Daniel F. Fash; damages, $1,500.

George Coombs et al.; petition in the Superior Court for a writ of attachment against James Davidson, of New York, who owes them $575.54.

William H. Kane files a precipe in the Circuit Court in an action in trespass against F. H. Loring; damages, $5,000.

Nicholas Martin, administrator of the estate of the late Joseph Clark, brings suit, in trespass on the case, in the Superior Court, against the Pittsburgh & Fort Wayne Railroad; damages, $10,000.

NEW SUITS.

THE CIRCUIT COURT.—2,942—William H. Kane v. F. H. Loring; trespass; $5,000. 2,943—H. Kelley, Beach v. Edward H. Rounds et al.; petition for partition of the undivided ¼ of N. W. ¼ of Sec. 20, T. 37, N. R. 14, E. of 3d P. M. 2,944—Edward F. Lawrence v. W. Willard; petition for injunction. 2,945—Appeal. 2,946—Harriet C. Sayles v. John K. Bowler; assumpsit, $500. 2,947—John Martin Brunton v. Jane O'Brien, John B. Smyser, James and Catherine Kavanagh; bill to establish the will of Martin Brunton. 2,948—Same v. Same; bill for partition of Lots 13, 14, and 15, Town of Bowmanville, being subdivision of E. ½ of S. W. ¼ of Sec. 19, T. 40, N. R. 13, E. of 3 P. M. 2,950—Appeal. 2,951—George F. Schoenhofen et al. v. Matthias Bayley; replevin of the plant of the "Chicago Spring Works," in No. 235 Clinton street. 2,952—Suppressed for service. 2,953—Nicholas Martin, administrator of estate of Joseph Clark, deceased, v. Pittsburgh & Fort Wayne Railroad; trespass on the case, $10,000. 2,954—Nicholas Martin v. Same; trespass, $7,000. 2,955—James Conley v. L. P. Hilliard; assumpsit, $600. 2,956—George F. Schoenhofen et al. v. Matthias Clump; divorce on ground of desertion. 2,957—N. F. Larsen v. Phillips & Buffington; bill for injunction. 2,958—Appeal. 2,959—John F. Merchant v. J. M. Morrison et al.; Malcolm McNeil; petition for mechanic's lien on building on northeast corner of Clark and Adams streets, for $664.35.

THE SUPERIOR COURT.—43,274—Chauncey B. Hearit v. Mechanics' National Bank of Chicago; bill for injunction. 43,275—Wayland W. Wait et al. Suppressed for service. 43,277—Charles W. v. Martin E. Reed; divorce on ground of desertion. 43,278—Chittenden L. Burton et. al. v. Louis Duck and Daniel F. Fash; assumpsit, $1,500. 43,279—State v. Jacob Schenter; divorce on ground of cruelty. 43,280—Catherine E. Whisler v. Darwin S. Ingham and Charles Nichols; bill for injunction to set aside trust deed. 43,281—George Coombs et al. v. James Davidson; petition for attachment. 43,282—Appeal. 43,283—Emily v. Peter Ham; divorce on ground of cruelty.

"A Tedtown (Conn.) chap, whose adorable backed out after the minister got to the house, not being of the chicken-hearted kind, calmly turned to the assembled ladies and said: "If there's any another gal here that'll occupy this vacant situation, I'm her'n;" whereupon the youngest sister of the bride blushed and exclaimed, "Count me in; I am't afraid," and the ceremony was performed to the delight of all parties.

WASHINGTON.

Points About the Late Chief Justice.

An Admiring Narrative---His Domestic Career.

Why He Succeeded---His Financial Experience.

Who Will Succeed Him?

From Our Own Correspondent.

WASHINGTON, May 15, 1873.

The Chief Justice has passed away, leaving a very sound, upright, and steadfast fame, highly grateful to his friends and family. A few points of his career are presented in my letter.

AS A FINANCIER.

Mr. Chase's study of finance was not merely the result of his appointment to the head of the Treasury; he had been Solicitor of the Branch Bank of the United States at Cincinnati as early as 1833, and he was compelled to learn banking in order to vindicate himself as Solicitor. After he was made Governor, the celebrated conflict between the systems of State stock and banking took place, with himself to select which was preferable. His clear mind is said never to have shown out better than in the decision he made in this case.

HIS RELATIVE RANK.

In conversation with several capable men of Ohio, I have derived some idea of Chase's relative standing in the State; all pronounce him superior, as a scholar, and executive spirit, to anybody produced in that Commonwealth. Justice McLean, who was considered an ornament to the Bench, was quite a minor spirit beside Chase. Tom Corwin was more brilliant and fully as versatile, but he lacked the method, command over the appetites, and height of manhood, of the late Chief Justice. Chase lived to survive the vigilance of all the public men of the State. Vallandigham, although a bitter Bourbon, was passionately anxious to make Chase President of the nation. Judge Payne, of Cleveland, whom Chase beat for Governor by a few hundred votes only, told me that he had been surprised to see his former opponent rise to the height of successive occasions and positions as Governor, Senator, Financier, and Justice. George H. Pendleton may count amongst the victories of a superficial life the defeat of Chase as the Democratic candidate for the Presidency. Had Chase been nominated in New York, in 1868, the New Departure would have been taken four years in advance of the Baltimore acquiescence. Horatio Seymour's mingled weakness and craft prevented Chase's victorious nomination by the New York Convention. Vallandigham, according to an arrangement, was to propose the name of Seymour, and then Seymour was to decline the compliment and call upon the Convention to be wise and magnanimous and take Mr. Chase. Vallandigham made a most eloquent speech, which excited the Convention, so that, when Seymour arose, the enthusiasm was unbounded. Vallandigham watched Seymour with anxiety, and said to one beside him: "Why! the d—d fool is going to accept it." Accept it Seymour did, and was nearly elected to the asylum. Mr. Seymour has probably never ceased to regret that he had not more firmness of purpose. Chase would probably have carried the State of Ohio in the campaign of 1863, and had he been defeated his run would have been closer than, with his good health, he would have been renominated in 1872.

HIS DOMESTIC LIFE.

The Chief Justice was three times married to young and handsome women. His first wife, Kate Garnes, was the daughter of a wealthy Cincinnatian, who was the organizer of the Ohio Life and Trust Company, the concern whose disastrous failure precipitated the panic of 1857. This lady was truly beloved by Mr. Chase, and it was the romantic passion of his life. He preserved her letters, portrait, and souvenirs of affection, to the last, and they were the most prized of his effects. This lady was a brunette; she had two children, both deceased. The second Mrs. Chase was Lydia Smith, of Cincinnati, mother of Mrs. Sprague. The third Mrs. Chase, mother of Mrs. Nettie Hoyt, was Sarah Bell Ludlow, a superb woman. She always addressed the Chief Justice, for some quaint reason, as "my dear Percival." The two children of the Chief Justice have been subjects of his pride, and perhaps of his ambition in later years. Excepting Martha Jefferson, we have not had in eminent life any daughter who has made the impression of her father so much a matter of heart as Mrs. Sprague.

SUMNER'S LAST VISIT TO CHASE.

The final interview, at the residence of Senator Sprague, between Senator Sumner and the Chief Justice, was of that character to give respect and tenderness to the closing period of two great careers. Mr. Sumner and Mr. Chase were associates in the Senate before the Republican party was fairly on its feet. Both had been elected by a coalition in itself complimentary; for, when great parties disband for the sake of personal character, it may be inferred that there is something exceptionally great in the individuals honored. There is much talk in our day about fealty and party-loyalty, as if a constant Ben Wade was of more consequence than a bolting Chase, or as if the Chief Justice of the Court of Claims was to be preferred in history to cosmopolitan colleagues, Carl Schurz. The Republican party, at its best, was a bolt to begin with. It was born in defection, and great when it came to great men, instead of following cartridge-box reputations. Mr. Sumner differed from Mr. Chase in his excess of impetuosity; his nature was stronger, but the arch of his character narrower. At the Impeachment-trial, he showed some impatience with Mr. Chase's slow and careful department and manifestly growing dislike of the Impeachment programme. In this trial Chase prevailed, as he has on every occasion of life; have that uncertain drawing of the Presidential prize. Mr. Johnson was not backed by a large vote in favor of his deposition, but his office was not disgraced. Had he been convicted, the President of the United States by succession would have been a man of bull-headed parts, who cast his vote every time in the line of his own elevation. Thus, by a sort of poetic justice, Mr. Wade was repaid for leading a faction of envious fellows to the Chicago Convention, in 1860, to defeat Mr. Chase's nomination for the Presidency.

It would be in admirable context to place side by side the speeches of Sumner and Chase in that early period when they contended together against the Kansas and Nebraska bill. Mr. Sumner's speeches were like the charge of Murat, designed to break the enemy's centre. Mr. Chase's were impersonal, and full of that moral power which expresses the prophecy of the present, and, replies to it with an anticipation of the decision of posterity. Not men of consonance, and both too great and imperious to live in accord while in the lusty vigor of public career, it is a pleasing chapter to see the invalid Senator from Massachusetts in the magnanimous part of a visitor to the Justice, brought together again in the softened emotions of mutual pain, memory, and appreciation. Mr. Sumner said to Mr. Chase, when they met on Friday prior to the death of the latter: "God bless you! I'm glad to have seen you again."

They had an interview of a manly and noble sort, probably such a one as contemporary statesmen seldom have. One who heard an account of it says that it ought to rank with the friendship of latter days between Jefferson and Adams. Mr. Chase said, on one occasion, to a gentleman whose name I will not quote: "Mr. Sumner is greatly my superior as a scholar, and I never was an Abolitionist; he was." The fact was, that these two eminent contemporaries differed by the logical development from different premises. Mr. Chase had the area and education of the West; Mr. Sumner inherited the intense and aggressive spirit of reform against despotisms, whether chartered or unchartered, which a Massachusetts man might legitimately get from the examples of Samuel Adams and Josiah Quincy. Chase did not believe that an instrument like the Constitution, drawn up by the freest spirits of the age in which it was devised, was meant to be more of a concession to slavery than the strictest interpretation would warrant; but, to the extent of what was undoubted in that concession, he believed that even freedom must obey the law. Mr. Sumner was too impatient with slavery to consider that it had many equities whatever. These two schools of men struck slavery upon opposite flanks. One class of minds was influenced by the scholarly vehemence of Mr. Sumner's oratory; another class of legal minds was influenced by the high juridical position taken by Mr. Chase, that, with the increase of States, the obligations to slavery were diminished, and that State rights, on which slavery so much relied, were legal to be fatal to slavery at last. Mr. Seward alleged that slavery was sectional; Mr. Chase believed than it was less than sectional,—it was provincial. We probably can never know to what degree the slave interest was discouraged by reading the said logical constitutional positions of Mr. Chase on the fate of their institution. Previously they had to contend only with the moral forces of the North,—I cannot say religious forces, for the attitude of the Christian Church on the slavery question was well expressed by Theodore Parker, who said that it was "waiting to proclaim slavery and renounce the law of God;" but Mr. Chase's gospel closed up the gap on the mental and legal side, and the institution felt itself surrounded. Hence it chose to expire by the act of suicide; it rushed upon the Union, and ceased to be, with all the gallantry of despair.

RELIGIOUSLY.

In religious matters, Mr. Chase, the nephew and protege of an Episcopal Bishop, was no less a Protestant than in matters affecting human liberty. He was neither antitrinitarian nor platitudinarian. He was such a Low-Churchman that he preferred a Methodist Bishop—who, as everybody knows, wants the Apostolic succession—to a High-Church Bishop all ritualistic with genuflexions. Hence we find Dr. Tyng, the lowest of Low-Churchmen, saying the service over the remains in New York, and our able and modest Methodist, Dr. Tiffany, doing the service at Washington. It is said that, when Henry Clay was confirmed in the Episcopal Church, Mr. Chase, then in the early ardor of his opposition to slavery, withdrew from Christ Church, Cincinnati. He did not pay homage to Mr. Clay's having inherited much of the political creed of William Wirt, his preceptor, who regarded Clay as an extravagant man, who would have precipitated the Credit Mobilier scandal forty years before its day. Wirt left posterity a pupil in Chase whose bent of mind was always toward distributed government, and who believed that the Spartan character of the American nation resided in those who followed the precepts of Mr. Jefferson.

ELEMENTS OF GREATNESS.

What made Chase great? To this question, one well acquainted for years with the Chief Justice has replied: "His method, his control of his appetites and impulses, his elevation of character, the compass of his mind, and the sovereign force which resided in him from the commencement." His career was without tricks; he had not, like Seward, a manager in the background; and his triumphs were gained notwithstanding the fact that he was no great judge of men by their faces, and had little tact or nimbleness. His movements became his stature,—slow, ponderous, majestic. He was not, however, so dull as Washington or Jefferson had very pretty and quaint humor, which became him, and did not diminish his dignity. This talent of humor was accompanied with a half-twinkle, which captivated men and women. Few men in our history have been more gallant and successful in ladies' company, and with both sexes he was potential without being arbitrary. He belonged to a good country family, but poverty was his lot, and he ontrode it without showing any of the marks of abrasion. He knew how to live with the least and with the most. He made the fortunes of some of the wealthiest men in the land; and I have heard it stated that the present Governor of the District of Columbia was the tenant of a room, not of the most palatial sort, on the Avenue, when, by his acquaintance with the ex-Governor of Ohio, the retired banker, Jay Cooke, was enabled to soar to fortune like a phœnix. Surrounded with all the revenues of his time, and much that was bonded upon posterity, Mr. Chase never made a present nor made any nomination of relatives; and he died as he had lived, with a competence always sufficient, but without wealth. The old-fashioned cage-green mansion beyond Glenwood Cemetery, near the sources of Silver Creek, will be, for many years to come, both historic and representative, as the abode of this pure, exalted, and complete man. It stands on a hill-top, with cedars green on the edge of the lawn, fully within sight of Bladensburgh, where Mr. Wirt, the master of the late tenant, first drew breath, and in sight of the dome of the Capitol. It was at first proposed to inter Mr. Chase in the old Congressional Cemetery, where Mr. Wirt lies; but later reports indicate that he will be placed near Stanton's grave, in that beautiful field at Georgetown, for which, when he took it to hand, her noblest citizen of means, Mr. Corcoran.

ADVANTAGES NEGLECTED.

It is the belief of many persons that Mr. Chase could have been nominated for the Presidency in place of Franklin Pierce, in 1852, and successfully, had he weakened but a little on the slavery issue; but fate reserved him, like Moses, to look over at that promised station from the greater height of his own character. The summary of parts, and the equal capacity of Mr. Chase to many directions, are rather to the disadvantage of his fame.

HIS HARMONIOUS NATURE AWAITED.

He performed everything he undertook so well that we miss in his life those episodes of necessity and frailty by which our weakness comprehends great men. He had those buoyant abilities which rise with ease to surmount every wave which confronted his career; and none who undertakes to comment upon the present period will fail to observe that a politician as he was, Chase could so rapidly and thoroughly organize a financial system which provided the army and navy of the Union with ample means from the beginning to the end, however vast the outlay, and left in the inestimable advantage of a currency which is in itself an element of strength, safety, and union. Time was when a set of drafters around a State Capitol, as Arkansas or Mississippi, could flood the Union with scrip and bills which were as dangerous as the system was scandalous. To have been "the father of the greenbacks" was to have begotten a posterity infinitely enlightening and missionary in its character over all prior forms of circulation. Next to our language, we ought to look perhaps to our currency as the great artificial element of comfort. The absolute of National Banker after the conception of the Greenback was annoying to Chase as to any observer, and he did not hesitate, though superficial opinion called him inconsistent, to proclaim that his currency was not designed to protect meanness, and to apply to obligations negotiated in time of peace on a coin basis. As he had met slavery in its period and the War in its period, he met law and honor in their period as well. If anything were wanting to complete his fame, it would be the class of childish criticisms which, when the great man's head is fallen, ventures its miserable little retort by saying that, as a Chief Justice, he did not aim to mould the Bench his personal vindication, and that he was a disappointed candidate for the Presidency. Disappointed he was, and not so much to his mortification as to ours, who have fallen into the hands of Cheap Jacks, some of whom have probably never read the Constitution of the United States. He wanted to be President from the sense of capacity and the love of country which he had,—from the consciousness that the times were groaning dull, and the chest of coin could be heaved all the way up and down the Avenue, and at either end. It is no funeral of this regime that will be held at Oak Hill on Monday; their funeral is up at Easton, where they are putting Mr. Chase's Ajax to rest.

HIS MAGNANIMITY.

Mr. Chase's defeat before the nominating conventions shows that the arts of the caucus and of demagogency he never employed. He could be known men, and he was not. He knew communities, which was better; and, of all the Northern men, not excepting Mr. Greeley, who have wholly gained the respect of the late Rebels, Mr. Chase had the most national reputation. As to the Republican party, he regarded it very much like his legal-tenders, as a war-measure. Such Judges as Durell, Delahay, Sidenwood, and Sherman are left for the comfort of that kind of Republicanism which emits its breast nowadays, and longs for "Lord, I thank thee that I am not as yonder publican—out of office."

Justice Chase expressed, in the week before his decease, his disgust at the aspect of the Louisiana case, where the President, dignifying Gov. Warmoth with his resentment, had made Durell an authority instead of an object of aversion.

Mr. Chase had the element of simplicity in his life, method, and writings. Nothing can be more lucid than his style, and there are no incongruities of expression or statement in it. He was propelled from nothing, but reasoned out his way. He imbibed from William Wirt a mild anti-slavery feeling, and went to Cincinnati averse to politics, with a disposition to pursue sociology and matters not connected with cabals. In 1840 he got into the Harrison movement; but, reflecting and observing, he grew to dislike it before the close, and in 1844 he produced Mr. Birney and demoralized Mr. Clay's campaign. He is said to have been the only New England man who ever went to the West and became distinguished, who was never called "a Yankee." He is said never to have gone into a bar-room.

SEWARD, WIRT, CHASE.

The link which connects Seward and Chase is not only the Cabinet of Lincoln, but the Anti-Masonic campaign where Mr. Wirt was the nominee. Seward came to office in New York on that issue as a supporter of Mr. Wirt, and Chase was Wirt's pupil. Mr. Stanton, although an Ohioan, does not seem to have crossed the dial of Mr. Chase until they met in Washington.

Some of Mr. Wirt's pupils when he taught school in Washington live in this city still, and remember him with unaffected delight. Mr. James Colgate, whose home is on H street, near the Sprague mansion, says that Mr. Chase was a most gracious and pleasing teacher, and that he had the best class of pupils of their day.

THE SUCCESSION.

The question now is, Who shall succeed this great man at the head of our impoverished Judiciary? The President who names the next Chief Justice may leave for twenty years to come the impress of his mould on the Bench. The [illegible] of John Adams had faded from men's thoughts, the splendor of John Marshall kept him in men's obligations. The opportunity of President Grant is twice as great as that of the Government no worse than he found it, we may timidly hope he will be equal to. The names of several persons have been mentioned for the place, few or none of whom possess the measure of fitness and capacity. Lyman Trumbull, of Illinois; Judge Curtis, of Boston; or Mr. Evarts, of Chief Justice, if they were nominated. Would be Chief Justices if they were nominated.

GATH.

"BEHEADED IN THE MOONLIGHT.

A Horrible Crime and a Curious Sentence---A Remarkable Funeral Procession.

One of the most horrible murders ever recorded in any criminal code was committed in Harburg, Northern Germany, on the 9th of March last. There lived near Harburg, in the little village of Heimfeld, an old butcher, by name of Schober, who, in course of time, had amassed quite a fortune. His only son, Max, had but lately returned from Heidelberg, where he had studied some years, but where he had been expelled as a worthless scholar and a disturber of the peace. He was about 23 years of age, and quite handsome, had it not been for an ugly cut which he had received from one of his opponents in the fencing-room, and which disfigured his face. This opponent's name was Carl Schween, the son of one of the wealthiest merchants in Harburg. The had quarreled about Eliza Mollenhauer, the only daughter of a venerable Professor of the University of Heidelberg. They young lady gave preference to the rich Harburg heir. Max Schober was constantly seen near her residence, watching her movements and never missing a chance to address her. On the 3d of February last, while Eliza Mollenhauer, accompanied by Carl Schween, was about to attend a ball at the Imperial Hotel, Schober again approached her. She grew indignant, and, pointing to her companion, exclaimed: "This will be my future husband; father has consented. If you disturb me again he will avenge me." Similar words were uttered by Schween, who so infuriated the mad lover that he tried to slap the young lady's face, but was prevented by the bystanders, and narrowly escaped a good thrashing from the hands of those who, on their way to church, had become witnesses. The consequence was a duel, in which Schober received a wound in the arm, and Schween, and he left the city with more or less heart. Four weeks afterward, Schober was notified that Eliza Mollenhauer had been married to Carl Schween, and that they resided at Harburg, in the Hotel Bologne. They had been married but a few days, and were awaiting the return of Schween's parents, who were sojourning at Bremen. Schober at once started for Harburg in disguise, and visited the vicinity of the handsome couple's residence at the young couple, and finally succeeded in entering their sleeping apartment, and, true to his word, took the threatened revenge. He killed his rival by cutting his throat from ear to ear, and the horrible deed did not ever awaken the young lady. Then Schober roughly shook the wife, who, on beholding her husband covered with blood, recoiled with a shriek and fainted. Schober, who had been advised by a little waiter-boy, who slept above, and who exhibited sufficient presence of mind to give the alarm, Schober was caught burning the bloody clothes, and was immediately turned over to the police, and it was found that the wife, too, had been killed. The murderer was then taken into the room where the two corpses lay, and he was asked whether or not he committed the bloodied deed, and why? With a stoic indifference did he answer in the affirmative, but he would not utter another syllable. On the 27th of March the funeral took place, and almost every inhabitant of Harburg and Heimfeld participated. It had been ordered that the murderer should accompany the funeral procession, heavily chained, dressed in white, and the words "Infamous Murderer" were placed on his breast and back. In the rainy weather thousands followed the procession to the cemetery, and had it not been for the strong force of Deputy Sheriffs and the two companies of military, the mob would have certainly taken charge of the prisoner. Schober's trial commenced on the 19th of March, and lasted exactly twenty-four hours. He was sentenced to be confined in a dark cell, and to receive but one warm meal every ten days until the 12th of March, 1874, when he is to be taken to Lima's Woods, place near Harburg, there to be executed between 1 and 3 o'clock in the morning. The judge, in passing sentence, stated that the death penalty was no punishment at all in comparison to the hideous crime the young man had committed, and the Judge would, therefore, avail himself of the furthest extent of judicial rights, and specify the hour of execution, bearing in mind that the crime was committed at the same time of the day of execution, by moonlight, as the Hamburg Reform says. The precedent in the German States and the Judge's sentence has created no little astonishment. The execution took place shortly after 1 o'clock on the appointed morning, an immense multitude witnessing the last moments of the condemned man. Schober persistently refused the attendance of a clergyman, and never spoke a word after the crime which he committed. He ascended the scaffold without the aid of the assistants, and laid his head on the fatal block without looking around or evincing the least emotion. the headsman made likewise short work, and the head of the inhuman murderer fell into the basket.

KHIVA.

The Ruler and His Subjects---How the Land is Governed.

Special Correspondence of the London Standard.

The Petersburg Gazette gives some interesting particulars respecting Khiva, its ruler, and its people. The Khan, Muhamed Rachim, is a young man of 25 years of age, who, though absolute master of his people, pays little attention to State matters, and spends all his time with his concubines in the harem or with his hawks in the field. His dearest friend and chief adviser was (requiescat in pace) the Divan-beg Mad-Murad, who instigated his sovereign to lay hands upon the Russians just set at liberty, and always strongly discountenanced their release. The nominal Khan-ship in which Mahmed, the brother of Rachim, who took the opposite side, and consequently had to go to the wall, as long as Mad-Murad enjoyed the ascendant. He is now, I presume, reinstated in the Royal favor. Another functionary, Polvandshan (pronounced Polvanjan), described as "a sort of foreign Minister," is a person of some ability and a linguist; for, besides several Asiatic tongues, he reads and speaks Russian. Two other personages, Saadyk and Kutlug Murad, are in high favor with the Prince and popular with the people, but "incorrigible robbers and sworn foes of Russia."

In the absence of any authentic particulars of the last outbreak on the part of the Khan, it does not appear whether these individuals have been hanged like Mad-Murad, or kept in reserve for some new pinch in the shifting humors of the Khan. The regular military force of the Chanat consists of 500 foot and 1,000 horse. The latter wear a uniform of red cloth, and are armed with percussion locks. The artillery is served by Afghans and Hindoos. In addition to these, there is an irregular force of 2,000 Turcomans, upon whom, however, little reliance can be placed. The country is divided for administrative purposes into as many districts as there are towns, each town with an outlying radius forming a district within which a representative of the Khan holds despotic sway. Justice, such as it is, is exercised by the Khan in person, or by Judges whose decisions rest upon two foundations—the written law (shariat), and the unwritten law (adat), and frequently adds the Insalidk, upon none whatever. The ways and means are furnished in the first place by a household tax (oolgut) varying from four to twenty roubles a year, with two-fifths of the agricultural produce, when there is any. Another tax, called takapnaja, is levied upon garden produce. Among the nomad population the Kirkatpaks contribute the value of one sheep in every hundred, of one ox or cow in

THE GRAND PACIFIC.

Chicago's Last and Greatest Hotel Enterprise.

The Grand Pacific Almost Ready to Receive Guests.

In About a Week Its Doors Will Be Thrown Open.

Description of Its Internal Arrangements.

Its Incorporators, Builders, and Furnishers.

At last, after conquering all the elements of opposition, a great fire, and the dead weight of public incredulity as to the feasibility of the enterprise, the Grand Pacific has become an accomplished fact. And while over a week will elapse before it is thrown open to the public, yet it is not improper to anticipate a little, and to describe the hotel as it will be in a fortnight, so that those who expect to be in Chicago about that time may know where they can best find food and shelter. Such a "coming event" as the opening of the Pacific may naturally cast a very decided shadow before.

Of the external architectural appearance of the hotel it is unnecessary here to speak. It has been minutely described before, and it has been gazed at, from turret to foundation-stone, by thousands of residents and of visitors. Besides that, the object of the present article is to describe the comforts and conveniences within, rather than the beauties without.

THE HOTEL COVERS THE BLOCK

bounded by Clark, LaSalle, Jackson, and Quincy streets, 325 feet from east to west, 186 from north to south, or 60,450 square feet. On the ground-floor this is all occupied. Above that, there has to be deducted the space taken up by a couple of courts, the western one, 100 feet by 60, the eastern one 70 by 70. Each of the upper floors, therefore, cover 49,550 square feet. Fronting upon four streets, three of them important ones, the hotel has naturally a great advantage in the matter of exits and entrances. But while local situation has done so much in this respect, the practical common sense of the planners has done more, and they have hit upon an idea which has never been carried out, even in the hotels where it is practicable. Every one who has ever been in or near the entrance to a hotel is familiar with the constant annoyance which accompanies the arrival and departure of buses, the crowds of people, pushing up stairs, and the trunks which are hustled along without regard to the comfort of bystanders. At the Pacific, by a very simple arrangement, all this is avoided. One of the main entrances runs directly from Jackson street to the main office, and all incoming and outgoing guests use that alone. The gentlemen congregated around the Clark and LaSalle street entrances, or in the spacious halls, would be undisturbed by the entrance of a thousand guests and their baggage. Just facing this entrance, when one reaches the eastern hall, is to the left of it a private parlor, where ladies can sit until rooms have been assigned to them. One of the elevators is within a few steps, and takes them at once to their apartments. This private station or reception-room, connecting as it does so closely with the elevator, is also used by ladies who may desire to call upon friends at the hotel in a plain dress, and do not care about making their appearance in the grand parlors. They can go there, send up word to the person they desire to see, and she can come down, unnoticed.

In addition to this entrance, and those in the centre of the building on Clark and La Salle streets, there are four others, a lady's private entrance on Jackson street, just west of the one already mentioned, another still further west on Jackson, leading to the western main-hall, and two on Quincy street, which, owing to the unimportance of that thoroughfare are of a subordinate nature.

STORES AND OFFICES.

It may be said incidentally, that on the ground floor on Clark street there are eight stores, of fine size, admirably finished and almost on a line with the sidewalk. Clark street is given up to retail trade, and therefore the room which the hotel has at its disposal on that side was devoted to stores, while on LaSalle it has only offices for rent, the ten pair-stairs, and a room in the light-well attachment, which was made on this side of the building. There can be found no finer offices in Chicago than these, and their proximity to the great railroad depot, as well as to the great Government building of the future, makes them of special value.

THE GRAND HALL.

Entering from Clark street, and passing along the broad corridor, one reaches the first grand hall, in the northwestern corner of which is the office, elegantly finished in dark wood. Passing up a short flight of stairs, made necessary by the LaSalle street basement, and still going westward, the second and larger hall is reached, the grand centre for the denizens of the hotel. It forms an immense room, 100 feet by 60, lit from a skylight by day, and innumerable gas-burners by night. Rows of columns at a distance of ten feet from the wall extend around the room. On its northern side are the billiard and bar-rooms, subsequently fitted up, and coming on Quincy street, as well as into the hall within this room, and on the northern side of it, occupying a space of over 100 feet, is to be the telegraph office, which will be the finest and most comprehensive in any hotel in this or any other country. It will have a connection with all the railroad wires, so as to bulletin every train with the city telegraph, and with the stock-board likewise, so that a person who is not at the hotel, but who lives in a distant part of the city, can be informed as to the precise whereabouts of a consignation. On the south side of this room, and fronting upon Jackson street, are railroad and steamboat offices, where travelers can obtain all the tickets and information they desire; a washroom with twenty-two basins, so large a number that it will be impossible for a man to have to wait in order to perform his ablutions, and just in front of it and facing Jackson street, the barber's shop, which is to be kept by Pettibon, a name familiar to the smooth-shaven youth of Chicago. Of the water-closets, and other similar appurtenances, it is unnecessary to speak, except merely to say that they are all that such things should be. The main stairway, leading from the east hall to the western hall, is at the left of the office, and the right-hand side is a narrower flight, leading up to the private office of the lessees. Immediately adjoining this, and facing Quincy street, is a good-sized room, which will be used by the clerks of the hotel as a dining-room, and which is also serviceable for small meetings of citizens, serving the useful purpose that Parlor No. 1 used to do at the Tremont. Next to this is the servants' dining-room, the food being lowered by an elevator from the kitchen above. There are three vaults, one in the office, where the valuables of transient guests are placed; another in the private office, for storing the papers, etc., of the proprietors, and another on the floor above, where the valuables of permanent guests are deposited.

THE GRAND PROMENADE.

From the western hall the main stairway leads to the second floor. Of the seven flights of stairs in this building, it may be said that they all have the merit of being well lighted. There are none of them, except the servants' flight, which are not so placed as to confront a window. At the head of a double staircase is what is called the Grand Promenade, 100 feet long by 30 wide, its greatest length being from north to south, and a row of iron columns running nearly through its centre. No such promenade is to be found in any American hotel. At the southern extremity are the parlors, fronting upon Jackson street, 100 feet in length and 24 in width. For convenience sake, they are divided into three rooms, with folding doors between them, the middle one being about fifty feet long; the two others twenty-five each. In each of these suites of parlors is a beautifully carved white marble mantel-piece. The ceilings of these rooms are ornately frescoed, so as to correspond with the carpet, which has centre pieces of fruits, flowers, etc.

THE DINING-ROOM.

If the office is the head of a hotel, the dining-room and kitchen are the stomach thereof, and with everything that is needed to make them perfect.

OF WHAT IT IS COMPOSED.

In order to give a better idea of the dimensions of this immense building than can be obtained from the foregoing description, and to enable the reader to feel its bigness, the following figures are given: There went into the Pacific Hotel 7,000,000 brick; 12,000 cubic feet of limestone and 40,000 of sandstone. In connection with these, 10,000 barrels of lime, and 3,000 yards of sand, were used. Over 500 tons of cast and wrought-iron, in the shape of beams, etc.; 2,625,500 square feet of lumber, were used in joists, rafters, beams, etc.; 237,000 in inside blinds and shutters; 87,000 lineal feet, or 15 miles in base boards, and 13,000 in door and window casings, and 52,000 square feet of walnut and maple flooring, and 66,000 of walnut and ash ceiling, covering jointly two and three quarter acres. There were 980 windows, 1,070 doors and locks, and 19,415 pairs of butts and hinges. The price of all this carpentry work was $220,000. In connection with the plumbing work, there were used a mile and three quarters of iron-soil pipe, and nearly as much of lead, hot and cold water pipe, 50,987 pounds of lead pipe, 5,000 pounds of solder. There went into the building over eight miles of gas-pipe, and there were 436 chandeliers with 1,618 burners, and 830 brackets with 1,180 burners, making 2,798 in all. There were two-fifths of a mile of speaking-tubes, and thirty-eight miles of wire. There were put in of all kinds, 33,138 square feet of glass, being nearly four-fifths of an acre. Of slate and marble tiling, there is more than half an acre. There are also 320 marble mantels and grates. The contract price of the building was $878,339.94. Adding to that the value of brick, marble, etc., obtained from the old building, amounting to $122,513, the total cost of exclusive of furnishing, of course, was $1,000,857.94. The mason and stone setting cost $196,600, the lime and sandstone $150,000, the painting and glazing $52,000, and the plastering $65,000.

THE FIRE DEPARTMENT.

Several Members of the Force Dismissed for Misconduct.

The Board of Police held a regular semi-weekly meeting yesterday afternoon, President Mason in the chair. Present, Commissioners Wright and Sheridan. The session was devoted to matters pertaining to the Fire Department.

The resignations of Michael Selmer, assistant foreman of No. 2, and of Herman Stoehl, of No. 3, were received and adopted.

Peter H. Kanner, pipeman of No. 11, was appointed a member of the regular department.

Charles Pratt, driver of No. 12, was discharged for injuring the city's property, and having been intoxicated.

Knud L. Boyson, pipeman of No. 6, was accused of disorderly conduct, and the evidence showing him to have been guilty, he was dismissed.

Andrew Lendrum, pipeman of No. 6, was discharged for neglecting his duty.

Edward Barrett, driver of Hose No. 18, and William Quigley, driver of Engine No. 18, were proven guilty of having been disorderly, and were "verbally thrashed" by the President.

The charge of being absent from duty without leave, preferred against Dennis J. Sweenie, foreman of Engine Company No. 14, by the Second Assistant Fire Marshal, was dismissed after a long discussion.

Isaiah Washington, colored engineer of Company No. 21, was discharged from the service for inefficiency and incompetency. His offense consisted of allowing the fires of his engine to burn out while pumping out the basement of the Government building, and thereby narrowly escaping an explosion.

The resignations of Gonzalo E. Tarbox and Thomas A. Burnhards were accepted.

Commissioner Mason read a paper of his own, in which he set forth reasons for forming a favorable impression of the Cole engine, which was given a trial on the 13th. The document was ordered to be spread on the record of proceedings.

The rules were suspended in order to permit of the acceptance of the resignation of Officer Charles Gartner, of the Ninth Precinct, against whom charges had been informally made.

The Board then adjourned.

Attention.

We are discontinuing the jobbing trade for want of room for our rapidly increasing retail business, and offer the following goods at much less than market rates: Thirty cruites assorted W. G. dinner and tea ware, Edward Clark's Irwin; 6 crates assorted W. G. ware, Wood & Clark's Irwin; 6 crates assorted gold and yellow ware, lamps, chimneys, burners, wick, glass sets, mirrors, flasks, etc. Lists and prices furnished to country dealers upon application. Scott & Orington Brothers, No. 210 West Madison street, Chicago.

Meeting with Universal Approval.

The rapid and extraordinarily large sales that have attended the introduction of the Elmwood and Warwick collars are a token of the universal approval which they have met with the consumers. These true critics can appreciate a good article which they have found in these goods.

The Great Forepaugh Shows

will march in grand procession this morning to the corner of State and Twenty-second streets, where performances will be given this afternoon and evening. To-morrow (Saturday), three grand performances will be given—morning, afternoon, and evening.

Postal-Cards, Stamps, Etc.

Those who are in search of postal-cards, revenue stamps, check-paper, and proprietary stamps, can always find them for sale at the Chicago Savings Institution, on the northwest corner of Dearborn and Madison-sts.

A Fine Carriage.

One of the finest carriages in Chicago, and several other styles of carriages, will be sold at the Boston Carriage Mart, No. 222 West Washington street, this morning, by Wm. A. Butters & Co., Auctioneers.

Insanity as a Defense.

From the Detroit Post, May 10.

The first case under a law passed at the recent session of the Legislature came up in the Wayne Circuit Court yesterday. The law referred to provides that whenever any person shall be tried for murder, assault with intent to kill, or arson, and shall set up either by himself or by counsel insanity as a defense, it shall be the duty of the jury to find specially whether such defendant was or was not insane, and, in case he shall be acquitted on the ground of insanity, shall be committed to the insane hospital connected with the State Prison. A colored man, giving his name as King Solomon, was arrested last March for committing a grievous assault upon one George Robinson, in the Township of Brownstown. Complaint was made against him for assault with intent to kill, and he was tried in the Wayne Circuit Court yesterday. There was no doubt about his insanity. He did not interpose that plea himself, but his counsel did so for him. When called upon to make his statement before the jury, he went off in a rambling discourse about everything under the sun, except the matter in hand. The Court was finally compelled to stop him. Under the above law the jury were required to find specially whether or not the defendant was insane. They had no trouble in arriving at that conclusion, and returned a verdict of "not guilty by reason of the insanity." The prisoner was therefore remanded back to jail to be sent to the State Prison Insane Hospital.

A FINE PAINTING.

Another Excellent Effort by a Chicago Artist—Mr. H. C. Ford's American Forest Scene.

Though little individual mention has been made of the work of our Chicago artists recently in the columns of the daily papers, it is not, therefore, to be concluded that they have been doing nothing for the past six months. Elkins' great picture of "Shasta Butte" has gone to the Exposition at Vienna, and that event was the last noticed in the papers. The next is the completion by Mr. H. C. Ford of a large painting, showing the interior of an American forest during the early autumn. He has found no name for it which shall justly characterize it; but it tells its own tale of a mild hazy afternoon in October in Western New York or Pennsylvania, a characteristic bit of American forest scenery. This subject is one which has been attempted by very many artists, both here and elsewhere, and occasionally with a certain measure of success. The contrary, however, has been generally the case, for the simple reason that the subject has been beyond the artist's execution. The grouping may be good, and the coloring either tame or exaggerated; the details trivial and the light so diffused as to destroy the character of the picture, any one of which defects may be observed in many of the paintings of this subject by our local painters. To speak generally of Mr. Ford's painting, he has avoided these temptations. The coloring is strong and positive, but not exaggerated; the light effect is concentrated without being sensational; the details carefully studied without any shade of preraphaelism; and the distance, even to the spectator who sees the picture under the unfavorable conditions incident to glaring white walls and a small office, admirably preserved.

The size of the canvas, 78x36 inches, has given the artist ample scope. It has also necessitated the presentation of the objects in the foreground close to the point of vision, and hence the details of the objects are minutely and carefully studied. An afternoon sun throws a pale light upon the dark trunk of a linden tree, round which are trained a Virginia creeper, the leaves already changed to scarlet. The ray of light brightens a patch of green moss upon the point of a rock and on the bark of the tree, bringing the verdure into stronger contrast with the dark brown of the stem. The light just touches the surface of a small brook, and falls full upon a great red oak, the monarch of the glen. A beech offers an exquisite contrast to the sombre hue of the lordly oak, relieving the picture admirably. A beech is always a tempting object to a painter, and here it seems to have been dropped in just where it was wanted, the upper part of the trunk hidden behind the larger tree in front of it. The bright gray of its bark has been faithfully reproduced by the artist, and this is relieved by turn by a solitary wood-pecker whose gorgeous plumage blends in entire harmony with the hues of autumn overhead. A hickory of the shell-bark variety stands in the shadow of the forest beyond the linden, while other trees have been worked in with considerable skill in the back-ground. While the interest of the picture must necessarily be concentrated upon these nearer objects, a certain amount of variety is demanded in them, and hence the artist has chosen to place four different varieties of denizens in close proximity. This under other circumstances would look like pedantry, but from the nearness of the view she fact is lost sight of in the general harmony of the picture and the skill exhibited in the grouping, which utterly negatives the suggestion of a botanical exposition. This, too, is helped by the evident aim of the artist to sustain the interest in other points of the picture. A willow, where foliage alone is to be seen, appropriately stands over the brook, and the lighter shades of the autumnal tints blend with the ruddier leaves of the larger trees in perfect harmony. Through the roofing of foliage overhead, can be seen here and there occasional glimpses of the blue sky above, and here again the artist has exhibited the close following of nature which constitutes true art.

The distances are maintained throughout with good judgment and effect, and the trees stand out with stereoscopic roundness. One can see down the ravine through which the brook trickles for half a mile or more, and it looks cool, calm, and exceedingly pleasant.

The only evidences of life are a squirrel perched on the stump of a broken bough, the woodpecker scanning the beech bark for his dinner, a group of rabbits partially concealed by a boulder, and a blue-jay flying across the ravine just within sight. Everything is very still and tranquil. Autumn or five leaves have fallen into the stream and are floating slowly down it, toward one, and the illusion that they are gradually approaching does not fade through a long study of the picture. There are but two evidences of human interference in the scene, one being the suggestion of a pathway down the ravine, and the other an old mark on the oak where some traveler has blazed his way through the wood.

This is Mr. Ford's first painting for exhibition since the fire, and represents a year's occasional labor. It does great credit to him, and may be pronounced the best picture of this character that he has yet produced, and certainly one of the best that has ever been produced by a Chicago artist. It has stood the criticism of many of the painter's brother artists, and meets with warm commendations from the few who have been privileged to inspect it. It is to be on exhibition at Mr. Aitken's Art Institute, and is worth studying carefully.

THE CITY HALL PLANS.

Some of the Merits and Defects of Internal Arrangement Pointed Out.

Since the consideration of the Court-House plans began, nearly all the criticism has been devoted to external appearances, and very little of it to internal fitness, except in some cases where the faults of construction were so gross as to challenge notice. But, now that the number of plans has been cut down from forty odd to half a dozen, it may not be amiss to look at some of the merits and defects of internal arrangement, for, after all, the Court-House is to live in, not to be looked at. The mechanism of a watch is of more importance than the cases, and the brain than the face. It matters very little if the building is an architectural monstrosity, so long as the offices it contains are conveniently arranged, well lighted and ventilated, and of easy access.

Randall, in his plan, has provided for four courts, a feature which is objectionable, among other reasons, because it consumes a good deal of space. Even with them, however, he has a great deal of unappropriated room, which can be used in future contingencies, so that the amount of space taken up in courts is not so hurtful after all, while it has the advantage of enabling him to light all his inside rooms directly, and not resort to doing it through other rooms, or across corridors. The arrangement of the rooms in regard to one another is very convenient, and he seems to have studied more closely than his competitors the requirements of the different boards and officers. There are two rooms in the City Hall with which special care should be taken, since they are so much frequented—the Collector's and the Water Rents. Mr. Randall has made them spacious, of easy access, and exceedingly well lighted. The Paymaster's office, which is also crowded several times a year, is furnished with two approaches, one for entrance and one for exit. In the court-room the Judges are, with one exception, placed with their backs to blank walls, so that the sun may not fall into the faces of the lawyers. The vaults are carried directly up from the bottom, and there are none which are supported upon posts, to fall with the first fire. It is unfortunate that some of the corridors end nowhere,—run against blank walls. Of exits and entrances there are a plenty. This architect has conformed very closely to the specifications of the Board of Public Works, from which some others have widely departed.

Dixon & Hamilton have one central court, 100 feet square, and since they use up less ground in that way than Randall does, have even more space room than he. Their plan differs from most of the others in having a sub-basement, where the engines, etc., are located, and with excellent arrangements for the receiving and moving of fuel. Generally, the rooms are well and conveniently placed, and this and the preceding plan seem to be the best of the lot, so far, of course, as internal arrangements are considered. One difficulty with Dixon & Hamilton is that some of their rooms will be too dark. Some, of subordinate importance, like the Harbor Master's, get a poor light from the corridor. The Water Department and Collector's office get light only from a few windows at one end of the room, and will not, therefore, be fully satisfactory. A few slight changes would remedy most of the defects in this plan.

Mr. Gay seems to have room enough, but he too has failed to furnish sufficient light for all of his rooms. Some of the sure-rooms are badly, and the Collector's room is too dark. Some of his groups of offices are not as compact as in other plans, the Board of Education, for instance, straggling a little too much. Still, it is a difficult problem to so arrange these rooms as to satisfy every one. The arrangement of his vaults is very good, and so is that of the windows, but on the whole, he is not equal to the others who have been mentioned.

Messrs. Wheelock & Thomas have a very showy front, a fine-looking one, and its admirers say it will make an admirable place for public meetings, though that is hardly one of the functions of a court-house. But inside it has certain radical defects; not only vaults, but also some of the interior walls, are supported by posts. These walls are not carried all the way up from the foundation, but begin on the upper floors. To repeat the blunders of the Custom-House would be folly. It is a fault, though a less serious one, that the County Clerk's office is too small for the amount of business which has to be transacted in it.

Karls' has bad light, and is badly cut up. Others, which seem to be now disposed of, are also badly lighted, defectively arranged, and put the Judges on the wrong side of the room, so that they have the light at their backs. Tilly disregarded the specifications, and does not have room enough, even though he has, at several points, encroached upon the streets.

The best thing for the Committee to do, in order to unite comfort and beauty, is probably to take the outside from one plan, and the inside from another, and see if they cannot thus arrive at a harmonious and satisfactory whole.

MILWAUKEE AVENUE EXTENSION.

Conference Between Property Owners and City Officials—The Improvement of the Street Demanded.

A number of property owners waited on the Board of Public Works, yesterday afternoon, for the purpose of securing the extension of Milwaukee avenue from the corner of Kinzie and Desplaines streets to the corner of Lake and Canal streets. Mayor Medill and Corporation Counsel Tuley were present.

Commissioner Carter said that in 1868 an assessment had been levied for making the improvement. The original assessment was $114,-812; amount uncollected, $41,892.47; total collections, $72,909.53; amount paid for land, $26,-976; for buildings, $26,495; for leasehold, $2,550; for cost of proceedings, $500; total, $56,521, leaving on hand, $16,388.53. Amounts unpaid: Land, $51,476; buildings, $7,150; total, $58,626.

A member of the delegation asked why there had been so much delay in making the improvement. He and others had paid their portions of the assessment four years ago, and had heard nothing of the extension since.

Another member wanted to know why the Chicago, Milwaukee & St. Paul Railroad has been allowed to construct their tracks so as to intersect the proposed extension without being compelled to sign a contract to build a viaduct in the event of the improvement being made.

Ald. Kehoe said he had paid $1,200 on the assessment, and had never heard anything from it since. He wanted to know why the city could not compel the other property-holders to pay up.

Commissioner Prindiville said the delay had been occasioned by the refusal of certain persons to pay the assessment.

Corporation Counsel Tuley said it was doubtful if the property-owners could be compelled to pay the assessment. He knew all about the assessment, as he was on the side of the contestants when it was made in 1868. It came before the Courts in the spring of 1869, and it was shown in evidence that the assessment roll had been made erroneously. It having been taken from the City Collector's office after business hours, and the figures changed in some important respects.

Commissioner Carter said the roll was not taken from the City Clerk's office after business hours.

Corporation Counsel Tuley continued. The Court held from the evidence that the assessment was invalided for that reason. The matter was brought before the Supreme Court, and the judgment of the lower court was sustained. The same assessment was still pending. If the parties who had their property condemned at the time of the original assessment were willing to accept the amount allowed them for damages, the City Treasurer could be compelled to pay them, and if the parties who had not paid their assessments were willing to do so, the improvement could be carried out. If they refused to pay, the only recourse for the city was to pay back the assessments that had been paid, and wait for a new assessment before making the extension.

A delegate asked if interest would be allowed on the money paid in, and was informed by Commissioner Prindeville that the city did not allow interest in such cases.

Ald. Sweet said that he would pay his assessment if the majority of the property-owners favored the extension. He believed, however, that a majority of them were not in favor of the so-called improvement, and those that had paid their assessments would be willing to receive them back and say nothing about the extension. The benefits that would be derived from it would be small in comparison with the expense. A viaduct of 2,500 feet would be necessary, and property would be greatly damaged thereby.

Ald. Kehoe said that the delay was unjust. He knew that several people had borrowed money to pay their assessments, and were paying interest on it.

In answer to Ald. Sweet, Commissioner Prindiville said that the Northwestern Railroad Company could be compelled to pay its share of the cost of constructing a viaduct over Milwaukee avenue.

Ald. Sweet said that, if such was the case, he would withdraw his opposition. He doubted it, however. He did not feel that it would be just to compel property-owners to pay from $125,000 to $150,000 for a viaduct. He believed that the Pittsburgh, St. Louis & Cincinnati Railroad could be made to pay its share of viaduct expense, and, therefore, little expense would devolve on the city.

Corporation Counsel Tuley suggested that a paper be circulated among the property-owners in order to ascertain who would pay the assessment if assurances from the city that the extension would be made immediately.

Mr. Bichberg said that he knew that the property-owners would willingly pay up if the city promised to make the improvement without unnecessary delay.

Commissioner Carter said it was an open question whether a viaduct would be needed at Desplaines street. He thought that it was not necessary.

Commissioner Prindiville said that the difference in cost between the construction of a viaduct at Desplaines street and one at Milwaukee avenue would not be over $50,000. He believed that it would now cost less to the city to push the improvement than to stop it.

The Commissioner asked how many of the delegates present would take back their assessments and allow the extension to drop.

The responses were unanimously in favor of the speedy completion of the improvement.

Ald. Sweet and Kehoe and Commissioner Prindiville stated that property-owners would be willing to give up their land to the city at the the assessed valuation of 1868. It had not increased in value since.

It was decided to circulate papers among the property-owners, in accordance with the suggestion of Corporation Counsel Tuley.

The meeting then adjourned.

THE DANGERS OF CAR-COUPLING.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

SIR: The papers announce the crushing of William Baker while coupling cars, near the corner of Wells and North Water streets, in this city. When it is remembered that every railroad centre crushes or cripples one man per month, the aggregate yearly would make up a list of killed and wounded equal to the official report of a grand battle. Some blame should surely attach to our well-educated and intelligent railroad managers, who are indifferent on the subject of arrangements for coupling freight-cars, and put forth their great powers only to increase the earnings and dividends of their roads. Only a man killed, and many others waiting to fill his place, is nothing to seriously annoy the stockholders; but, to the man who steps over the body of another to take his place between freight-cars, the feeling is different. He accepts the place because necessity compels him,—some dear ones depending on him for a living; and, while accepting the company's money, he feels that there is no bond of affection between them. The company does not care for him, and he feels the same toward it. It is obvious that man in sympathy with their employers would, at times, save many hundreds of dollars of company property, which is now let go to destruction because they are not responsible for and it is not their business to look after it.

As the dangers of handling cars increase with accumulating business, the best men get killed or crippled. They are always anxious for getting their work done in time, and take all chances to accomplish a coupling, rather than delay the engine by having it back up a second time. The time will come when only desperate and reckless men will handle cars to couple them. The stockholders will then perceive that the losses will increase, and they and their customers will suffer. Coupling cars will become disreputable, because careful and steady men will gradually withdraw from situations of such danger, and from the contact of the desperadoes who will come to take a job to supply the means to go on another spree. Is it not better to retain and encourage the good and brave men whom they have now, by showing some concern in the matter of coupling-devices? Every one of the employees of such company will find his breast filling with pleasant feelings for his employers, and every family in the land will feel better towards that road, for there is none but is liable to have some one in whom it is interested in this perilous position.

Let us hope that some one of the many coupling-devices which are now offering daily to railroads will be adopted. Yours truly,

JOHN WHITEFORD.

BURGLARIES AT MORRIS, ILL.

MORRIS, Ill., May 14, 1873.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

SIR: Eight burglaries have been committed in this place during the last three days. The burglars seem to be perfectly familiar with the location of the rooms and closets in each house, going to drawers and boxes in which money is kept, and helping themselves with impunity. They have carried off money, silver, cutlery, entire suits of clothes, and other articles. Last night, in one house, they dropped a newly sharpened dirk-knife and a sheath. Three persons were arrested to-day on suspicion, but subsequently released, as no proof could be brought to convict them. As yet the burglars are at liberty, but every effort is being made to ferret out the guilty parties. Should they continue their operations, they will undoubtedly meet with a warm reception somewhere, as the entire city is alarmed and on the look-out for them.

MISS KATIE STERLING.

DIXON, Ill., May 14, 1873.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

SIR: In your issue of May 6 I find some errors respecting one of those killed by the falling of the bridge here. Will you please correct the following statement? "Miss Katie Sterling was only 15 years of age, worked in the factory, and assisted in supporting her mother." I am a neighbor of Mr. Sterling, and our beloved and beautiful Katie had a father and mother, who deeply mourn the loss of their child. Katie never worked in the factory. She was reared fondly and carefully. She was the favorite of her schoolmates, and worshiped by her gentlemen. I am very respectfully yours,

MRS. B. F. BURR.

President Grant and Gen. Sheridan were present at the reunion of the Grand Army of the Republic, at New Haven, yesterday.

An additional refinement of criminal nomenclature is proposed by the New York Senate, which subdivides the crime of murder—hitherto the highest grade of homicide—into two degrees.

The St. Louis Congressional Convention has adopted a resolution to the effect that it has been generously entertained by St. Louis, and that it thinks the subjects on which it has been so eloquently addressed by the citizens of that city ought to receive the attention of Congress.

The suits against the Union Pacific Railway and the Credit Mobilier are to be conducted by the counsel of the Government on the ground that the original subscriptions to the road were never really paid; that the receipts given for them were fraudulent; and that the dividends of bonds, stock, and cash paid on them were misappropriated and must be accounted for.

At the Episcopal Convention in Boston, yesterday, the Rev. Dr. Paddock was chosen Bishop of Massachusetts. His competitor, Dr. DeKoven, would probably have received the election had he not been objectionable to the laity on account of his belief in the personal presence of Christ in the elements of the Holy Sacrament.

Lusignani, who murdered his wife for her marital infidelity, was hanged yesterday at Morristown, N. J. To-day, Nixon, of New York, and O'Neil, of this State, are to be executed. O'Neil confesses that he murdered Rexford, and says that he did it while under the the combined influence of whisky, and a woman of ill-fame who had been the companion of himself and his victim.

The General Assembly of the Northern Presbyterian Church is now in session at Baltimore. The Southern Assembly is meeting at Little Rock, Ark., and the Cumberland Assembly at Huntsville, Ala. Three hundred and seventy-five delegates are present at Baltimore. The election of Moderator, to which great interest attaches, as it is the highest office in the gift of the Church, resulted in the choice of the Rev. Dr. Howard Crosby, of New York.

All the saloon-keepers were informed by the police, yesterday, that the 11 o'clock ordinance was in operation, and that their places must be closed by that time. Most of the dealers complied with the notification, but, for the purpose of making a test case, one of the most prominent saloon-keepers in the city refused to close his establishment, and was arrested at 11 o'clock last night. It is his intention to carry the matter to the Supreme Court for final decision.

A solution of the transportation question was offered yesterday by President Allen, of the Railway Association now meeting in New York, and consisting of Superintendents of Southern railways. He said the farmers must be flanked by according them as many of their demands as ... Up to able without injuring railway interests ... must reduce their the point of loss, the ... This is certainly a rates as much which the farmers can be flanked without being defeated, and by which both contestants might gain the victory.

The system of grain inspection fastened on the Chicago Inspectors by the State Legislature seems to be creating more and more dissatisfaction among the shippers along the canal. Yesterday the shippers of Joliet, Peru, and intervening places met and resolved that they would escape the grievance of which they complain by sending their grain East by the Joliet Cutoff. This many of them have already begun to do, and to what extent appears from the statement that one hundred car-loads of grain were shipped in this way by one firm in four days.

The Canada Pacific Railway Investigating Committee, which has neglected to meet for several days, has been peremptorily ordered by the Dominion Parliament to reassemble. This action is caused by the discovery of some letters which give tangibility to the charges of corruption against Sir Hugh Allan, the President of the Canada Pacific Railway. It is said they prove that the Government awarded him and his associates the contract for building the road in consideration of their expenditure of $360,000 to carry the elections for the Government.

There can be no doubt that the Carlists, at the battle of Puello de Eraul, on the 5th inst., gained a great victory,—a victory all the greater because it was snatched from defeat. Their Gen. Dorregaray had the nerve to turn upon the Government troops at the end of a four days' retreat, in which they had pursued him so hotly that in sixty hours his soldiers had but twelve hours' rest. The decisive moment of the conflict was the charge of Dorregaray's chosen cavalry, composed almost wholly of the sons of the Catholic nobility, which swept the Government troops off the field. In his official report, Gen. Dorregaray puts the loss of the Republicans at 112 killed, 300 wounded, and 30 prisoners. He lost 18 killed and 27 wounded.

The White Star line of ocean steamers has just avoided, by good luck, what might have resulted in serious disaster. The steamer Oceanic, which sailed for Liverpool a week ago, was obliged to return before she had passed Sandy Hook, owing to a crack in one of her cylinders. Fortunately, the accident happened in time to prevent any serious damage. But suppose it had occurred in mid-ocean, or during a heavy gale, where it could not have been practicable to repair the crack! Again, what kind of inspection was it that allowed the vessel to depart? The fact that this crack was discovered before she had gone twenty miles does not speak very well for the thoroughness with which this Company examines its vessels. Having been warned by one terrible disaster, common prudence should have dictated to them to be rigidly careful in the future on all points.

The Chicago produce markets were less active yesterday, and generally weak. Mess pork was dull and declined 50c per brl, closing at $16.45@16.50 cash, and $16.75@16.80 seller July. Lard was quiet and steady at $9.05 seller June, and $9.30 seller July. Meats were inactive and unchanged at 6¼@6½c for shoulders; 8¼@8½c for short ribs; 8¾@8¾c for short clear; and 10@11¼ for sweet pickled hams. Highwines were in fair demand, and steady at 89½c per gallon. Lake freights were moderately active, and weak at 5½c for corn to Buffalo. Flour was more active at unchanged prices. Wheat was unsettled and 1½c lower, closing at $1.30¾ cash, and $1.29¾ seller June. Corn was less active, and 1¾c lower, closing at 40¼c cash and 41¾c seller June. Oats were active and a shade easier, closing at 32¾c cash, and 33¾@34c seller June. Rye was quiet and steady at 69½c. Barley was more active, but weak at 71@82½c for inferior to good No. 2. Hogs were lower, selling at $4.75@5.10 for poor to choice. Cattle were quiet. Sheep sold at a slight advance.

About 130 of the superintendents of railway-machine shops and master-workmen in various departments of railway operation and construction are quietly holding a convention at Baltimore, which deserves, at least, as much attention as some of the Congressional and commercial meetings which make so much more noise. They form the American Master Mechanics' Association, and meet once a year to discuss the unsettled questions of railway mechanics and chemistry, and to listen to papers on these subjects prepared by experts. At their present session they have had before them such questions as how incrustations are formed in locomotive bodies, and how to deal with them; how to analyze the waters from whose mineral elements these incrustations result; which fuel is the best, hard coal, soft coal, or wood, and how most advantageously to generate steam from them; how to make and use continuous train-brakes; what are the relative advantages of narrow and ordinary gauge-tracks; protecting track from snow-drifts by planting trees along the line; how to remove wrecks and insure bridges; and what is the cause of boiler-explosions. All these are subjects of the highest importance not only to railway managers but to railway travelers, whose very lives depend upon their intelligent discussion and solution.

MR. HESING'S NEW DEPARTURE.

The mass meeting of the Germans of the Seventeenth Ward, which was held on Wednesday evening, is probably worth more attention than is usually given to ward meetings. It seems to be the first step in a new political departure of the German citizens of Chicago, which has been carefully and deliberately organized. In its local bearings, the movement is an outgrowth of the enforcement of the Sunday ordinance, though it may reach out into a broader political field before it comes to a stop. For many years past, and under almost every city administration, there have been faint efforts to enforce this law, but none so persistent and successful as the present. The agitation of the question dates back several months, when Mr. Henry Greenebaum organized the "Law and Order" committees for the suppression of crime. This movement was diverted from its original purpose of exercising an influence upon juries and courts to that of closing the saloons on Sunday. The temperance men took hold of it, and ultimately secured the co-operation of the Mayor and the City Government. The saloons have been closed on Sunday more generally than ever before, and the enforcement of the ordinance has been equally strict as against the German beer-saloons of the North Side. The policy has naturally incensed the opposition of the Germans, who have never before been seriously molested in their Sunday beer, and they have somehow concluded that the Republican party is responsible for what they regard an infringement of their rights. This sentiment of opposition suddenly broke into fever heat a couple of weeks ago, when the Mayor revoked the license of one Fisher, who keeps a beer-garden on the North Side, near Lincoln Park. Fisher's place is represented to have been reputable, and a favorite place of resort for German families of a Sunday afternoon and evening. His business during the remainder of the week was unimportant, and to keep open at all with profit was to keep open on Sunday. The Germans hold that the revocation of his license was a direct blow at them and their national customs, since they had reason to believe that liquor-saloons all over the city were practically open for liquor-selling, and because Fisher's license was the only one that had been revoked for a breach of the ordinance. The Mayor subsequently restored Fisher's license on the promise that he would close Sundays, but this action does not seem to have allayed the excitement among the Germans.

On the morning after the revoking of Fisher's license, the Staats-Zeitung printed a leading article arraigning the Republican party for its "Mucker" proclivities, and calling upon the Germans to organize outside of it for the purpose of electing next fall a Council opposed to the Sunday ordinance. This article was regarded as rather following the German sentiment than as an attempt to lead it. The meeting of Wednesday night was the first movement toward organization under the plan proposed. Messrs. Hesing, Knobloesdorff, Francis A. Hoffmann, Jr., and others, there gave expression to sentiments that have been freely and generally declared among the Germans for some weeks back. Their utterances were broader, probably, than the facts will warrant in denouncing the Americans generally as Know-Nothings. The evident excitement of the speakers made them ignore in part the real merits of the controversy, which embraces the right of Germans to drink beer on Sunday. Their intention to contest this right at the polls was clearly brought out, however, and there can be no doubt that the privilege which they propose to exercise is legitimate.

The programme of the new movement is pretty clearly defined, though Mr. Hesing, who is the leader, only gave a vague indication of it in his speech. As this speech is reported in the Staats-Zeitung, Mr. Hesing repeated a conversation between himself and an American citizen, in which the latter accused him of desiring to break up the Republican party, and called upon him to remember what that party had done for the Germans. "And you must remember," answered Mr. Hesing, pertinently, "what the Germans have done for you." Further on, following the Staats-Zeitung report of the speech, Mr. Hesing said:

> It is the interest and the duty of the German Republicans, who have heretofore been in the majority, to let the Democrats and the Liberals step to the foreground, to give them the custody of the offices. It makes no difference to me under what banner I go into the fight, if the flag only waves on to victory. The whole Northwest, yes the whole country, is looking to Chicago at this moment full of expectation. For the cause for which we fight is not only the cause of the German, but the cause of the workingman. And every German who is not with us in this cause is a traitor to Germankind.

Everybody will recognize that these utterances are significant, though their import needs explanation. Locally, it means this: That the Germans shall break off from the Republican party, allow the Democrats to make the next ticket for city officers, and then support and elect the men whom they shall put forward. This, in brief, is Mr. Hesing's programme. He does not stand alone in the departure. He counts among his co-laborers most of the county officials in Cook County and all the Republicans who owe their places to Mr. Hesing's influence. He also counts a large number of the non-political Germans, who have freely declared of late that they "will never vote the Republican ticket again." The movement is fairly started. Among the incidental efforts is that of uniting the Germans and Irish in the fall campaign, which will be an undertaking of considerable difficulty. The programme has been shrewdly outlined, and foreshadows a powerful and formidable local organization.

Whether or not Mr. Hesing and his followers propose to extend this movement against the Republican party beyond the limits of Chicago, remains to be seen. There are several circumstances that would indicate as much. When Mr. Hesing speaks of the whole Northwest and the whole country as watching the Chicago movement expectantly, he would seem to indicate a general movement of the same nature to extend throughout the country, and to rebuke what the Germans regard as the Puritan element in the Republican party. This conclusion would also be reached from Mr. Hesing's expression: "There are no Colfaxes and Oakes Ameses among us [i. e., the Germans], and, if there were any, they would be thrown overboard with contempt, and no public receptions would be prepared for them as for a Colfax." It is not to be supposed that so staunch a party man as Mr. Hesing would take this position unless he saw signs elsewhere of a general breaking up of parties. It is perhaps too early to say how much this revolt will amount to, but it is entirely fitting that the question of Sunday beer in Chicago should be decided on its own merits, and not mixed up with the issues of reconstruction in Louisiana, or the Modoc war in Oregon.

LAWRENCE—CRAIG.

We print a very calm and considerate address issued by the officers of the Knox County Agricultural Associations upon the subject of the judicial election. The address is directed to the farmers of the Fifth Supreme Judicial District. It is written by gentlemen who are personally acquainted with Judge Lawrence and his competitor, Mr. A. M. Craig. It refers to the history of both. The public life of Judge Lawrence has been exclusively at the Bar and on the Bench. Twelve or more years ago, he was elected Circuit Judge in Warren and Knox Counties, and so acceptable was he as a Judge, and so conspicuous was he for his personal integrity and fitness for the office, that he was nine years ago designated by the general wish of all men of all parties for the office of Judge of the Supreme Court, and upon the presentation of his name he was elected without any formal opposition. During his term he has won the highest respect and admiration for his learning, his ability, and his integrity,—the three desirable qualities in a Judge. The address gives the history of his action in the case of the Chicago & Alton Railway Company. The decision was made by the unanimous concurrence of the nine Judges,—not a dissenting voice on the Bench. From this unusual unanimity it follows, that the sections of the act of the Legislature involved in that case were so badly constructed that no other decision was possible. Had the Court taken the responsibility of deciding otherwise, it is reasonable to suppose that the Supreme Court of the United States would have overruled it. The decision in the Chicago & Alton Railway case avoided two years' delay. It enabled the Court to point out the defects of the law of 1869, so that the Legislature, then in session, could amend it properly. The decision of the Court was like a flood of light to the Legislature, and the Farmers' Convention at Springfield substantially indorsed it. The new law may be said to have originated with the Supreme Court. It certainly was indicated in the opinion delivered by Judge Lawrence, and, when cases tried under that law come before the Supreme Court for revision, the wisdom of the decision in the Alton Railway case will be evident. This address states the point involved in this choice of Judge—whether it is not better to have a Court that will render judgment that will stand fire in the court of last resort, and will not be overruled on appeal, than to have a Court that will render judgments that cannot be sustained.

We invite a careful reading of the review of the public life of Mr. Craig, whose professional business has been chiefly that of a railroad attorney, and whose election to-day over Judge Lawrence would not be mourned by any monopoly whatsoever. The Convention which selected Mr. Craig as a candidate was gotten up in a most extraordinary way. It was packed by persons having no constituencies, and was manipulated by station agents and others having close and direct relations with railways. It did not represent the farmers as a class, and, as the signers of the address say, is not regarded as of the least importance by the farmers of Knox County.

The War Department has done a very ungracious thing in advertising for sale a number of Revolutionary relics. The national honor must have sunk to a very low pitch when it cares no longer to be reminded of the brave deeds of our ancestors, and gives public notice to junk-dealers that for a paltry sum they can carry off the guns and other national trophies captured at Saratoga and Yorktown. These momentoes which are thus offered for sale are in the Watervliet Arsenal, and embrace English howitzers cast in 1744, having upon them the arms of the the Three Kingdoms, and captured by Mad Anthony Wayne at the storming of Stony Point; a half-dozen field-pieces of the French Revolution, cast in 1793, each bearing the motto of that struggle, "Liberte, Egalite;" guns of the French monarchy of Louis XVI., cast in Strasbourg, with the Bourbon arms upon them; and the siege guns surrendered to the American forces by the Convention of Saratoga, in 1777, and at the capitulation of Yorktown, in 1781. These time-honored relics of the Revolution and momentoes of the times that tried men's souls take up but little room, and cannot bring to the Government more than a paltry sum. The loss in honor and national respect cannot be offset by the insignificant sum which will result from their sale. After the mercenary greed and corruption which have run riot in every department of the Government during the past three or four years, it is not surprising that a point has at last been reached where the Government does not care to be reminded of those days when honesty and patriotism were held in greater esteem than fraud and corruption. It is due to the memory of the past, and to the glorious events of our Revolutionary history, that the State of New York should now step in and buy these relics which the General Government does not care to preserve, and thus partially avert a national disgrace.

NOTES AND OPINION.

The Republicans have all the officers of the Ohio Constitutional Convention, viz.: President, Morrison R. Waite, of Toledo, who was one of our counsel before the Geneva Tribunal, and who was unanimously elected delegate by the people of his district; Secretary, Dudley W. Rhodes, of Delaware, who was four years Clerk of the Ohio Senate; Sergeant-at-Arms, James B. Wilbur, of Cleveland, an officer of the last Senate. The correspondent of the Cincinnati Commercial says of the Convention:

> Taken together, it is a fine-looking body of men, a majority of whom one would judge to be on the shady side of 50. Half a dozen ex-Congressmen, an ex-Judge of the Supreme Court, several who have been Judges of Common Pleas, the present Attorney-General of the State, and numerous ex-legislators of the State are among the members. Gray hairs, and spectacles, and bald heads are frequent.

—Philetus Sawyer's back pay, $4,171.40, was refunded in $4,163.87 cancelled bonds and a cash draft for $67.53, as certified by Charles Schriber, Cashier of the First National Bank, Oshkosh, Wis. It appears that Philetus took the money home with him, and held it for a time, thinking to donate it to Lawrence University, but, on reflection, he concluded to refund it.

—There are "party reasons" why the ends of justice should be defeated, in Minnesota, in the case of a defaulting State Treasurer, but the St. Paul Dispatch wants to know:

> Is there any reason why a Governor of a State should be permitted to treat a summons before a Grand Jury with contempt, and a private citizen be punished for a similar offense?

—The Dubuque Times (Republican) thinks that Congress will, next winter, repeal the salary-grab. The Times says:

> The people should notify members of the present Congress that they shall hold them responsible for that repeal. Every member, who considers a re-nomination to a seat in Congress, and cannot bring to the Government more than a paltry sum. The loss in honor and national respect cannot be offset by the insignificant sum which will result from their sale. After the mercenary greed and corruption which have run riot in every department of the Government during the past three or four years, it is not surprising that a point has at last been reached where the Government does not care to be reminded of those days when honesty and patriotism were held in greater esteem than fraud and corruption. It is due to the memory of the past, and to the glorious events of our Revolutionary history, that the State of New York should now step in and buy these relics which the General Government does not care to preserve, and thus partially avert a national disgrace.

—The Hon. J. Allen Barber (on the authority of Judge Mills) says the question was, with him, whether to be called a thief or a fool; as he said, if he took it he would be called a thief, and if he did not, he would be called a fool. At last accounts the Hon. J. Allen Barber had not decided which to be, and most of his friends have come to the conclusion, from his course, that he is both.—Lafayette County (Wis.) Democrat.

—The Ritchie (W. Va.) Gazette asserts positively that Senator Boreman has not taken his back pay, and that Senator Davis has taken his.

—Washington Townsend and John Scott are the only two members of Congress from Pennsylvania who have peremptorily and positively refused to draw the back pay.

—There are still a number of New England Senators and Representatives to be heard from. Their constituents are waiting, more or less patiently, for that public explanation which they have the right to expect, and which it will not be exactly wholesome for either Senator or Representative to withhold. Some of these gentlemen have waited too long, as it is, for their own best good.—Springfield Republican.

—There are many Senators and Representatives who, in justice to their reputation as church-members and reformers, as well as honest men, ought to be heard from as having renounced it. Aside from doing the right thing, they may be sure that whatever course they take in this matter will be remembered. Whoever takes that $5,000 will find it hanging to his feet like a ball and chain in his next race for office.—Chicago Advance.

—The odium of back pay must be kept alive until every dollar is returned to the Treasury, and the rising generation are thereby taught that public robbery, even under cover of a law labored for and approved by a President, is an unpardonable sin in this country.—Rochester (N. Y.) Union.

—Really, if our members heard what honest business men and hard working mechanics say about them in connection with this salary-steal, they would not hesitate a moment to place themselves right before the people.—Knoxville (Tenn.) Press.

—Commodore Vanderbilt concludes that discretion is the better part of valor, and backs out from his contest with the United States Government, in the matter of the taxes imposed on the New York Central dividends, on which he entered with so brave a flourish of trumpets a short time ago. The Company has settled with the Treasury Department by paying $400,000—the amount originally claimed. Now let the war be rigorously prosecuted against other resisting companies, until they also have surrendered.—Pittsburgh Commercial.

—The Republican Legislature of New York, in 1871-72, made "appropriations" which the Supreme Court of the State has recently pronounced reckless acts it at will remain upon the statute books a monument of the extravagance, recklessness, and folly of those by whom they were enacted. Because these appropriations were "absolutely prohibited," and are consequently null and void, the State finds a deficiency of $11,000,000, which must be raised by a tax.

—The people frequently have but themselves to blame for the unreliable character of their public servants. They allow themselves to be led about by the nose by grasping politicians, at the same time giving no heed to the counsel of men who do their own thinking, hate rascality, and do just as near right as they know how. The people must cease believing the personal falsehoods of trickery politicians and learned clarquers, and commence thinking and seeing for themselves.—Hillsboro (Ill.) News Letter.

—North and South, the people's representatives have been loud in their denunciations of monopolizing corporations and stock-jobbing schemes, and against the interests and wishes of the people. Capital and influence have snatched the people's franchise in the hands of the false or over-tempted representative, and in the face of the people's protests, have used it to forward their own corrupt and selfish ends. Railroads have constructed their "gridirons," on which to "fry the people," largely at the public expense. Millions of acres of God's free soil have annually been donated to corporate "land grabbers," on terms and in ways that the popular will could never have sanctioned, if consulted. Credit Mobilier schemes, salary steals, bribery of members, and election frauds to secure an inside track on these things, prevail everywhere; all because the people hold no counter-check over the after-actions of men elected to represent them.—Jefferson (Wis.) Banner.

Alexander Clark (colored), of Muscatine, Iowa, declines to be Consul at Aux Cayes, Hayti, because the place "is not sufficiently remunerative." Something better than that, Mr. Fish, if you please.

It is said of Dr. R. Shelton Mackenzie, of the Philadelphia Press, that, while he declares himself to be only 63, he claims to have been on intimate terms with all the men of note who have lived in the last 200 years.

Senator Boutwell has leased in Washington the fine house recently erected by Mr. Burchell, on Vermont avenue and L street. We understand by the Sunday Chronicle that as Senator Mr. Boutwell will be much more social at his own house than he ever was as Secretary.

Prof. Tyndall is growing more and more complimentary of the United States. In a recent lecture in London, in alluding to the high scientific standard maintained in the United States, he read some extracts from a lecture delivered by President White, of Cornell University, which he "had never seen surpassed in the writings of European thinkers."

Alden B. Stockwell, who is reported to have lost $3,000,000 recently by his stock operations in Wall street, seems anxious to show that he is not financially crippled by renting the Barnds Villa, at Newport, for three months, and giving $8,000 for it—the largest price ever paid there for a season.

The wife of Premier Gladstone is said to be sorely lacking in self-possession and social tact, and is, in consequence, a constant thorn in the side of her political and polite husband. Recently, with the object of refreshing her liege's memory, she left in the frame of a conspicuous mirror in her own house, a card with these words: "Don't forget, dear, to invite those horrid Smiths." Gladstone did not see the card until after the horrid Smiths had themselves inspected it to their infinite dissatisfaction.

In the Supreme Court has been brought a suit against ex-Gov. Page, of Vermont, to recover $14,000 damages alleged to have been occasioned by false and fraudulent representations contained in his rose-colored report of the financial condition of the Rutland Railroad. The plaintiff alleges that he was thereby induced to buy 50 shares of the preferred stock at $85 per share, and 100 shares of the common stock, at $40, investing $10,250; whereas the pretended "statement" was untrue, and the corporation was then owing millions of dollars which were not stated.

THE CITY IN BRIEF.

The dedication of the North Star Baptist Church, corner of Division and Sedgwick streets, will occur on Sunday, June 1.

A brute named John Neary was yesterday morning fined $100, by Justice Banyon, for exposing his person to some ladies on LaSalle street.

Corporation Counsel Tulley is engaged in the preparation of an elaborate argument to be delivered before Judge Williams when the Klokke case comes up for hearing in the Circuit Court.

A water-gauge has been placed in the office of the Board of Public Works, for the purpose of showing the height and pressure of water at any time during the day.

Three hundred thousand postal-cards were received at the Post-Office yesterday morning at 10 o'clock. Half of them were disposed of shortly after noon, and the balance before night.

Deputy Coroner Pilgrim held an inquest yesterday on the body of Charles Matzke, the German who was killed on Milwaukee avenue, on Wednesday, by falling from his wagon. A verdict of accidental death was rendered.

Julia Quin, alias Stow, sneaked a valuable piece of silk from a dry goods store, at No. 229 State street, on Wednesday afternoon, and was yesterday morning taken before Banyon, and held in $300 bail for the Criminal Court.

James Anderson on Wednesday evening stole a horse and buggy from John Anderson, of the Scandinavian-American newspaper, and was captured, with the property, yesterday morning. He was taken before Banyon and held to the Criminal Court in $1,000 bail.

In the lumber-yard which occupies Nos. 445 to 451 Van Buren street, is a stack of sawed lumber which overhangs the street at an angle of nearly 45 degrees. To save the mass from falling, a slight board is allowed to bear its weight. The street-cars, which run by the spot, will save the Coroner the expense of cab hire.

Ald. Cullerton, with a delegation of owners of property in the vicinity of Canal and Twelfth streets, waited on Mayor Medill and the Board of Public Works yesterday morning to protest against the construction of a viaduct at the intersection of those two streets, not because it was now needed, but because they were to be assessed for it.

Yesterday morning Officer Lange found a man named George Burns lying in a helpless condition in front of the saloon of John Bruer, No. 447 Milwaukee avenue. Upon examining him, it was found that his leg was broken. It seemed that Burns went into the saloon, drunk, and refusing to go out, was kicked out, and, falling heavily on the sidewalk, was hurt as above stated. The man was taken to his home and attended by Dr. Freyer.

Mark Smith and Henry Hjorth have been in the intelligence business for some time past, at No. 210 South Water street, and have been successful in sending unintelligent Germans to Indiana after receiving a fee, to occupy places which were not in waiting for them. Yesterday morning they were examined before Justice Banyon, upon sundry charges of this character, and, being found guilty, Smith was fined $200 and Hjorth $25. They were both sent to the Bridewell.

An adjourned meeting of persons interested in the development of Washington Heights was held in Mr. Chambers' office, Honore Block, yesterday afternoon. The Committee appointed at the previous meeting to solicit subscriptions for the proposed Female Seminary, reported that the sum of $90,000 had been secured, leaving only $10,000 to be collected. The deficiency they thought would be made up before Saturday. As soon as the whole sum is obtained a meeting will be called and steps taken to incorporate the institution. It is probable that the work of erecting the building will commence within thirty days.

Mr. Barrett, the obliging "Doc" of the Criminal Court, takes much pride in showing to the truly appreciative a very neat piece of wood carving, accomplished by the doomed Rafferty. That worthy, the other day, borrowed a jack-knife and procured a broom-handle, from which he carved a very elegant chain, twenty-three links long, terminating in a pair of pincers, which open and shut with as much ease as if the parts were originally disjointed, and had been made one with a hinge. It is a pity that such ingenuity in handling the knife should be marred by a too great readiness to handle the revolver.

A delegation of complaining citizens, headed by Ald. Cullerton, called upon the Mayor and Public Works Commissioners, yesterday morning, to protest against the proposed viaduct over the Burlington crossing, at the corner of Canal and Sixteenth streets, for which they are now willing to be assessed, unless the land damages were adjusted. The Board informed them that no adjustment could be made until some damage had been sustained. The delegation was assured that the city would raise the buildings up to grade and replace the sidewalks. This promise seemed to satisfy the property-owners.

The Mayor's police seem determined to break up the swindling intelligence offices which infest the city. Yesterday two more parties, Smith and Hjorth, who had been doing business at No. 210 South Water street, were arraigned before Justice Banyon by Officers Silver and Elsas. The former was fined $25, and the latter was sent to the House of Correction in default of payment of fines, amounting to $68. These men made a practice of swindling emigrants and verdant people generally. Yesterday afternoon a couple more were locked up at the Mayor's office by several German emigrants, who claimed to have been defrauded at the intelligence office of Angel & Coaker, No. 21 West Randolph street. The matter will be looked into to-day.

Justice Haines, yesterday, held Justice Thompson, of the town of Lake, and his wife, the former in $700 bail, and the latter in $1,000, to appear at the next term of the Criminal Court to answer to the charge of committing an assault upon Mrs. Brandt. Brandt had recovered a judgment against Thompson in the sum of $172, and, on Tuesday evening, proceeded to the town of Lake, accompanied by Constable Tke Hartmann, to have it satisfied. In the course of their attempts to seize upon some property belonging to the impecunious Justice, Brandt was struck upon the head, by Mrs. Thompson, with the but end of a revolver, and suffered a painful, but not serious, injury. At the sight of blood, Hartmann ran away, and hence the levy was not made. Justice Thompson has brought a suit against Brandt and Hartmann, for damages, for forcibly entering his premises, which will come up before Justice Haines on Saturday.

Any bummer can forthwith demand that the Mayor or Corporation Counsel be summoned to the Police Court, and have the demand considered binding before Justice Dogberry Banyon. A saloon-keeper, arrested and brought before Banyon yesterday morning for selling liquor on Sunday, plead that he sold cider and pop, and that the Mayor and Corporation Counsel had given him permission to do so. An ex-policeman defended him. Mr. Dogberry Banyon rendered a decision in which he demonstrated to his own satisfaction that the Mayor and Corporation Counsel had no right to do so, and concluded by continuing the case until the ex-policeman should bring the Mayor and Corporation Counsel to the Police Court to testify whether or no they had given such permission, and, if so, why. That means that the case has been disposed of.

The American Silk Interest.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The annual meeting of the Silk Association of America was held yesterday. Reports were read containing interesting information in regard to the progress of silk industry, the inaccuracy of the census statistics and the great prospects of the trade. The report showed that the Association is firmly established and in a flourishing condition.

THE ISSUE MADE.

The Constitutionality of the 11 O'Clock Ordinance to Be Tested at Once.

Chapin & Gore, Backed by E. G. Asay, Will Fight for Their Rights in the Courts.

Full Text of the Seventeenth Ward Resolutions.

The 11 o'clock liquor ordinance was put in force last night, and was generally observed throughout the entire city, so far as can be ascertained at present writing (midnight). All the first-class places down-town, with one exception, were promptly closed at the hour fixed by law, and in the prominent billiard-rooms cards were hung in conspicuous places on the bars, announcing that no liquors were sold. Dissatisfaction, however, was general. The exception alluded to above was the Monroe street house of Chapin & Gore. This firm decided some days ago that they would keep one of their establishments open if a first night the law went into effect, in order to make a test case. They preferred to violate the ordinance with their Monroe street house, on account of the custom to be derived from the audience at McVicker's Theatre, which does not let out until 11 o'clock or thereabouts. It is natural to suppose that a man who sits through a three hours' performance by McVicker's stock company will be either thirsty or hungry. Mr. Gore remained in the saloon during the evening, in order that his employes might not be held responsible for the firm's offense. Shortly after 11 o'clock two policemen entered, one at the front door and another at the rear, both doors being wide open. There were three bar-tenders and a waiter attending to the wants of a number of customers. The policemen notified them that it was past closing time. The bar-tenders said they knew nothing about the time, and referred the officers to the head bartender, who was sitting off at some distance. The policemen went up to him, and remarked that the 11 o'clock ordinance was in force, and that the bar ought to be closed. He replied that the law did not concern him, as Mr. Gore was in the front part of the establishment, and was presumed to be the "boss" when he was around. The officers sought out that gentleman, and, upon finding him, remarked for the third time that the 11 o'clock ordinance was in force, and so forth. Mr. Gore replied that he was fully aware of that fact, and was intentionally violating the law for purposes of his own. The officers said it pained them to take him into custody, but duty was duty, as Mr. Gore very well knew, undoubtedly. Mr. Gore said that duty was duty, as a matter of course, and that it would afford him the utmost pleasure to accompany them to the Armory as soon as he could put things to rights in the house, and rest the people out. The officers thanked him very kindly, and waited until business calls would permit the prisoner to leave. Then they marched off with him. At the Armory Mr. Gore gave bonds for his appearance before Justice Banyon to-day. He has employed Mr. E. G. Asay, a distinguished attorney of the city, to defend him, and intends to give the ordinance a thorough test. He claims that the City Government has just as much right to close up his place of business at 6 o'clock in the evening as at 11 o'clock at night, and it would seem that a very respectable number of citizens, exclusive of saloon-keepers, agree with him.

The first-class hotels, with their customary disregard of ordinances which have as much reference to them as to-less pretentious places, dispensed liquors in private rooms upstairs, where policemen could not very well go. It is understood that one of them was allowed to do so by "special permission." The other hotels and saloon-keepers generally would like to know who has the authority to give "special permission" in such cases.

THE NORTH SIDE RESOLUTIONS.

The following are the resolutions passed at the meeting held in the Seventeenth Ward on Wednesday evening:

Resolved, That the present meeting of German citizens, and all statistical of duty, do hereby call upon the duty of every liberal-minded citizen to seek in the impending election to work for the future, and not to fight over the past.

Resolved, That we invite all the liberal element of all nationalities and all parties to co-operate with us.

Resolved, That in the contest which has been forced upon us, not merely the oppressive temperance laws are threatened, but the principle of freedom of conscience, and freedom to conduct business of all kinds.

Resolved, That we invite the citizens of all the wards to organize at once, and that the united organizations unite in a central body as quickly as possible.

Resolved, That we are sure that we shall not only all liberal-minded citizens, but also the German newspapers, should take part in this contest

SLEEVE-BUTTONS.

All About the Set Presented to the "Times" for Its "Influence."

How a Young Architect Made Himself "Solid" With a City Editor.

Why the "Times" Blew Hot and Cold on the Burling & Adler Plans.

Startling Statements of Mr. J. J. Flanders.

The charge made by the Chicago Times in its issue of Wednesday, that an attempt had been made by Messrs. Burling & Adler to bribe that mendacious journal to uphold their design, proves, as all charges, statements, narratives, and reports published in that paper always do, to be entirely false so far as that firm is concerned, and proves, moreover, that such Credit Mobilier arrangements as were made, came in the first place from the city editor of the Times. In order to obtain from Messrs. Burling & Adler a confession or a denial of their connection with the gift to the city editor of a set of studs and a pair of sleeve-buttons, a reporter of THE TRIBUNE called at the office of the architects. He there met Mr. Adler, and asked him in plain language whether he had made any offer to any attache of the Times, and, if so, in what manner; and whether, if any such offer had been made by one of his employes, it had been done with his knowledge or consent.

Mr. Adler gave an unqualified denial of the story published in the Times. The first he had known of the matter was by the publication of the article. He had forthwith gone to the office of that concern and called upon Mr. Storey, the chief editor, and proprietor, and had asked permission to see the letter which, it was stated, accompanied the gift. Mr. Storey said he knew nothing about it, and referred him (Adler) to Mr. Walker, the city editor. Mr. Adler preferred the same request to Mr. Walker, and that gentleman assured him that the facts (?) published in the Times were facts, and that the sleeve-buttons and studs had been returned to the young man who presented them. Mr. Adler, however, wished to see the letter, because that document, if genuine, was more criminating than the bribe, inasmuch as it contained a promise of a considerable sum of money if the published statement was to be relied upon.

Mr. Walker replied that he had torn it up, which he (Adler), regarded as a rather convenient way of disposing of an awkward piece of evidence.

The reporter inquired whether Mr. Burling or Mr. Adler had ever instructed any of their employes to make any arrangements with the newspapers.

Mr. Adler declared that nothing of the kind had been done. Of course, every employe knew that in the event of the award of the contract being made to the firm, steady employment would be guaranteed to all the draughtsmen in the office, and it was, therefore, a matter of considerable interest to every one of them. Hence he was not surprised at their blowing around town about the excellence of the design submitted by this firm. One of them had come to him and inquired why he did not make himself more "solid" with the newspaper men. He had suggested a round of champagne. If his plan was considered a good one, he supposed the reporters would say so without any effort on his part to make friends with them.

The reporter inquired whether Mr. Burling or Mr. Adler had ever been approached by any parties who offered to receive money for their influence.

Mr. Adler replied in the affirmative. He had been approached on three successive occasions. Once by a clique of architects, who proposed to pool their interests, and called upon the firm for a contribution to the general fund. Another attempt had been made by some politicians to get them to do the same thing, but they had refused. The reporter asked for the names of any of the parties, but Mr. Adler declined to give them. The third attempt had been made as recently as Tuesday. A gentleman whose name he did not know, but whom he would discover, identify, and report, had come to him and asked him to contribute $500 to a general fund for the advancement of his interests with the Committee. He had inquired of this person, whom he represented, and on being informed that it would be discovered soon enough, he turned away from him. The visitor thereupon threatened him with certain defeat unless he would come to terms, and on receiving no further attention from him (Adler) the visitor took his leave.

The reporter was about to ask for a description of this person, when a gentleman whom he had known before as a draughtsman for Messrs. Burling & Adler handed the junior member of the firm an envelope, and then, putting on his hat, left the office. Mr. Adler turned aside to peruse it, and, having read it through, handed it to the reporter, who read as follows:

Messrs. Burling & Adler:

GENTLEMEN: Before entering upon this letter, I must state that you had no knowledge whatever of the facts which I shall briefly state here. Knowing that my interests were identical with yours, and wishing to advance them by all means, I thought to make friends with the newspaper men, and to that end purchased a set of cuff-buttons and studs, as I could. I therefore formed the acquaintance of Mr. W. S. Walker city editor of the Times, and invited him to dine with me on the 5th of April. He accepted, and we dined together. I asked him if he could do anything to aid your plans. He said he guessed he could. On leaving him after dinner he asked me to try and think of something I could do for him, and I replied that I would. Since that time he puffed your plans every time any mention was made of them, but received nothing in return from me. He gave me two or three hints since then that he was trying to get something, and, anxious to satisfy his hungry maw, I spent two weeks' salary in the purchase of a pair of sleeve-buttons and a set of studs. I suppose they were not good enough for him.

I greatly regret, gentlemen, that this has caused the trouble that has followed, and must consider that my engagement with you is ended. Very respectfully,

J. J. FLANDERS.

The reporter supposed that this would be explanation enough, and wondered why Mr. Flanders should be so foolish.

Mr. Adler said he wondered, too. It was more foolish than it appeared at the first glance, because Mr. Flanders, although he earned a good salary, was the sole support of a family of brothers and sisters, and could ill afford to throw money away, even supposing he had put it where it would do the most good.

The reporter asked if Mr. Adler had been aware of his visiting newspaper offices.

Mr. Adler said he knew he had been on good terms with several newspaper men. He (Flanders) had often said he was "solid" with them, and had pointed out the flattering notices that had appeared in the Times on this plan, the result of his "influence." But he had not supposed that Flanders was sufficiently interested to spend two weeks' salary in that way. He was inclined to associate the gentleman who had demanded $500 with this transaction, believing that he came from Mr. Walker. Mr. Walker naturally supposed that if the employe would purchase jewelry for him to get a good notice, his employer would "come down" more liberally. The sharp manner in which he was treated showed plainly that nothing was to be made, and the bogus expose in the Times was the dire result alluded to by the stranger. The letter should go before the Committee, and therefore before the public.

The following explains itself:

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

SIR: The ebullition of virtuous indignation in the Times calls for no explanation, which I, as the prime cause of it, can give. A set of sleeve-buttons were sent to the immaculate city editor of the Times by me, without the knowledge or connivance of Messrs. Burling & Adler. This action was mine entirely, the truth of which I can substantiate at any time. Without extenuating my ill-judged efforts to conciliate the incorruptible (?) Walker, I do thoroughly exonerate Messrs. Burling & Adler from any share or knowledge in this unfortunate transaction.

After an uncalled for and severely ignorant notice of a "Fitness and Economy," I was introduced to the city editor of the Times, called Walker. The introduction was obtained for the purpose of explaining what I consider the merits of Messrs. Burling & Adler's plan. For, in competitions, the interior arrangement, which superficial observers do not study, is the only logical argument for or against a design submitted. An exterior that pleases one is passed by with indifference by another.

My reason for endeavoring to convince the city editor of the merits of Messrs. Burling & Adler's plan, was that I had labored faithfully upon those plans, under Burling & Adler's directions, embodying in them many of my own ideas. Success being granted, I saw the realization of hopes cherished for years. My zeal for success was further increased by intimations given that something more than draughtsman's salary awaited me were Messrs. Burling & Adler successful. In visiting the Times office I was not alone; several plans were lying around; other architects had been there, some of whose designs the Iliputtan demigod of the Times boasts of having damaged beyond redemption, and, such is the weather-vane action of the Committee, I think he boasts with reason.

While acknowledging the merits of Messrs. Burling & Adler's design, Mr. Walker intimated that merit alone would not win the battle, that money must be spent freely. I dined once, I am sorry to say, with this minion of the press, when he blandly, but unconcernedly, as one who had said it many times before, remarked: "Think what you can do for me, and let me know in a few days." I was in an annoying quandary. A day or so after, he goaded me into action by another merciless squib. I consulted a friend, who advised me to purchase neutrality with a gift, saying, "As your employers will not countenance you, risk it yourself."

The jewelry was sent to Walker about April 4, and from then until the 15th of May, a period of six weeks, the Times favored "Fitness and Economy."

Had my means been sufficient to fill the greedy maw of the virtuous, unintriguing, incorruptible city editor; had I given him a hundred dollar bill instead of paltry sleeve-buttons, purchased by the salary of two weeks' labor, or had Messrs. Burling & Adler allowed themselves to be roped into a ring by paying $300 as their first instalment, said ring formed for the purpose of controling the Court-House prizes, the city editor of the Times, Walker by name, would have continued on his immaculate course, and given virtuous advice gratis (?) to the Competition Committee.

Conscious of the irreparable injury I have done Messrs. Burling & Adler by the injudicious action to which I was led by the designing scamp who heads the Times city department, I have withdrawn myself from their employ.

J. J. FLANDERS.

This is what the Times said on April 6, the day after the presentation:

In the meantime some of the more inexpensive, though none the less elegant plans, such as "Fitness and Economy," "Childe Harold," and others, are under a temporary cloud. Plans which it will cost from $6,000,000 to $8,000,000 to complete demand rings to push them, but those which can be built for a reasonable figure, and which are just as well, if not better, adapted to the needs of the community, can afford to stand on their merits. Let the best architect win, or there will be trouble all around.

Following is what the Times said of the plan, April 17:

No. 18, "Fitness and Economy"; Burling & Adler, architects. The elevation is very fine; the plan, if adopted, would insure a splendid looking edifice. The grand entrance on Washington street, under a tower on LaSalle. The light is good; the court at the ground floor is 40x150 feet; at the second story, 90x150; and at the third story, 130x150 feet in size. Cheapness is one of the principal features. The estimated cost being $2,500,000. This plan has many admirers.

And this is what the Times said on Wednesday, when the prospect of future gain had disappeared:

BURLING & ADLER'S DESIGN.

This is No. 18 on the list. It bears the motto, "Fitness and Economy." Its projectors are willing to make affidavits that it can be built for a total cost of $2,500,000. And well they may, for, at that figure, more money can be cleared by the contractors and architects than could be possibly made off any of the higher-priced designs submitted. It is essentially a cheap concern. The architects had no idea of the excellence of the other plans which would be presented, and so prepared the drawings of a third-class building. The elevation and perspective of the whole affair is upon a complete Cheap John style, and there are today a dozen structures in Chicago that would be more attractive and imposing than this could ever be made. A spindling tower; four squat Mansard protuberances on the corners of the structure; insignificant entrances, and bare, dead walls are among the best features of this botched attempt at competition.

"How then," queries the reader, "is it that this particular plan has always been among the favorites with the Committee?" The Times will try to enlighten the curious ones.

Influence is the most potent of all aids, and there are a hundred ways in which it may be used. When Messrs. Burling & Adler found that their plan was really the most contemptible of all submitted, they concluded to call in all the outside influence that could possibly be swung. They were among the oldest architects in the city. They had a wide and powerful circle of personal friends. Two or three of these—whose names are well known to the Times—are actual members of the Committee. There was immediately general talking up of their own plan and a talking down of all the others to be done, and this was achieved at every opportunity. The only design at which that they did not bring all of their wiles and tricks of their friends' artillery to bear was on "Eureka." The three months to have been that this design was too entirely meritorious for their assaults. Said an attache of Burling & Adler's to the writer, "The design of 'Eureka' is really remarkable, and that fellow Tilly ought to have a prize for his originality."

But the "outside work" of the clumsy designers of "Fitness and Economy" did not stop here. Promises of money and other valuables have been freely made to everybody whom they imagined could be of any possible service to them. Their emissaries have hung around the newspaper offices with all sorts of hints and pledges as to what they would do if successful. Prominent editors and reporters have been asked to dinner, and mysterious suggestions have been plentifully thrown out as to the possible advantages which might accrue to anybody who would espouse that particular plan.

Not long ago a costly set of sleeve-buttons and studs found their way to the office of the Times, with a note implying that the gift was a trifle, intended as soup before the hearty meal, compared to that which should follow upon a recommendation of "Fitness and Economy." The jewelry was at the disposal of Messrs. Burling & Adler. No TRIBUNE men need apply.

Apart from the general rascality of all this business, the design, as already noted, is a very common-place and a very bad one. There are a large number of walls on the various floors which are unsupported by any foundation whatever. The inside of the heavy and hideous Mansard towers is totally unsupported, and a heavy weight of snow would certainly crush them in. The grand (?) tower itself has ponderous stone columns and cornices, with nothing at all that can be called a decent base for them to rest on. This can be seen by examining the elevations carefully. Again: In the common law room on the third floor, the first plan called for five windows facing on the court, while the upright section drawing shows but four. That constitutes a first-class pictorial lie.

The Times earnestly calls upon the Committee to heave this cheap, insecure, and despicable plan overboard. The members of the Committee deem it incumbent upon themselves to patronize a one-horse design, why not smile with favor upon "Young America's" laughable brown paper drawing? They are better than the shams of "Fitness and Economy."

OBITUARY.

Death of the Countess De Pourtales Georgier, near Chicago.

At 1 o'clock yesterday afternoon the Countess De Pourtales Georgier, wife of the Count De Pourtales, Attache of the French Legation at Washington, died on the Chicago, Burlington & Quincy Railroad. The party had been on a visit to Hon. Ben. Holliday, father of the Countess, in San Francisco, and were returning to Washington. The deceased lady was first taken ill at Ogden, but determined to pursue her journey through to Chicago, where she could obtain good medical help. A dispatch was sent down the line for a physician to meet them with some morphine, and having obtained it, she took a dose on Wednesday night about 9 o'clock. In the morning she was found in a state of stupor from which she did not recover. Dr. Bowles, of Mendota, came on the train at that station, and, after seeing the condition of the unfortunate lady, pronounced the case hopeless, and accompanied the party to Chicago. The Countess had been married about three years, and was highly esteemed by all who knew her. Her husband has become Americanized in sympathies and principles. Mrs. Holliday is in New York, whither the body will be sent for interment. The lady leaves one very young child.

COMING OUT ALL RIGHT.

Several property-owners who are interested in the improvement of Van Buren street, from Ashland avenue to Wood street, met at the corner of Van Buren and Paulina streets, last evening, to hear the report of the committee appointed to confer with the Board of Public Works. Mr. Holmes, the Chairman of the Committee, stated that they had called on the Board, and they had promised to take steps to drain off the surface water in the Thirteenth Ward, and to do all they could to construct the sewer on Van Buren street from Ashland avenue to Wood street. They also waited on the Board of Health, and received assurances that an effort would be made to stop the dumping of dead animals on the vacant places in the ward. Superintendent Washburn had promised to detail policemen to watch for the men who placed the animals there, and arrest them.

After some discussion in reference to the paving of Van Buren street, from Ashland avenue to Wood street, the majority being in favor of it (the owners of three-fourths of the property having already consented to pay their proportion of the expense), the meeting adjourned.

For Circuit Judge in the Champaign Circuit.

TOLONO, Ill., May 15.—The farmers of the Sixteenth Judicial District, composed of the counties of Champaign, Macon, Piatt, and Moultrie, met in delegate convention at Bement to-day. The counties were all fully represented, and the utmost harmony and good order marked all the proceedings. Mr. C. R. Smith, a prominent member of the Champaign County Bar, was nominated for Circuit Judge on the first ballot, the vote standing as follows: Smith, 27; W. E. Nilson, of Macon County, 1, and blank, 1.

PIGEON-SHOOTING.

Great Championship Match Between Bogardus and Tinker.

Illinois Retains the Diamond Badge, and Rhode Island Must Wait for Another Chance at It.

Bogardus Victorious, by a Score of 87 to 85—Conclusion of the Sweepstakes Match.

A large crowd of gentlemen were present at Dexter Park yesterday afternoon to witness the pigeon-shooting match between A. H. Bogardus, of Illinois, and E. W. Tinker, of Rhode Island, for $500 a side and the single bird championship of America. A strong feeling of interest existed with reference to this contest, more especially as upon its issue depended the retention in Illinois of the diamond badge of supremacy, so long held and so ably defended by Captain Bogardus. There were sportsmen in attendance from all parts of the country, besides a great many gentlemen who shoot a little now and then, and who above all things love to see a big match. Included in this category was Mr. Edwin Adams, the celebrated actor, who is fond of bringing down pigeons as well as applause, and who takes a vast amount of pride in an elegant breech-loader manufactured for him in Chicago by Eddy Thomas. All the leading amateur marksmen of the city were out in full force, and all backing Bogardus with both their money and their sympathies. Their interest, however, was not allowed to run away with their courtesy toward the champion's gentlemanly opponent, whom, though they heartily hoped for his defeat, they treated with the utmost fairness and cordiality. Ira Paine, the lightning shot, was there, pulling the trap for Tinker, a service which Mr. Washter performed for Bogardus. Miles Johnson, the double bird champion, acted as referee, and gave entire satisfaction by his intelligent impartiality. Mr. W. F. Milligan and County Commissioner Harris were on hand in a holiday humor, excepting that the proverbial geniality of the former was for a moment ruffled by THE TRIBUNE's allusion to the fact that an admission fee was exacted of the reporters on the first day of the shooting—as if everybody didn't know that this was done without the knowledge or consent of Mr. Milligan, whose attentions toward members of the press are always agreeable incidents of the Dexter Park shooting matches.

THE MATCH

began shortly after 2 o'clock. Pools were sold in the club-house, Bogardus being the favorite at odds of $50 to $30 before the first shot was fired, and after this, although Tinker led off at the best rate, the odds were increased rather than diminished, Bogardus at one time being backed at five to one. This was in the middle of the match, when 50 birds each had been shot at, Bogardus having killed 48, and Tinker 45. Tame pigeons were used in the match—strong, active birds, and good flyers. The Rhode Island rules governed in the shooting, the rise, as usual, 21 yards, and the boundary 80 yards, the main points of difference in rules being that the shooter may take a sight on the trap before it is pulled; in gathering a bird may go around it; must gather it within three minutes by the watch, and, if he does not, the bird is scored as lost. This latter clause was attended with serious disadvantages to both parties, Mr. Tinker getting the worst of it. Five times his cartridge failed to explode, and easy birds got away, while the same misfortune occurred to Bogardus four times. So many defective cartridges have never been known in a match since breech-loading came into vogue.

THE FIRST FIFTY BIRDS

on each side were shot with great rapidity, and with an excellent score for both. Bogardus made clean misses of his 3d, 7th, and 12th, and Tinker his 5th, after which he made a consecutive string of 21, which ended on a bird dead out of bounds. Being two birds behind at his 12th, Bogardus put in some magnificent shooting, piling up a string of 21 before he made a miss, which gave him a lead of one bird. They stopped to clean their guns at the 50th bird, and when they resumed Bogardus made a clean miss of an easy bird, flying directly toward him, and the score was even again. His 55th was his, but managed to get to the roof of the club-house, whither Washter went in pursuit, and gathered it, but not until after three minutes had expired, and the bird was scored as lost. Tinker made a clean miss of his 56th, and on the 57th his cartridge failed to explode, so that he was one bird behind again. Bogardus made it even by a clean miss of No. 58, a hard, swift driver, while he also got away by reason of a bad cartridge. The same thing lost him his 61st, and Tinker his 63d, the latter's 64th being a clean miss, which made the score even again. They kept together for five birds, when another miss-cap by Bogardus set him back, and he was kept there until Tinker made a clean miss of his 72d. Bogardus' 72d was a clean kill, and got very nearly out of bounds before he dropped. Had he flown with the wind instead of against it, he would surely have got out. The 74th for Tinker was a clean miss, and placed him one in the rear. Bogardus' 74th managed to carry his cargo of lead within less than a yard of the flag, but Washter succeeded in rescuing him. Tinker never touched his 76th, and a bad cartridge allowed his 77th to dart away unharmed, making him three behind, until Bogardus found in his 77th a swift twister which was too much for him. Tinker had a narrow escape with his 78th, which stopped close to the boundary, but was gathered by Paine, who showed much skill in the operation. A fourth bad shell in Bogardus' stock of ammunition lost his 82d, and decreased his lead to one bird. Tinker's 83d had one leg broken by the shot, but was strong enough to reach the club-house balcony, where he fell among the spectators, and was thrown down, dead. Bogardus failed to start a feather in his eighty-seventh, and thereby made once more. Odds of two to one on him found no takers. Tinker's gun misfired fire on his 89th, while his 91st was a total escape. All his 97th there was just a chance for Tinker to win or to die, but his gun snapped twice, and at the third attempt the cartridge exploded, but not until the bird was far out of range. The match was now irretrievably lost by the Rhode Islander, and though Bogardus missed his 100th bird, as if he did not care to kill it, he won the match and money, and retained the badge, by a score of 87 to 85.

AN EVEN SCORE

MONEY AND COMMERCE

MONETARY.

THURSDAY EVENING, May 15.

The demand for money at the banks is still reported as very active, and a number of them say money is tight. With a good many money-lenders, however, this report is chronic, and, as the amount of money offered in the street is still quite large, it cannot be said that the general money market of this city is very close. Many banks that talk "tight money" to borrowers whom they do not care to accommodate are ready to buy outside paper at a little higher rate than 10 per cent. This, however, is not the case with all, and some have really granted accommodations to regular customers, at regular rates, to the full extent they deem it judicious to expand. In the street, money is to be had through brokers at 10 per cent on prime collaterals, and on call at even 8 per cent.

New York exchange is steady at par to 25c per $1,000 premium for sales between banks.

Currency movements continue light.

The New York Financial Chronicle prints a table of the changes in the relative importance of the National Bank capital and circulation of the City of New York as compared with the National bank capital and circulation of all the rest of the country during the last seven years, as follows:

Dates.	BANKS OF NEW YORK CITY.		ALL OTHER BANKS.
	Capital.	Circulat'n	Capital.	Circulat'n.
Jan., 1867	$67,000,000	$26,000,000	$244,775,000	$256,000,000
Jan., 1868	74,000,000	28,000,000	248,000,000	269,000,000
Jan., 1869	74,000,000	26,000,000	244,000,000	269,000,000
Jan., 1870	74,000,000	25,000,000	244,000,000	268,000,000
Dec., 1870	77,000,000	23,000,000	247,000,000	266,000,000
Feb., 1872	77,000,000	23,000,000	252,000,000	270,000,000

While the reports of the Comptroller of the Currency do not show that there has been so great a decrease in the National Bank capital of New York City as the Chronicle claims, it is at least true that the great increase of over $60,000,000 of National Bank capital in the last seven years has been entirely outside of New York City. It shows that the demand for banking privileges on an equal footing with the Eastern States, which made it necessary to pass the $54,000,000 National Currency act of 1870, was the result of the increase of capital throughout the West. The Chronicle, however, imagines it has made a discovery, and asks, with some alarm, "Have we weakened the preponderance of New York as the financial centre of the National Banking system?" To which it may be replied that, if an increase of capital in the West which made it necessary to pass the act of 1870 was said to weaken New York, the latter is relatively weaker than it was. As for its being "the centre of the National Banking System," there is no sufficient reason why it should be made so by law as it is now. As the National Bank law now stands, each bank in each of the redemption cities is obliged to select a National Bank in New York City where it will redeem its circulating notes, whereas the National Banks of New York are not obliged to keep their money in any place but at their own counters. This discrimination of the law in favor of New York City is the cause of the accumulation of money in that city, which has stimulated the speculation in railroad stocks to its present proportions since the establishment of the National Banking system. The growth of the system outside of New York shows that other centres of ultimate redemption are necessary, and that, as banks in Chicago and the Pacific States are not required to redeem their notes in New York, so other sections should have their points of ultimate redemption independent of New York.

Withdrawn from store yesterday for city consumption: 1,144 bu wheat; 1,082 bu corn; 4,199 bu oats; 1,796 bu rye; 10,825 bu barley.

The following grain has been inspected into store this morning up to 10 o'clock: 73 cars wheat; 141 cars corn; 5,900 bu No. 2 do, by canal; 23 cars oats; 1 car rye; 2 cars barley. Total (240 cars), 102,000 bu.

We noted the fact, some days ago, that four cars of barley had been shipped out from the Rock Island Elevator, about the end of April, being inspected out as No. 2; and that, on complaint of the party to whom the grain was delivered, the out-Inspector was suspended till such time as the matter could be investigated. That barley was sent to Fox & Thomas, of Cincinnati, and the certificates of Inspector W. C. Justin of that city have arrived here. He graded it all as No. 3, and assigns as his reason that it was so graded "on account of being stained, containing rotten grain and a heated smell."

A paper was handed around to-day among the 54 firms who are creditors of John Watson in the wheat deal, and received numerous signatures. The signers pledged themselves to accept 50c on the dollar in full of all demands, settlements being made on the basis of $1.81; provided the other creditors will accept the same terms. The general impression is that there will be no serious opposition to a settlement on these terms.

While the Directors of the Board of Trade are trying hard to eradicate the coarseness occasionally manifested by a very few of its members, they would do well to extend their fatherly care to one of their own number, who used language on the floor to-day as ungentlemanly as it was unjustifiable. There is only one possible excuse for it: that is, that as the Director in question is supposed to never do anything but talk; he must talk differently from those who have something else to do.

THE MARKETS.

The leading produce markets were comparatively quiet to-day, and the weakness noted in the latter part of the session of yesterday was generally continued, though the weather was far more encouraging to the bear interest in grain. The shipping movement was slower too, the difficulty being principally one of loading. The receipts of grain continue small for the season, partly because country owners are holding back till they find out something more definite in regard to the yield of the current year.

Dry goods were moving to a fair extent at former prices. The recent reduction in prints and cottons has induced an increased demand, and as stocks of all standard brands are known to be moderate, not only here but in all the markets of the country, holders are firm at full rates. The principal feature of interest noted in connection with the grocery market was the advance of a ¼c in the different grades of coffee, the advance here being in sympathy with the upward movement at the East. The effect of the continued high prices of coffee has been to materially diminish the consumption, the deliveries for consumption at the six Atlantic ports from Jan. 1 to May 1, were 38,300, against 49,000 tons for the same period in 1871; 1,000 tons in 1870, and 42,500 tons in 1870. If this same ratio of decrease is maintained the consumption of 1873 will fall short of the consumption of 1871 by 32,100 tons. The demand for sugars continues to increase as the season advances, but the large stocks operate to keep down prices. Rice, soaps, spices, and starch were quoted firm. Teas, molasses, and candles are easy. The butter trade was dull, with prices unsettled and in buyer's favor. Provisions show no inclination to operate beyond meeting immediate wants, and stocks continue to accumulate. Bagging was quiet, and without quotable change, Stark being held at 37c; Ludlow at 35c; Lewiston at 34½c, and American at 32½c. The cheese trade was inactive. Coal remains quiet at yesterday's quotations. Nothing new was noted in the canned goods and dried fruit markets, trade continuing slack at previous prices. Fish were in good demand, and, with the exception of box herring, which were 5c lower, the market was firm. Hay was quiet, and loose descriptions were off $1.00@2.00 per ton. There was rather a firmer feeling in the hide market, owing to the marked falling off in receipts. Oils were moving on a liberal scale, at 19½@20c for carbon; $1.00@1.08 for linseed, 87c for whale, and 59@60c for turpentine.

The lumber trade was active to-day, at both the yards and docks. Yard prices were without material alteration, except that common dressed flooring, second, is lower. The receipts at the docks were very large, but the demand was urgent, and prices ruled very strong, an advance being made in some descriptions. Lath and small timber stock were in moderate request, at about the same range of prices. Nails and iron met with the usual inquiry, yesterday's quotations being continued. Wool, hops, and broom corn were unchanged. Wool continues to meet with a moderate inquiry from Western mills, while hops are inactive and nominally unchanged. The better grades of broomcorn are gradually working firmer as the stocks become reduced, but common corn is plenty and slow. Seeds were quiet and without quotable change. A good inquiry exists for choice peachblow potatoes, and fancy lots were a shade higher; common and mixed varieties are dull. Green fruits were in good demand, and choice apples and oranges have advanced. Owing to light offerings, lemons are also quite firm. Poultry was active, scarce, and firm. Eggs were salable to the local trade at 12½@13½c.

Lake freights were less active, and rather dull at the recent decline, at 6c for wheat, 5½c for corn, and 4c for oats, by sail to Buffalo. Kingston and Oswego rates were easier, at 12½c for wheat. A good many vessels arrived to-day, some of them large ones, but few were ready to load, hence the market was relatively firm for immediate use, and weak for loading one or two days ahead. We note that several more of our grain vessels have been ordered to the lumber regions, and some have left (light) for Milwaukee. A total of eleven charters was reported (three of which go to Milwaukee), which will carry out 90,000 bu wheat, 175,000 bu corn, and 200,000 bu oats.

Highwines were in rather better demand, and firm at the recent advance, with sales of 200 brls at 89½c per gallon. The market closed steady at that figure, with but very little on sale.

Provisions were dull and weak. The receipts of hogs at the Stock Yards are on the increase, and were so much in excess of the present demand to-day, as to cause a considerable reduction in prices, which reacted on products, bringing out free sellers, while few were prepared to take hold, even at a decline; especially as larger arrangements than usual have been made for summer packing, which will probably give a new product fully equal to the consumptive demands of the season. Mess pork declined an average of 50c per brl, the most deserved options being the weakest; while lard and meats were unchanged, there being a fair demand for the former. A dispatch from New York (official) states that there are yet to be exported from the United States a total of 8,146,233 lbs lard, and 1,304,594 lbs meats, to meet the increased packing of the West during the past winter. The market closed at the following range of prices: Mess pork, cash or seller May, $16.45@16.50; do seller June, $16.45@16.59; do seller July, $16.75@16.80; do seller August, $17.25@17.30; lard, cash or seller May, $8.95@9.00; do seller June, $9.05; do seller July, $9.30@9.35; summer lard, $8.50; do without packages, $8.00. Sweet pickled hams quoted at 10@11¼c. Dry salted meats quotable at 6¾@6¾c for shoulders; 8½@8¾c for short ribs; and 8¾@8¾c for short clear. Boxed shoulders, 6¾@6¾c. English meats, 8½@8¾c for short ribs; 9@9¼c for short clear. Bacon is quoted at 7¾c for shoulders, 10c for clear ribs, 10¾c for short clear, and 13@14¼c for hams, all packed. Mess beef, $9.00@9.25; extra mess do, $10.00@10.25; beef hams, $28.00@29.50. City tallow, 7¾@8c; grease quotable at 5½@6¾c. Sales were reported of 500 brls mess pork (last evening) at $17.00; 200 brls do at $16.50; 500 brls do seller June at $16.80; 1,500 brls do at $16.50; 500 brls do seller July at $17.05; 1,250 brls do at $17.00; 1,500 brls do at $16.80; 1,000 tcs lard seller June at $9.05; 1,000 brls do seller July at 99.30; 65 tcs sweet pickled hams (averaging 20 lbs) at 10c.

Flour was in better demand, both on local account and for shipment, at unchanged prices. The demand was chiefly for the lower grades of spring, and the inquiry for these has been so good for several days past that stocks have been considerably depleted, and several lots were sold to arrive, the desired amounts not being on hand. Bran was steady. Sales were reported of 300 brls spring extras (St. Francis) and 100 brls do (Alamakee) at $6.75; 100 brls do at $6.55; 200 brls do (Stone Mills) at $6.50; 100 brls do (Hastings City) and 100 brls do at $6.25; 100 brls do at $5.75; 76 brls do (low) at $6.00; 1,550 brls do on private terms; 50 brls rye flour (Beloit City) at $4.40; 30 brls do (poor) at $4.00. Total, 3,906 brls. Also, 20 tons bran at $10.50 on track. The following were the quotations at the close:

Fair to choice white winter extra	$ 8.50 @11.00
Red winter extra	7.00 @ 8.50
Good to choice spring extra	6.10 @ 7.00
Low to medium	4.75 @ 5.75
Minnesotas (patent)	8.00 @11.00
Good to fancy Minnesota	6.00 @ 8.00
Spring superfines	3.50 @ 4.00
Rye flour	4.15 @ 4.40
Bran	10.50 @11.00

Wheat was unsettled, and rather weak, at an average decline of 1¾c from yesterday, the feeling being a very nervous one throughout, and the demand irregular—sometimes quite brisk, at others lifeless. New York was reported firm, and held 1@2c higher, while Liverpool was reported firm; but a good many operators seemed to be afraid that the market here had been forced up to an unnaturally high point by the recent large shortage on May deliveries, which has now vanished into thin air, leaving only a wreck behind on which there will be 50 per cent of salvage. Hence they held off from buying, and some of them wanted to sell, while buying for shipment was retarded by the fact that few vessels were ready to load to-day, and buyers did not care to hold over. There were a good many orders from the country to sell, doubtless brought out by the above-named considerations. Seller June opened at $1.39¾, advanced to $1.39½, sank gradually to $1.30¾, rose to $1.30¾, and declined to $1.29¾ at the close. Seller the month, or regular No. 2 spring, sold at $1.30¾@1.31¼, and strictly fresh receipts of do at $1.31@1.32, closing at $1.30¾@1.31¼. Nothing doing for July. No. 1 spring was quiet and easy at $1.37@1.37½; No. 3 do dull at $1.22; and rejected do dull at $1.05¾. Cash sales were reported of 400 bu No. 1 spring at $1.37½; 300 bu do at $1.37; 6,000 bu No. 2 spring (part lost) at $1.32; 11,800 bu do at $1.31½; 12,000 bu do at $1.31¼; 55,000 bu do at $1.31; 5,000 bu do at $1.30½; 10,000 bu do at $1.30¾; 7,400 bu No. 3 spring at $1.22; 400 bu rejected spring at $1.05¾; 400 by sample (amber winter) at $1.45; 800 bu do at $1.41; 800 bu do at $1.38. Total, 121,400 bu.

Corn was less active, and rather weak at a decline of ¾c from yesterday, though it was reported dull and nothing generally in the country, with the ground already so much soaked that nothing can be done in the fields, while some large farms are reported to be, as yet, untouched by a plow. The cause of the weakness was probably the fact that corn was quoted much lower in New York by the morning newspapers; and the reason for that lower quotation was by many supposed to be the arrival on the seaboard of some of the corn which was sent around Chicago, because it was too damp to be inspected as No. 2 here. The receipts were not heavy, and there would seem to be no other reason for weakness in New York than that above given, with the impression there that those arrivals are a fair sample of the corn to be received from the West this spring. Seller June opened at 43c, declined to 41¾c, and closed at 42c. Seller July sold at 44@45¾c, and seller August at 45½@46¾c, both closing with the inside bid. Seller the month, or regular No. 2, sold at 40¾@41¾c, and fresh receipts at 41¾@41¾c, the latter closing nominal at 41¾c. Rejected was weak, closing tame at 39c bid. Cash sales were reported of 8,000 bu No. 2 at 41¾c; 7,200 bu do at 41¾c; 25,000 bu do at 41¾c; 20,000 bu do at 41¾c; 6,000 bu do at 41¾c; 10,000 bu do at 40¾c; 800 bu do rejected at 40¾c; 800 bu do at 40c; 1,600 bu do at 39½c; 2,800 bu do at 39c; 21,000 bu do at 42c free on board. Total, 162,200 bu.

Oats were rather more active, at the inside prices of yesterday; and remarkably steady, considering the irregular markets in wheat and corn. Seller the month, or regular No. 2, sold at 32¾@33c; strictly fresh receipts at 33¾@33½c; seller June at 34@34½c; and seller July at 35¾@35½c; all closing same as the inside. Though New York closed firmer, Canada was reported of 2,400 bu at 33½c; 1,800 bu at 33½c; 35,000 bu at 33c; 40,000 bu at 32½c; 600 bu rejected at 31c; 3,600 bu do at 30¾c; 600 bu do at 30½c; 600 bu by sample at 39½c; 600 bu do at 38c. Total, 85,200 bu.

Rye was quiet and steady at the quotations ruling for a week past. Sales were limited to 1,200 bu No. 2 at 69½c.

Barley was dull and irregularly quoted, but was probably heavy under an effort to sell where it was not wanted. No. 2 in the Rock Island was quoted all the way from 71@76c, and in other houses at 80@83c; No. 3 quoted at 65@68c; and respected at 45@50c. Cash sales were limited to 400 bu No. 2, at 82½c; 1,200 bu do at 80c; 1,600 bu do at 71c; 1,600 bu do at 79c, delivered free on board cars; 400 bu do, No. 3, at 65c; 1,000 bu, by sample, at $1.00; 5,300 bu do at 65c; 400 bu do at 50c. Total, 11,800 bu.

EXTRACTS.

The New York World says:

The deficiency in the supply of wheat on the seaboard is very great; and Buffalo and Oswego are also short of stock. It would appear, therefore, that the arrivals of wheat from the West for some weeks to come are certain of a rapid absorption.

Montreal does not appear to be competing with New York so actively as in former years. She is without freight-room, and efforts made here to obtain room have failed to find what have been unsuccessful. In fact, although it cannot be denied that the first impetus to the growth of New York to her present pre-eminence among American cities was given by the Erie Canal, it is equally true that New York, its banking and shipping facilities, now afford a sort of protection to the business of the Erie Canal. Until Montreal and New Orleans can compete with us in general commerce, and freight-room with commodation and freight-room which pertain to a great commercial metropolis, their efforts to divert any considerable portion of our grain-trade from us will be futile.

The state of the foreign markets promise an active export for our surplus "breadstuffs" during the whole of the coming season of inland navigation. There is, however, a disposition to inflict a rapid reduction of stocks, and not permit a free and legitimate movement to be interrupted by speculation. And on the whole, the season, though late, opens with many prospects of a remunerative business.

The following table shows the number of men employed in the fisheries of Nova Scotia and New Brunswick, with the yield and value of the fish caught:

	New Brunswick.	Nova Scotia.

CORN-INSPECTION.

To the Editor of The Chicago Tribune:

With your permission, I would like space in your widely-read paper to express a few thoughts suggested by the complaints of country shippers, on account of unsatisfactory inspection of grain, and particularly that of corn. Your own comments on these complaints have been most sound and sensible; but I wish to answer the charges of wrong inspection. I believe it is generally conceded that corn has been in the main graded according to the requirements of the law. The law will not allow corn to be classified as No. 2, 3, or 4, and no thinking, reasonable holder of property, be he farmer, country shipper, or owner of corn in Chicago, would think of jeopardizing the condition and price of millions of bushels by putting clammy or damp corn into store with that which is dry and sound, under the purchase such holder of property had interests that could be promoted by having corn get out of condition. It is surmised and reported that there are parties other than shippers who are to be disastrously hurt. I refer to those known as short sellers in this market,—and that they hope by their clamor to create a sentiment in favor of lessening the standard of inspection, and that the result will be larger arrivals, hot corn in elevator, and, as a consequence, much lower prices. We have in store in Chicago some 5,000,000 bushels of corn, much of which belongs to country shippers, who are holding for higher prices. Now, there is no doubt that if the Inspector had, in order to please a few canal shippers, passed their damp corn as No. 2, the stocks in store would be much larger, and, what is more, there is no doubt we should have corn out of condition and a terrible bugaboo before us. Already reports come from New York and Baltimore the corn arriving there is soft and unsafe to handle, and is being sold at a sacrifice. Shippers will soon find that to ship corn profitable to ship damp corn to other markets than to Chicago. If correctly informed, the corn that arrived here by canal and was inspected rejected, was sold by sample at almost the same price as if it had been inspected No. 2, and for more than the price of No. 2 corn in St. Louis.

You stated a few days since that formerly corn of a new crop was passed as new or rejected until about the time of opening of navigation. In this you were correct, for it was not until the dry season of two years ago when we had an unusually well-matured crop that it was considered dry enough to grade No. 2 before spring. Last season also was very dry, and new corn inspected largely as No. 2, but during the last two years, to have their corn inspected No. 2, farmers and dealers have forgotten that difference in the weather makes a difference in the condition of their corn. Many farmers neglect to feed over their corn cribs, and dealers have been equally careless. The spring months have been unusually wet, and corn has been subject to the influence and effects of the weather, so that nearly all the winter-shelled corn has become more or less clammy. It is, therefore, unreasonable to expect it to grade No. 2. Pardon me, I beg to consider, as writing in the defense of the Chief Inspector, as his champion, let me add a few words to say I am utterly opposed to the State inspection, and I believe all compulsory or enforced inspection, whether by the Board of Trade or State, is wrong in principle and iniquitous in practice. No one should be obliged to submit to the expense of an inspection of his property when not needed, and when, instead of doing him good, impairs the value of his property, as in almost the case, canal transportation companies allow facilities for selling grain by sample on its merits. Railroad companies should be obliged to do the same, and inspection should not be enforced upon property that owners wish to sell by sample. Until country shippers ask this right, and ask that the control of inspection be taken from office-seekers and be placed with the representatives of the ownership of property, they ought not to find fault with the present system of inspection, for which they are responsible. MERCHANT.

LATEST.

In the afternoon wheat was moderately active, closing a shade higher than at the close of 'Change. No. 2 spring sold at $1.30¾ cash or seller the month, and $1.29¾@1.30 seller June, the latter option closing at $1.29¾. Corn was fairly active and declined ¾@¾c. No. 2 closed at 40¾c cash or seller the month, 41¾c seller June, and 43¾c seller July. Other grain and provisions were inactive.

CHICAGO DAILY MARKET.

WEDNESDAY EVENING, May 15.

ALCOHOL—Was fairly active and steady at $1.79@1.84.

BROOM CORN—There was no change to note. The demand was quite active, and the market firm. We quote: No. 1 hurl, 6¼@6¾c per lb; No. 1 stock braid, 6@5½c; No. 2 do, 3¼@4c; No. 3 do, 2@3½c; inside green, 3¼@4c; do red tip, 3@4c; do pale and red, 2@3½c.

BUTTER—The demand, as for some time past, was mainly of a local character, and was chiefly centered in good to choice grades at 22@26c. Inferior to common qualities were but little inquired for, and prices were dull and unchanged. Stocks are accumulating, and the prevalent feeling is one of depression. We quote: Strictly choice dairy, packed, 26@28c; medium to good, 20@22c; inferior to common, 9@16c.

BUTTERINE—There was a moderate movement in the different lines of goods, with little or no variation in prices. We repeat our quotations as follows: Stark, 37c; Ludlow, 35c; Lewiston, 34½c; American, 32½c; Amoskeag, 32½c; Otter Creek, 34c; turtle bags, 14 and 1 lb., 30c; Eagle guanine, single, 17@18c; do double, 20@22c; wool sacks, 25½c.

BEANS AND PEAS—The demand for peas is light, green being mostly wanted. Beans are in moderate request, and prices rule very steady. Choice hand-picked navies, $2.50@3.00; do mediums, $2.40@2.45; inferior grades, $1.25@2.00; green peas (in bris), $1.40 @1.50; yellow do (in bags), $1.25.

BUTTER—Stocks are light. Were quiet and unchanged. We continue to quote: Stucco, $2.50@2.75. New York succo, casting, $3.75@4.00; superfine do, $3.50@4.00; Portland cement, $6.50@ 7.50 per bri; Rosendale cement, $3.00@3.50; Milwaukee, $2.50@3.00; Louisville cement, $3.00@3.50; marble dust, $2.25@3.50; lime in bulk, 85c@$1.00; lime (brls), $1.25 per brl; white sand, per bri, $1.75 @2.00 (in plastering hair, per bu, 40@50c; fire brick, per 1,000, $40.00@50.00; building brick (common), $6.00@8.00; do pressed, $12.00@14.00; do fronts, $12.00; delivered in St. Louis hydraulic pressed, $25.00; do, pressed, $20.00; do common, $14.00; Hillsdale, $25.00; do, do; Indiana pressed, $22.00 @24.00; do common, $13.00@14.00; Milwaukee, No. 1 and 2, $20.00@30.00 do; fire-clay, per brl, $2.00; or $10.00 per ton. The following is the list of prices per box of 50 feet for domestic window glass, from which a reduction of 45 and 5 per cent is made to dealers:

	First Quality.	Double Strength.
9x14 to 10x15	7.00	9.25
12x19 to 16x20	9.25	12.00
18x22 to 18x30	11.00	15.00
20x28 to 24x30	13.00	21.00
26x30 to 26x36		24.00

CHEESE—The trade continues dull, with prices weak and unsettled. Receipts, though not large as yet, are steadily increasing and the tendency of prices is unmistakably downward. The offerings are more heavy. We quote: New York factory, 14@15c; Ohio factory, new, 12@13½c; Western factory, new, 12@13½c.

COAL—Prices ranged the same as on the preceding days of the week, and no immediate change is looked for. The demand continues small. We quote: Lehigh, lump, $12.00; prepared, $12.00; Lackawanna, $10.00; Erie, $10.00; Briar Hill, $10.00; Walnut Hill, $10.00; Illinois, $7.00; Spring Valley, $9.00; Hocking Valley, $9.00; Indiana cannel coal, $16.00; Indiana block, $9.00; Kirkland grate, $9.00; Minonk, $8.00; Wilmington, $6.00.

COFFEE—Trade is quiet, and prices continue about the same as they have done for several days past. Stock is coming in rather more freely. We quote: Pork barrels, 21.25@21.28; lard tierces, $1.60 @1.70; wooden pails, 20c; iron pails, $2.25; tubs, 50c@55c; pork steam, rough, $17.00@20.00; do hocked or sawed, $20.00@25.00; tierce staves, rough, $9.00@28.00; do bucked or sawed, $25.00@28.00; barrel staves, rough, $14.00@28.00; do bucked, $20.00@33.00; flour staves, $9.00@11.00; circle flour heading, 7@8c per set; flour hoop poles, $14.00 @15.00 per m; pork and tierce poles, $30.00@35.00 per m.

EGGS—Were in good request on local account. The receipts were largest, and prices were hardly as strong. We note sales of 220 cases at 13½c; 1,800 doz at 13c; 180 doz at 13¼c.

FEATHERS—Prime live geese sell readily on arrival at 75@76c. Other grades are unchanged. We quote: Prime to choice live geese at 73@76c, from first hands; jobbing prices, 78@85c for assorted feathers; mixed feathers, 40@55c; chicken, 60@70c.

FISH—A large number of box in quotations of herring was the only article of interest made to-day. White-fish, mackerel, and, in fact, all descriptions, are in light stock here and at the East, and under steadily advancing values. The market exhibits a decidedly firm tone. We now quote: No. 1 white-fish, ½ brl, $7.00; No. 2 do, $6.75; No. 1 shore mackerel, ½ brl, $11.00@11.50; No. 1 bay, $9.00@9.25; No. 2 shore, $7.50@8.00; No. 1 shore trout, $11.00@ $1.85@1.90; bank codfish, 100 lbs, $6.00@6.50; George's codfish, $6.75@7.00; Labrador herring, split bris, $9.00@9.50; do ½ brl, $4.75@5.00; Labrador herring, round, brl, $8.00@8.50; do ½ brl, $4.25@ 4.50; box herring, No. 1, 30@35c; box herring, scaled, 35@37c; Columbia River salmon, ½ bris, $10.00@10.25.

FRUITS AND NUTS—Values were unchanged. Trade continues rather quiet, but there are signs of returning activity, and prices are thought to be held with a trifle more firmness. Stocks are ample. We quote: FOREIGN—Dates, 9@9c; figs, drums, 11@ 14c; figs, box, 14½@16½c; Turkey prunes, 9¾@10c; Smyrna raisins, $3.00@3.10; Valencia, 12½@13c. Domestic—Alton apples, 18@20c; Michigan do, 6@7c; Western do, 6@8c; Southern do, 6@8c; peaches, pared, 17@19c; peaches, halves, 6@8

WASHINGTON.

Outline of the Bill in Equity Against the Credit Mobilier.

What the Snydicate Party are Doing in Europe.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

A PREDICTION.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—The Administration organ here this morning is considerably troubled about the Congressional Convention which is sitting in St. Louis. A short time ago it deprecated the movement, on the ground that it was of a sectional character, and consequently should be discouraged. Now it remarks as follows:

This St. Louis convention is, if we are not mistaken, the initial point in a new departure upon which parties will rise and fall, which will draw into it the whole industrial forces of the country in a struggle against the railroad corporations.

ALABAMA'S INDEBTEDNESS.

GOV. Lewis and Treasurer Bingham, of Alabama, passed through this city to-day, en route home from New York, where they have been making arrangements for paying the interest on the bonded debt of the State, and consummating the sale of the Alabama & Chattanooga Railroad. The June interest will be promptly paid; but grave doubts are expressed as to the ability of the State to meet the July interest. The parties who purchased the Alabama & Chattanooga Railroad, under an act of the late General Assembly, have failed to meet their engagements.

THE EUROPEAN SYNDICATE

has already been served with enough new 5 per cent bonds to meet their first $50,000,000 subscription to the $300,000,000, but another lot of bonds will probably be sent to Europe in a few days in order to furnish a larger stock of those denominations most in demand. This will not involve another call from the Syndicate at present, and the probability is that no new call will be made for some time to come. About $12,000,000 of the $50,000,000 will be taken in this country. The Syndicate will, on the 1st of June, pay for the greater portion of the $50,000,000 bonds already taken in 5-20 bonds of 1862, and the remainder in gold. It is understood that a party of clerks will leave here to-morrow, and sail from New York on Saturday, with a batch of $8,000,000 more new bonds for the Syndicate; but this fact, if it shall turn out to be such, is carefully concealed by the Treasury authorities.

THE NEW YORK CENTRAL.

The Commissioner of Internal Revenue received to-day from Collector Bailey, at Albany, a certificate of deposit for $486,000, covering payment of the scrip dividend tax due from the New York Central Railroad Company. This amount is exclusive of nearly $50,000 obtained from locomotives seized and sold prior to the recent offer of compromise, which resulted in the above payment, made under protest. It is expected that the Government will immediately commence suit against Collector Bailey, who retires from his office on the 20th inst., for the recovery of the whole amount, notwithstanding the decision of Judge Woodruff, of New York, which was sustained by the Supreme Court of the United States.

WESTERN NATIONAL BANKS.

As an indication of the prosperity and increase in the West and Northwest, is the fact that quite a number of National Banks, especially in the smaller cities, have from time to time applied to the Comptroller of the Currency for permission to increase their capital. As the matter now stands, additional circulation can be given. The last bank which made application of this sort is the First National, of Santa Fe, New Mexico, which wants to increase its capital from $150,000 to $200,000.

THE PUBLIC BOOK PURLOINER.

George W. Schlade, who was committed to jail about ten days ago, charged with larceny of books from the Congressional Library, was released to-day on his own recognizance, and will await the action of the Grand Jury next month.

POSTAL AGENT ARRESTED.

W. Archer, of Virginia, Postal Route Agent between Macon and Brunswick, Ga., was arrested in this city to-day by a special agent of the Post-Office Department, charged with robbing the mails of $328 in money-order funds, and other registered letters containing small sums belonging to private parties. Archer was taken South to-night. He does not admit the theft, but offers to pay the amount claimed if the authorities will let him off.

LEGAL-TENDERS.

WASHINGTON, May 15.—Legal-tenders outstanding, $356,980,479.

POSTAL MATTERS.

The Third Assistant Postmaster-General today sent a requisition on the manufacturers for 2,925,000 postal-cards.

The Post-Office to-day issued an advertisement soliciting proposals for one year's supply of post-office and registered package envelopes. Estimated quantity of the former, 3,000,000; of the latter, 4,000,000.

SUITS AGAINST THE CREDIT MOBILIER.

The bill in equity prepared by counsel of the United States against the Union Pacific Railroad Company and Credit Mobilier, to be filed in the United States Court at Hartford, proceeds on the ground that the original subscriptions to the Company were never actually and really paid, and that the receipt for payment was the result of fraud and fiction. The suit is, therefore, to compel those who subscribed to pay the amounts severally credited to them, and to account for the bonds, stocks, and moneys and other property which they received as profits to which they were not entitled. The Credit Mobilier is not a party to the suit as a corporation, but as individuals, the management of the Union Pacific and Credit Mobilier being essentially in the hands of the same parties, who divided the proceeds of their joint scheme. The Government seeks to restore the assets of the Company to the condition contemplated by the laws of Congress authorizing and assisting in the construction of the road, so that not only innocent stockholders may be protected and secured, but the Company strengthened in order that it may discharge its obligations to the Government by the payment into the Treasury of 5 per cent of the receipts of the road as a fund with which, in connection with the amounts withheld by the Government for transportation, to repay the interest advanced by the United States, and ultimately the principal of the bonds.

NORTHERN PACIFIC RAILROAD—SCIENTIFIC SURVEY.

The Secretary of War has appointed the following scientific gentlemen to accompany the survey over the Northern Pacific Railroad, under command of Col. Stanley, which is to start out anew from Fort Rice on the 15th of June: Prof. Leidy, paleontologist, of the Pennsylvania University; Prof. Leo Lesquereux, geologist, Columbus, O.; Prof. Lionel R. Netler, mineralogist, New York; Prof. James A. Allen, zoologist, Cambridge, Mass.; Wm. E. Pywell, photographer, Washington; Edward Knopsey, artist, Cambridge, Mass.; Prof. Thomas C. Porter, botanist; Prof. Henry C. Chapman, volunteer assistant paleontologist, and C. W. Bennett, general assistant to the members of the scientific corps.

THE INDIAN CONTRACTS.

The published statement that complaint in regard to the recent awards for Indian supplies in New York City had assumed such gravity as to be brought by Secretary Delano to the attention of the President, and that the President had ordered the execution of the contracts to be suspended, pending investigation, is denied on official authority. Secretary Delano says the facts are that some bidders having claimed that awards should be made to them, he referred those complaints to the Commissioner of Indian Affairs for report, which has not yet been prepared, but will, when made, be carefully examined by the Secretary. It is now known, however, that the published statement as to the amount of difference between the bids accepted and those of the complaining parties are exaggerated, and the reports that Secretary Delano has brought the matter to the notice of the President, and that the President has given any orders in the premises, is a fiction.

PROPOSED REUNION.

Soldiers who served in the war against Mexico purpose holding a national convention, in this city, on Jan. 18, 1874, to prepare a joint memorial to Congress for pension to the survivors of the Mexican war, at the same rate allowed by act granting pensions to the soldiers and sailors of the war of 1812; also to adopt measures looking to a national brotherhood of the survivors, and a general assemblage on the occasion of the centennial anniversary of the Nation's birthday, at Philadelphia, July 4, 1876.

American Railway Master Mechanics' Association.

BALTIMORE, May 15.—The American Railway Master Mechanics' Association reassembled this morning. The Committee on Machinery for Removing Snow from Tracks reported in favor of protecting exposed points by planting trees and erecting sheds. The report was filed.

The Committee on the best form and proportion of axles for cars and locomotives, and also whether there is anything to be gained by the use of compound axles and loose wheels, reported, asking to be continued, with authority to co-operate with the Committee appointed on the same subject by the Master Car-Builders' Association, which was granted. A resolution proposed by the Committee that it is the sense of this Convention that no practical advantages will result from loose wheels or compound axles in ordinary railway service, was adopted.

The Committee on machinery and appliances for removing wrecks and erecting bridges, reported, recommending that strong lines, good blocks, jacks, and hand tools be kept in tool-cars. Ordered printed.

Gen. D. D. Smith, Supervising Inspector of general and steam vessels in the United States, was introduced by the President. He said he would inform the Convention, as a matter of importance to them, that Congress had appropriated $100,000 for the purpose of experimenting to discover the cause of boiler explosions. Experiments will probably be made during the months of September, October, and November next, at Pittsburgh or Cincinnati and Sandy Hook, N. J. An effort would be made to find the cause of explosions, and in this matter Master Mechanics who navigate the land were as much interested as those who navigate the sea. On their visit to Washington to-morrow he would be pleased to see any or all the delegates at the Treasury Department. (Applause.)

Two committees of five each were appointed to attend the experiments.

The Committee on Steel Tires made a report which led to some discussion. The report was filed.

The Committee on Mechanical Laboratory requested that the President and Vice-President be added ex-officio to the Committee, and the appropriation of a sum not exceeding $500 for the purchase of a dynametar and other instruments.

The following officers were elected for the ensuing year: H. M. Britton, of Cincinnati, President; N. E. Chapman, of Cleveland, First Vice-President; W. A. Robinson of Hamilton, Canada, Second Vice-President; J. A. Setchel, of of Cincinnati, Secretary; S. J. Hayes, of Chicago, Treasurer.

Adjourned until evening.

At the evening session, the Committee on Premiums submitted a report awarding the first premium of $75 to E. Noyel, of the Kansas Pacific Railroad, for a design of apparatus for supplying locomotives with water, and a second premium of $50 to Frank B. Philbreck, of Maine, for a design of apparatus for removing snow. The report was adopted.

Chicago was selected as the place for holding the next annual meeting.

Mr. Forney, of the Railroad Gazette, read a paper treating of a proposed instrument for testing the motion of side valves. The Committee on Subjects submitted a report embracing a large number of subjects connected with railroading, such as narrow-gauge roads, weight and classes of rolling-stock, consumption of fuel per mile, standard axles, etc., for consideration at the next meeting of the Association.

President Britton delivered a short address, and the Convention adjourned sine die.

The next meeting is to be held in Chicago on the second Wednesday in May.

ST. LOUIS.

The True State of Facts About the Congressional Conference—The Southern Excursion.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

ST. LOUIS, May 15.—After a day of confusion and festivity, it has been definitely arranged that the Congressional party and other invites shall leave at 7:45 a. m. to-morrow, on the Atlantic & Pacific Line, for Springfield, where they will take supper, and whatever reception the citizens think proper to afford, and spend the night; dinner at Vienta, on Saturday. From Vienta the party will proceed by the Missouri & Kansas Pacific, through the Indian Territory to Denison, where they will arrive Saturday night Galveston will be reached on Monday. Thence their journey is uncertain. Some will return and others will go to New Orleans, and further than that point no definite arrangement has been made various interests having come into conflict unexpectedly.

A meeting, attended by some Senators and Representatives, and citizens, was held this morning for the purpose of framing certain resolutions, as those of the Congressional Convention. The meeting being convened in the latter name, the resolutions were passed; but your correspondent asserts that there was no organization as a Congressional Convention or even of a formal gathering of representatives in any shape, and inquiry of several leading representatives, made with the view of ascertaining in what light they regarded the meeting, elicited confirmation of that view from them. They authorize the statement that the representatives, as such, neither organized nor passed resolutions, except informally to acknowledge the unbounded hospitality of the St. Louis Merchants' Exchange Committee. The resolutions may possibly be telegraphed over the country as for the false pretence of having the approval of the Congressional Convention, and it is proper that the reader should understand what they really amount to. They are as follows:

Resolved, That we regard the completion of the James River and Kanawha Canal, the cherished scheme of its author, George Washington, connecting as it will the waters of the Atlantic with the great Mississippi Valley, as worthy the prompt and a profound consideration of Congress, and that we cannot too warmly express our admiration for the State of Virginia in surrendering her twelve millions of dollars, in this improvement in order that the same may be dedicated to the people of the whole country to insure them cheap rates of transportation by water line to the Atlantic Coast.

Resolved, That we recommend to Congress the consideration of the Atlantic and Great Western Canal, believing it to be an enterprise of national interest, and which, when completed will be of a value commensurate with its cost.

Resolved, That the Fox and Wisconsin Rivers improvement has already become a national work, and is deserving of the continued recognition of Congress.

Whilst these resolutions were really passed by the Merchants' Exchange meeting, yet, owing to the confusion under which the meeting was organized, several representatives have been introduced to look upon them as giving formal expression of the opinions of the supposed Convention.

There never was a meeting so muddled and so dangerously constituted. It was announced the preceding day as the last meeting of the Congressional Convention, and is everywhere spoken of as such, and whilst the Committee was careful to have the report in the papers here read that the Merchants' Exchange had determined on those resolutions relative to proposed national works of great importance to be incorporated with those previously presented, yet they are so mixed up with the proceedings of the so-called Convention that any one reading the report, and all those outsiders who have heard the matter discussed, cannot take them to mean anything else than that the Convention has already pledged itself to the approval of the gigantic works St. Louis proposes to make Congress carry out.

The names of upward of a hundred Congressmen and others are enrolled for the Southern excursion. Five or six Senators, whose names it is not possible to ascertain to-night, are also of the party.

The citizens' excursion was largely attended, the steamer Great Republic being crammed. The only particular in which the trip differed from other junketings of the kind is the fact that the rush for the lunch-room began before the steamer cast off moorings and did not end until she was alongside the wharf again, and that almost every bottle of champagne on board was consumed.

A banquet to the Congressional party was given at 8 o'clock, and was proving a rather noisy affair. The speeches, like all the speeches that have been made during the Convention, are remarkable only for their general eloquence, and the conspicuous absence of anything like a pledge to sustain the projects now beginning gradually to develop.

RELIGIOUS.

Meeting of the Presbyterian General Assembly at Baltimore.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

BALTIMORE, Md., May. 15.—At the opening of the Assembly 375 delegates were present, among whom were Drs. Edie and Colderwood, from the United Presbyterian Church, Scotland; Judge Alison, Philadelphia; Howard Crosby, Phillip Schoeff, William E. Dodge, New York; S. G. Brown, President of Hamilton College; E. D. Mansfield, Cincinnati; Horace Maynard, Congressman from Tennessee. Revs. Thompson and Walker are the only Chicago Commissioners that have yet arrived.

The order of exercises announced yesterday was followed without deviation. There was really no contest for the office of Moderator, owing to the absence of Dr. Darling, of Albany, who was detained by the sudden and alarming illness of his wife. Had he been present he would have received a large vote, and possibly been elected.

Dr. Crosby, the successful candidate, is Chancellor of the New York University, and a man honored and beloved by the Church at large. On assuming the Chair he showed familiarity with the duties of the position, and formidable lung-power, speaking quite too loud for the comfort of the audience.

The important action of the day was taken on the report of the Committee of Arrangements, which recommended a curtailment of the time allotted to Boards and Committees, and the return of the Assembly to the discharge of its legitimate duties. In accordance with this plan, Tuesday and Wednesday evenings of next week were reserved for foreign and home missions respectively. Heretofore, each of these causes has been granted an entire evening to present its claims. The proposed change met a fierce opposition, but was ably advocated by Dr. Backus, of Baltimore, and was finally agreed to.

The intention is that Boards and Permanent Commissioners shall have recourse to the religious press and Presbyterian Board of Publication, and be allowed to file the necessary papers and exhibits for printing.

At the communion this evening, Dr. S. J. Niccolls, the retiring Moderator, presided. Dr. Walworth, of San Francisco, and Dr. Ellis, of Cleveland, assisted. The bread was administered by twelve Elders, and the wine by twenty-four more, among whom were Messrs. Dodge, Maynard, Mansfield, and others as well known.

[By the Associated Press.]

BALTIMORE, May 15.—The eighty-fifth annual meeting of the General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States convened in this city this morning, in the Central Church. After opening prayers, in which Rev. Dr. Ellis, of Cleveland, participated, the Assembly listened to a sermon by Samuel J. Niccolls, of St. Louis, Moderator, and then commenced to ballot for Moderator of the present General Assembly.

The following gentlemen were placed in nomination: Revs. Howard Crosby, New York city; James Ells, Cleveland; E. B. Walsworth, San Francisco; Herrick Johnson, Philadelphia; and E. R. Geary, Oregon. Dr. Johnson rose, and, after stating that Philadelphia was honored with the Moderator two years ago, withdrew his name.

The vote for Moderator stood as follows: Dr. Crosby, 254; Dr. Ells, 92; Dr. Walsworth, 14; Dr. Geary, 19.

The Clerk announced that Dr. Crosby had received a majority of all the votes cast.

Dr. Herrick Johnson, of Philadelphia, and R. R. Booth, of New York, were appointed a committee to notify Dr. Crosby of his election, and to conduct him to the chair.

The retiring Moderator, Dr. Nichols, received Dr. Crosby, as he advanced to the chair, and addressed him briefly as to his duties, and installed him as Moderator.

Dr. Crosby, in appropriate terms, addressed the Assembly, accepting the office.

The Revs. William E. Moore, of Ohio, J. D. Krum, of New York, Samuel Conn, of Indiana, and J. C. Miller, of Philadelphia, were chosen Secretaries.

Three hundred and seventy-nine delegates answered to roll-call.

The Committee of Arrangements recommended that the Assembly hold morning sessions daily from 9 a. m. till 2:30 p. m., and evening sessions daily from 8 to 10 p. m., with the exception of Friday and Saturday of the present week, and Thursday and Saturday of next week. Adjourned.

The Assembly then adjourned till 8 p. m., when the communion will be administered.

Among the delegates present to-day were Hon. Horace F. Maynard, of Tennessee.

General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church South.

LITTLE ROCK, Ark., May 15.—The General Assembly of the Presbyterian Church of the United States met in this city to-day, at 11 o'clock, and was opened with a sermon by the Rev. T. E. Welch, Moderator of the last Assembly. The reverend gentleman took as his text, "But ye shall receive power; after that the Holy Ghost is come upon you, and ye shall be witness unto me both in Jerusalem and in all Judea and Samaria, and unto the uttermost part of the earth." Acts, 18.

The speaker was listened to with undivided attention during the delivery of the sermon, and closed with the prayerful appeal: "May the blessed Comforter preside over all our deliberations, and abide in all our hearts as the spirit of wisdom and understanding, the spirit of council and might, the spirit of knowledge and the fear of the Lord."

After the sermon the Assembly was constituted with prayer by the Moderator.

The permanent clerk reported that the following commissioners had appeared and had been enrolled:

Synod of Alabama—Edward Fay, J. M. McLean, Joseph Hardie, James Homerville, and J. K. Spence.

Synod of Arkansas—J. R. Welch, D. D., J. F. Allen, Samuel Williamson, D. D., and Charles Chester.

Synod of Georgia—W. J. Keith, N. A. Candler, J. Cleveland, H. D. Smith, D. L. Baker, A. D. Hagen, James S. White, and J. W. Montgomery.

Synod of Kentucky—R. Morrison, J. A. Dickson, J. S. Forman, W. L. Nourse, W. W. George, J. W. Pugh, P. O. Turpin, B. K. Smoot, J. A. McChell, and R. H. Kennard.

Synod of Memphis—F. Patton, Daniel McFarland, F. H. Bowman, W. D. Somers, E. G. Davidson, George A. Russell, W. Alleson, Alexander Pentard, and Robert M. Patton.

Synod of Mississippi—S. S. Brown, A. J. Leddel, A. F. Young, W. F. Bartlott, J. M. Newton, H. M. Smith, D. D., A. R. Banks, J. H. Stroud, A. P. Smith, and Dr. J. M. Henson.

Synod of Nashville—F. H. Marsin, J. W. Verhorn, Joseph Park, W. M. Anderson, H. H. Banks, W. M. Perkins, F. A. Thompson, and A. Thompson.

Synod of North Carolina—Neill McKay, D. D.; A. D. McLean, J. G. Alexander, J. H. Welborne, L. C. Vass, R. J. Hickson, A. F. Dickson.

Synod of South Carolina—P. Garrison, W. H. Adams, E. H. Burst, P. H. Reed, S. P. Boozer, and H. W. Leland.

Synod of Texas—S. Fraser, J. S. Besser, A. McDonald, J. W. Shive, J. S. Moore, and R. M. Laughridge.

Synod of Virginia—J. D. Thomas, D. C. Dana, C. N. Campbell, L. J. Rothcock, W. Brown, D. D.; W. J. Price, J. Calhoun, D. Blair, W. B. Morton, F. N. Whalley, G. L. Tayburn, and J. S. Songster.

The Stated Clerk announced that he had read information of the organization of the Presbytery of Tuscumbia, by the Synod of Memphis, and that the commissioners from said Presbytery had been enrolled.

The Assembly then proceeded to the election of officers. Rev. H. M. Smith, D. D., of the Presbytery of New Orleans, Rev. N. McKay, D. D., of the Presbytery of Fayetteville, Rev. F. H. Bowman, of the Presbytery of Memphis, Rev. James Park, of the Presbytery of Knoxville, and Rev. A. F. Dixon, of the Presbytery of Wilmington, were nominated. The second ballot resulted in the choice of Dr. Smith, by the following vote: Rev. H. M. Smith, 43, J. H. Bowman, 34.

The Rev. Dr. Welsh, on resigning his Chair to his successor, said: "It gives me great pleasure to welcome you to the Moderator's chair, and also in the name of the people of my charge to welcome you to our city of Rocas, and to the hospitalities of our homes. May God's blessing be upon you, and the body over which you preside."

On taking the Chair Dr. Smith said, "I have, dear brethren, a deep sense of the honor conferred upon me, and trust that your judgment of my fitness for the high position to which you have called me may prove more correct than my own. I shall rely upon your courtesy to aid me in the discharge of the duties which will devolve upon me."

The Rev. R. H. Smoot was then nominated and elected Temporary Clerk.

On motion, it was resolved that the session of the Assembly begin at 9 a. m. each day, and end at 1 p. m., until further ordered.

The Assembly then adjourned until to-morrow at 9 o'clock.

Closed with prayer by the Rev. R. M. Hobson.

Church of the United Brethren.

DAYTON, O., May 15.—The General Conference of the United Brethren Church convened in this city to-day, and will remain in session two weeks. A large number of delegates are in attendance. Rev. M. Griffith opened the meeting with prayer. Bishop Glossbrenner preached the opening sermon. When he concluded, he called the meeting to order, and at once proceeded with the regular business. Several reports were read, all of which show the various branches of missions in Sunday-schools, printing establishments, colleges, and seminaries, to be in a prosperous condition.

The Episcopalians—Election of a Bishop.

BOSTON, May 15.—The Episcopal Convention to-day balloted for a Bishop of Massachusetts. In the first ballot the clergy cast 96 votes, and the laity 83. The clergy gave Dr. Henry C. Potter, of New York, 39; Dr. James DeKoven, of Racine, Wis., 28; Dr. Benjamin Paddock, 13; the remainder scattering. The laity gave DeKoven 80, Potter 25, Paddock —. In accordance with positive instructions, the name of the Rev. Dr. Potter was withdrawn. The clergy again balloted, with the following result: Paddock, 41; DeKoven, 94. On the second ballot by the laity, Paddock received 41 and DeKoven 94 of the 82 votes cast. The name of Dr. Dix, who had received a very small vote, was here withdrawn. After a warm discussion of the merits of Dr. DeKoven, the Convention adjourned till 4 in the afternoon.

On the Convention reassembling, the merits of the two prominent candidates were warmly discussed, the only objection to Dr. DeKoven being his avowed belief in the personal presence of Christ in the elements of the Holy Sacrament, and the Convention proceeded to a third ballot, electing Dr. Paddock by the following vote, clerical votes, 97: Benjamin H. Paddock, of Brooklyn, N. Y., 52; DeKoven, 40; Smith, 2; Leeds, 1; E. A. Hoffman, of Pennsylvania, and C. H. Hall, Brooklyn, 1 each; lay vote, 99 for Paddock, 45; DeKoven, 33; Burgess and Dix, 1 each.

NEW YORK.

The Tribune on the Approaching Chicago Jubilee—Letters from Commissioner Van Buren—Miscellaneous Local Items.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Tribune says editorially of the approaching Jubilee in Chicago: "The great miracle of a metropolis rising out of the prairie in the life of a single generation impresses us, of course, as strongly as it does the rest of mankind, and in our secret hearts we are immensely proud of the career of the lusty young city on the shore of Lake Michigan, and perhaps a little envious, too, of its strength, its enterprise, and its ingenuity. The Jubilee will certainly be a hearty popular demonstration, and quite as great a curiosity in its way as the lake tunnel, or even the Garden City itself."

The suspension of a prominent dry goods jobbing house in West Broadway is reported this afternoon. Also rumors of serious trouble with two firms of stock brokers who have been carrying a large amount of Western railway shares. The liabilities of the dry goods house are said to be over $1,000,000.

Alexander T. Stewart, who has been so very ill that it was believed he could not recover, is now so much better that he is out and attending to his business as usual. He has determined, however, to be more careful of himself in future, as his physicians have told him he must work less if he would live.

The celebration to-day of the colored citizens of the anniversary of the passage of the Civil Rights bill was quite imposing, and attracted much attention. Their parade was well managed, and addresses were able and appropriate.

[By the Associated Press.]

NEW YORK, May 15.—The Times to-morrow will publish letters from Gen. Van Buren, recently removed as Chief Commissioner to the Vienna Exposition, addressed to President Grant and Secretary Fish. He says: "For ten months I have spared no exertion or expense to make our exhibition a success, and am utterly unconscious of doing or authorizing to be done a single wrong or unworthy thing, and that the person who asserts or intimates that I have received, asked, been promised, or received a single cent or any consideration or advantage whatever, either directly or indirectly from any appointment or concession by reason of my position, or in any way connected with this exhibition, is a cowardly knave and liar. The accursed malignity and unhallowed ambition and vanity of John Jay have for months been employed to destroy me and my commission that he might obtain some notoriety himself." The letters, of which the foregoing is the pith, are accompanied by a sworn statement to the same effect.

SPRINGFIELD.

Bids for Furnishing the Heating Apparatus, Etc., of the New State-House—Attempted Wife-Murder.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

SPRINGFIELD, Ill., May 15.—The State-House Commissioners meet to-day to open the proposals for heating the new Capitol building and for roofing the same. The bids are: Steam heating, Baker, Smith & Co., New York, $105,900; John Davis & Co., Chicago, $105,975; Crane Brothers' Manufacturing Company, Chicago, $93,550; A. L. Ide, Springfield, $91,500.

Metallic Roofing—M. A. Thayer, Chicago, zinc, $55,000; Gerard & Gateau, Chicago, zinc, $53,995; Gerard & Gateau, Chicago, galvanized iron, $85,995; Henson Robinson, Springfield, zinc, $50,532.20; Henson Robinson, Springfield, galvanized iron, $54,884; A. Knisely & Co., Chicago, zinc, $57,000; A. Knisely & Co., Chicago, galvanized iron, $40,000; John E. Oxley & Co., zinc, $32,084.20; John E. Oxley & Co., galvanized iron, $34,923.20.

The Commissioners will not make the award for several days.

Mrs. Barrow, daughter of Dr. Phillips, of this city, was taken to Missouri a few days since upon a requisition from the Governor of Missouri on a charge preferred by her divorced husband, Mr. Barrow, of infanticide. On an investigation of the charge, the lady was completely and fully exonerated from the charge, which proved to have been made out of malice. Failing in his base design, he resolved to take her life, and to this end he stole into the dining-room, where the lady was at dinner, drew a revolver, aimed deliberately, and fired. A gentleman sitting near him saw his movements in time to throw up the weapon, and thus fortunately saved her life. The assassin was at once arrested and lodged in jail to await trial. The lady returned to this city to her friends.

DETROIT.

Last of the Relief Fund—Deliberate Murder.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

DETROIT, Mich., May 15.—The State Relief Committee has closed the accounts and handed a small balance of funds to the Governor to be disposed of as he thinks proper. The whole amount raised for the relief of the sufferers by the Michigan fires of 1872 was $265,299.

In Windsor, this afternoon, two farmers, living as next neighbors, had a quarrel, when Thomas Trombly went to his house, loaded his gun, returned to the house of his opponent, Robert Lesperance, and shot him dead. He then took four guns, some ammunition, and provisions, and took a canoe, and was, when last seen, making for the western shore of Lake St. Clair.

CEDAR RAPIDS.

Fatally Burned—The Mastan Mystery.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

CEDAR RAPIDS, Ia., May 15.—Near Lisbon, Ia., while the wife of Wm. McCammatt was boiling soap her clothing caught fire, and she being alone with her children, was unable to quench the flames until her clothing was literally burned off. Her husband, who was working in the field, heard her scream, but could not reach her in time to render any assistance. In Mrs. McCammatt's efforts to subdue the fire the straw in the yard caught fire, which communicated to the stables, which were also destroyed, together with oats, corn, and other articles. Mrs. McCammatt was still alive at last accounts, but cannot possibly live.

No further developments in the Mastna murder case, and no clue to the perpetrators. The Coroner's jury adjourned until Saturday, in hopes of something turning up.

Telegraphic Brevities.

Joseph H. Dugan, who was indicted in 1869 for the murder of Louis Meyer, in St. Louis, and escaped from jail, was arrested there on Wednesday.

The Common Council of Janesville, Wis., has granted only fourteen licenses for the sale of liquor for the ensuing year, out of twenty-five applications. Last year twenty-six licenses were granted.

James A. Coe, the Boston forger, has been committed in default of $400,000 bail. It is thought his operations will exceed $200,000, though only $27,000 is specifically charged against him.

At Springville, Iowa, Wednesday night, Mrs. J. V. Bishop died very suddenly from the effects of a dose of strychnine administered by herself. She had been in the habit of taking it for medicinal purposes, and it is supposed took an overdose. She leaves six children.

The Iowa State Dental Association yesterday elected the following officers: President, Dr. T. Abbott, of Manchester; Vice-President, Dr. F. A. Hallett, of Des Moines; Recording Secretary and Treasurer, Dr. E. V. Eaton, of Anamosa; Corresponding Secretary, Dr. E. T. Bigby, of Tipton. Standing Committees were appointed. The Convention adjourns to-day.

MADISON.

The St. Croix Land-Grant Surrendered—Judicial Election Returns.

Special Dispatch to The Chicago Tribune.

MADISON, Wis., May 15.—An official notification from the Milwaukee & St. Paul Railway Company of its unwillingness to accept the St. Croix & Superior land-grant was received by Gov. Washburn to-day, dated at Milwaukee yesterday, and signed by President Mitchell. It contains about 750 words, but really only one idea. The reason assigned for refusing to accept the grant is, that so great a doubt rested of the State's title to the land in question that it is deemed impossible to obtain means to complete the road. It is agreed that the act of Congress granting lands for building a railroad from St. Croix River to Lake Superior expired in 1869, that Congress refused to renew the grant or extend the time for building roads, and that while Judge Miller, in the United States Circuit Court for Minnesota, held that the legal title to the lands were in the State of Wisconsin till otherwise determined by a decree of court or act of Congress, that decision had been appealed from to the United States Supreme Court; but the Company is informed that the Secretary of the Interior and Attorney-General do not regard Judge Miller's decision sound. This appeal and these views, it is claimed, were not known till after the adjournment of the Legislature. The appeal, however, was announced in the public prints, and referred to in Gov. Washburn's annual message, when he also stated that the Supreme Court had made a decision in regard to the Cherokee lands, involving a similar question on a like matter, and it was also published on the Governor's authority that the Attorney-General had declined to render an opinion as to the State's title to the land, because the case was trying before the United States Supreme Court. All the facts on which the declination of the grant is based should have been known to the Company when its managers were making such desperate efforts to secure the grant last winter. The action of the Company, and its flimsy excuse, therefore, are calling down upon it the bitter exclamations of some who were its warmest friends last winter. It is not likely that the other company will accept the grant under the conditions which the Milwaukee Company had in the law which must govern the disposition of the grant, and there is considerable talk of an extra session of the Legislature.

The official returns of the vote for Supreme Judge is published, giving Orsamus Cole 127,776, to 1,725 for all others.

THE 11 O'CLOCK ORDINANCE.

How It Was Obeyed.

As stated elsewhere, the 11 o'clock ordinance went into effect last night. The saloon-keepers seemed everywhere aware of this fact, and closed their saloons promptly at the hour. There were no violations of the ordinance so far as reported by the police, and saloon-keepers seem willing to obey the law. They say, however, that a day of retribution is coming, when the high-handed morality which first produced the Sunday law and now puts into operation an ordinance by which the saloons are compelled to close at 11 o'clock will be put down. But until that time comes they will obey the law. The effect upon the streets was apparent in the perfect quietude which reigned even at 12 o'clock. Midnight bummers were seldom met with. The police need to watch closely the business of the many Italian restaurants, all of which are furnished with a bar. These places, under the guise of eating-houses, as a fact do no better than the ordinary saloons. To-morrow night may witness a less strict observance of the law.

BURGLARY.

About 5 o'clock yesterday afternoon the house of Mr. Alonzo Huntington, No. 816 Indiana avenue, was entered by sneak-thieves. The rooms of the Rev. C. C. Parsons were visited, and about $100 worth of jewelry and clothing taken. Several other rooms were also inspected, and about the same amount taken.

MISCELLANEOUS.

The Presbyterian University of Kentucky is to be located at Anchorage.

—A camel and an elephant, belonging to a circus, were tied to a tree near Fishkill Landing, the other day, when the express train came along. The camel fainted away, but the elephant started off with the tree.

—Michigan saloons are fitted up with "whirligigs," contrivances by which the customer gets his drink without coming near the seller. As the latter cannot readily be convicted where they are used, the Legislature has made the owner of the building responsible.

—There is a good deal in the remark of the Buffalo Express—"It is all very well to talk about the dignity of the United States; but the truth is, Indians are a good deal like bumble bees, and the man that stands on his dignity with a nest of bumble bees is a fool."

—A woman's rights paper (La Donna) is published at Venice, and is edited by Mlle. Beccari. In a late number it is stated that an application to the Italian Government to admit women to the great universities of Turin and Rome was met with this reply: "There is no need of a law to permit women to enter the colleges, since there is no law which prohibits their doing so." Upon this hint the Italian girls have acted, and four of them are now attending a course of philosophy in Rome.

—A Kansas paper indulges in what looks very like a practical suggestion about the treatment of the noble but troublesome red man. Briefly it is this: When you once get him on a reserve, "take away his horse." "Without his horse," says this Kansas oracle, "a plains Indian has lost his manhood; and what courage he may have had on a fleet pony very promptly oozes out of him when he takes to the ground, wears moccasins, makes long marches, and gets his toes sore. In such plight he will not wander far from the Government rations."

—In Judge Knight's court in St. Louis, the other day (as the St. Louis Times relates), numerous divorce suits had been tried, and, after patiently listening for several hours, His Honor became disgusted and summarily ordered an adjournment. The same thing once happened in the Massachusetts Supreme Court. That sound but eccentric old Judge, Metcalf, had been hearing divorce cases all day. In the course of the afternoon he began to grow fretful and snappish, until he astonished everybody by exclaiming: "I think that we have done enough of this dirty work for one day. Mr. Crier, adjourn the court until to-morrow morning at 9 o'clock." And it was accordingly adjourned.

—That is a singular view which is taken by a Baltimore lawyer of a mania for poisoning. He thinks that when a man or woman poisons a human being without detection, in ninety-nine cases out of a hundred the poisoner becomes insane. His reasoning is that one successful crime of this sort begets such a sense of power and of ability to remove at will every human obstacle, so blunting, at the same time, the sympathies, "that in nearly every case the mind becomes warped, and the poisoner is ready with the deadly draught to avenge the most trifling disrespect or wrong." Let those who think of poisoning anybody take warning.

—A most susceptible young gentleman was Frank Chandler, late of Bryeburg, Me. First of all, he fell in love with his father's young housekeeper and secretly married her. But upon the avowal of this union old Mr. Chandler declared, we don't know by what authority, that he did not approve of it; and so the wife went home to her family. But it is of no use to waste sympathy upon young Chandler, for he straightway fell in love with another lady, and wanted to marry her before the divorce proceedings were finished. To this step the old gentleman naturally objected, which so discouraged the youth that he took a great dose of laudanum and is no longer in flesh. The father is one of the wealthiest farmers of that region.

—Woman as a voter is an accomplished fact in England. Every woman who occupies a dwelling in any city or town of England, Ireland, Wales, or Scotland, has a voice for Alderman, and town officers in general. Under Mr. Forster's new act, in England widows and spinsters who pay rates have votes in the election of School Boards. In Ireland, every woman who pays any sum as poor-rate has a vote in the election of poor guardians. It is said that the women exercise these rights heartily, and in many cases where saloon keepers represented the wards of cities in municipal politics they were signally defeated by the votes of the women. In London, as is well known, Mrs. Garrett Anderson, M. D., is one of the most useful members of the School Board, and the same is true of Miss Becker, of Manchester. The right of suffrage seems to have been conferred on the principle that where women pay a tax for any object they shall have the right to a voice in the disposition of the funds.
